

HAWAI'I COMMUNITY SCHOOLS

In Hawai'i, community schools are innovative, thriving hubs of learning in which partnerships and collaboration create a'o mai a'o aku, reciprocal relationships between learners and place, content and context, and schools and communities.

Together We Lift Students, Families & Schools

Families & Students are not just recipients of services, they are key partners, contributors and problem solvers at the school. With their lived experience and wisdom, families and students inform strategies and programs that lead to transformational change.

Community School Coordinators (CSCs) are the bridge between families, schools, and communities. They help schools integrate and align services and resources to achieve the school's goals and vision.

We share kuleana, we collaborate, coordinate and co-create

Community School Hui is a leadership team of school administrators, teachers, CPs, students, families, and the CSC. Together they plan and implement the Community School strategy and create innovative solutions that leads to better student and family outcomes.

Community Partners (CPs) include afterschool providers, healthcare organizations, local businesses, faith-based organizations, social service providers, local community members, and others who provide services and resources to meet family and student needs.

Foundation

Conditions for thriving community schools

- Strong Pilina / Relational trust
- Stakeholder engagement

- Sharp focus on equity
- Continuous improvement

- Nā Hopena A'o - grounded in Hawai'i

- Collective buy-in and shared vision

- Capacity-building