I drew a shape in which five hands form a star, and each hand has a V shape. And this means peace. In addition, pigeons, peace symbols, olive leaves, and national flags of each country were drawn to express the peace and we are all connected as one.

Definition of Peace

In my poster, many people are interconnected pulling the darkness out of the world. Violence, pollution, ocean acidification, and inequality are being sucked out and replaced by a bright, bursting stream of water. This brings hope to all, creating monumental people and symbols such as Malala, the peace bringer, and the Statue of Liberty, a sculpture so many people wept at after they arrived at our land of hope and freedom. We are all connected by the heart that means empathy, and the digital connection we can have with others. Water, the thing that connects us all, the basic necessity of life, can bring so much peace into the world.

My definition of peace is where we are all friends and stuff and we all help each other also no racism

In my poster I demonstrate peace by showing that people are connected by what is supposed to be a white ribbon and in war white is represented as peace. I included a rainbow and a peace sign to show that everyone is welcome anywhere.

My definition of peace is when everyone connects and supports each other. The doves represent kindness, and the heart represents love.

My definition of my drawing is that war and death is all over the world and just because of that, it doesn't mean that the whole world is chaotic. Most of use are at peace.

Grade: 8

My definition of peace is bringing people together and not bringing them apart and or having people work together and that is shown in my poster by the two hands being tied together with the flags.

Peace
/pēs/
noun

1. a world without war and conflicts, people living in harmony and respecting others for who they are. Peace is when there is no shame on people of different religions, race, and ethnicity.
2. This relates to my poster because it represents equality and appreciation for people of different races and where they come from.

I believe that peace is where you feel safe and calm where nothing bad will happen to you in that place. I also think peace is also when people work together to get rid of bad ideas and make good for the better. This relates to my drawing because I feel like being in space is relaxing and peaceful. You can be calm by looking at stars in the sky.

A World of United Tranquility

Peace to me is a harmonic calmness instilled in multiple people; to trust each other and be free of war, conflict, and hostility. I believe that peace comes from one another, and is developed in communities of people. It is a unity of tranquility found across the world, and in the hearts and minds of many, rather than one.

My definition of peace in this drawing: So what I did was a half and half the right side of it is 2018 and left is right now the only way you can save the world is if you open the lock but the key for that is in a box and the only way you can open it is if you end racism and pollution and i put the wings for peace and that were all the same

Grade: 8th

My definition of peace is connection. When people come together and help people in need.

Name: Gavi K.

Grade: 8th

My poster represents the different ways people are connected, whether it be physically or emotionally. The rainbow puzzle pieces show that anyone and everyone are accepted, and how beautiful they can be. I tried to use lots of varieties of colors to try and make the world bright and happy, despite everything going on right now in the world!

My poster represents the different ways we are all connected through peace. The doves represent peace, the girl represents the next generation. The monuments represent morales and the union of people. The Earth represents peace and the vehicles represents peace. The flags represent the agreement of peace and we are all on the same level. No one is better than the other.
