

Panorama Student Perception Survey is a research backed process for students, families, teachers and staff to better understand and build positive school climate in the schools and the district. The surveys assess:

School Climate and Culture- Social and learning climate of the school environment, including rules and norms, behaviors, student engagement, and physical facilities.

Positive Relationships- Social connections and interpersonal relationships between students and teachers, like a sense of belonging and valuing of school.

School Safety- Physical and psychological climate and safety at school including bullying, violence and availability of support for students.

District 51 uses this data to assess our work on students' sense of belonging, one of the threads throughout the strategic plan and the platform identified to measure success. Individual schools use the data to plan for and improve the climate in their buildings.

The survey is completely anonymous and allows all students to have a voice and a personal assessment of the safety and relationships in the school.

The data we get allows us to watch progress on individual measures over time, allows schools to compare themselves to each other, the district and the nation through national norms.

All schools in District 51 have a goal to increase relationships and belonging through efforts to improve climate and culture. Panorama is the data source for this measurement.
