Dorchester County Public Schools Visual Arts Teachers Offer 'Art 4 All' at the 38th Annual Dorchester Center for the Arts Showcase

Dorchester County Public Schools visual arts teachers offered a variety of art opportunities for children and adults alike on September 28 at the Dorchester Center for the Arts Showcase in Cambridge, Maryland. The booth offered free face painting and make-and-take beaded bracelets. Visitors to the outdoor street festival could also choose from a variety of props and costumes and have their picture taken in front of a hand-painted background to commemorate the event.

Dorchester County art students also supported the district's participation. Mace's Lane Middle School's art enrichment group, led by Ms. Kate Squire, designed and painted the photo background. Cambridge-South Dorchester High School National Art Honor Society students, led by Ms. Denise Davis-Wright, offered free face painting. Other schools who offered free activities include Maple Elementary, led by visual arts specialist Ms. Nancy Hebb and Choptank Elementary, led by visual arts specialist Ms. Alisha Johnson. A special thanks to Mr. Mike James, Cambridge-South Dorchester High School theatre teacher, for supplying props and costumes.

This 'Art 4 All' display is one of a variety of efforts of the district Fine Arts department to fulfill its mission pledge to provide Fine Arts instructional programs that appropriately challenge ALL students to become well-rounded consumers, producers, and advocates for the arts. Donations made in-kind at the Showcase will be used to purchase art supplies and to off-set National Art Honor Society fees.
