COURSE DESCRIPTION

The sixth grade curriculum is designed to ensure students' readiness for high school. The curriculum includes richer texts and more challenging and sophisticated writing tasks and projects; additionally, there is a greater emphasis on individual responsibility.

The CCGPS Core Curriculum for Grade 6 incorporates activities and strategies recommended by the State of Georgia, National Standards, and Performance Standards Frameworks. Use of these and other effective strategies ensures that teaching in Henry County Public Schools results in high caliber evidence of student learning that is aligned to the Common Core Georgia Performance Standards.

READING/LITERATURE

During a ninety-minute period, students work in many or all strands of the English Language Arts Curriculum under the Common Core Georgia Performance Standards: reading, writing, conventions, listening, speaking, and viewing.

To further core curriculum goals, selected novels and texts are used in all middle school courses at the same grade level. There is not one overall core text, but Elements of Literature (a Holt Rinehart Winston publication) is used as a resource; novels will vary based on availability and student needs. During both semesters the primary focus will be on both Informational Text and Literary Text. Use of personalized learning/ differentiated instruction ensures that the needs of all learners are met.

Independent Reading

Reading across the curriculum is also an important component of instruction. Research shows that the more students read, the better they become academically. Our students are expected to read, both informational and fictional texts in a variety of genres and modes of discourse, including technical texts related to various subject areas.

Additionally, they may be required to maintain records of books read using individual book logs and demonstrate comprehension of selected texts through the presentation of individual book projects. Silent reading time may be scheduled in class; however, students are expected to read nightly at home.

Reading comprehension skills and strategies are also explicitly taught at the middle school level within daily Independent Reading Workshops. While engaging in reading mini-lessons, reading self selected texts, or partaking in individual reading conferences with teachers, students develop an appreciation for reading while acquiring the habits and behaviors necessary for academic success.

WRITING

Students write in a variety of informal (journals, class notes) and formal (narrative, expository, persuasive/argumentative, and technical) modes, for a variety of purposes and audiences. In addition to teaching the form and structure of each mode, writing instruction emphasizes grammar, usage and conventions. Using mini-lessons and writing workshops, grammar is taught in the context of student writing and reading and explicitly.

LISTENING, SPEAKING, AND VIEWING

Expectations for listening, speaking, and viewing behavior are explicitly taught and modeled for students. Opportunities to practice these skills include whole-class and small group discussion, community projects, field trips, speakers, oral presentations, student-to-teacher conferences, and peer-to-peer conversations. Strategic use of electronic, film, and video resources enrich cultural and media literacy while helping students to grow into critically aware consumers and participants in American society.
