Plagiarism according to The American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language, Fourth Edition, 2000, is "1. A piece of writing that has been copied from someone else and is presented as being your own. 2. The act of plagiarizing: taking someone's words or ideas as if they were your own." If you copy another's work in a paper, for instance, you must put the copied material in quotation marks and footnote or endnotes. If you restate the language or thoughts of another in your own words, you are paraphrasing. Omit the quotation marks, but footnote or endnote the original source. Not to attribute the idea to the original person is to plagiarize. In general, it is better to acknowledge too many sources than too few.

Plagiarism, as defined above, is considered a serious academic offense. According to Connecticut statute, plagiarism is a criminal act and classified as a Class "B" misdemeanor. The teacher, in conference with an administrator, will exercise his/her professional judgment when determining an appropriate penalty for a project that has been plagiarized. The nature of the penalty should be relative to the magnitude of the offense. Examples of penalties that will be invoked are: a zero for the project, an "F" for the course, and/or referral to the proper authorities. The teacher and administrator will determine if the student may be permitted to complete the paper properly, or write an entire new paper properly. These and other penalties will not be imposed when the classroom teacher determines that the sources in a paper have been mis-cited. The teacher with the administration will determine the extent of grade reduction and possible suspension or referral to authorities. (Obtained from Tunxis Community College Handbook)
