Music Teacher, Washington Elementary
School

As soon as I started a first-grade music class, a child unmuted himself and started reprimanding me that he didn't get his turn last time. He was so mad at me and he kept repeating himself. I explained to him that only about five students out of the 20 students in his class will get a turn on any given day, so you won't always get a turn. He threatened to turn his video off. I told the class we would be singing and playing "Looby Loo" and started singing..."put your finger in go ahead and put it right into the camera...And take your finger out", etc. Almost immediately, he was playing with us, the issue was forgotten!

Joy Cunningham, Music Teacher, Lincoln Elementary School.
