The Laurelton Art Society grew out of the interests of a small group of artists who first met at an art store located on the Laurelton Circle now the site of the Laurelton interchange. Their aim was to continue the rich cultural heritage of Brick Township's artists which dates back to Clara Stroud Colvin and a meeting of artists in her Herbertsville studio on September 18, 1939. From its incorporation in 1980, the Society has continued to meet the needs of local artists, share ideas, promote public interest in the visual arts and has granted scholarships to local high school students who have shown outstanding achievement in the field at art.

The Society embraces the "art appreciator" as well as those holding prestigious awards. Our annual Festival of Art, a multi-media exhibit includes amateur as well as professional work and ribbons are awarded for excellence. Our monthly meetings at Brick Township High School feature high quality demonstrations and workshops to which all are invited. For 33 years the Laurelton Art Society as been here to welcome the artists of Brick Township and surrounding communities.
