

Anthem* by Ayn Rand: Ch. 1-6 Conflict Storyboard

Conflict is the action that builds suspense and keeps the story or novel moving along.
Without conflict, the story would drag and fail to hold the reader's attention.

- You will need to fold your papers to create four columns. Then fold it in half to divide those columns in half. Then trace the lines to create the chart that is at the bottom of this page.
- At the top of each box, write the chapter number(s), whether the main conflict is internal or external, and the type of conflict. Write a complete, well-written sentence that summarizes the most important conflict that occurs in each chapter(s). Place this information in the boxes as shown in the sample drawing below.

Internal Conflict

Man vs. Self

External Conflict

Man vs. Nature

Man vs. Society

Man vs. Man

- In the bottom of each box, draw a detailed picture that illustrates the CONFLICT described at the top of the box.
- ✓ Your drawings must be exceptionally detailed and NO WHITE SPACE VISIBLE! You should use color or very detailed black and white drawings. I am not grading your artistic ability, but rather the accuracy of your illustrations.
- ✓ Your sentences must be complete, well-written and accurately explain the conflict occurring in the chapter(s).
- ✓ You will be graded on the accuracy of illustrations (10 points per box), and the accuracy and quality of the required information in the top of each box (10 points per box).
- ✓ You will also be graded on overall neatness, creativity, accuracy of information, and effort (10 points), and clear evidence that you read and understood the story (10 points).
- ✓ Write your name and class period on the back of your paper.

WARNING: If your storyboard is in any way identical to another student's storyboard, you will both receive a zero for plagiarism. Please do your own work and do not work with another student.
