Teen Health Matters!

Hawai'i schools are providing a new community mental health resource, as an addition to our school-based supports. Click here for more information.

ParentTeen Connect: is a free resource for parents that provides expert advice and practical tools for dealing with real parent-teen issues. ParentTeenConnect.org interviewed parents and teens from across the country about the issues that cause conflict in their lives, including screen time, independence, responsibility, and communication. Parenting expert Dr. Laura Kastner gives advice on how to tackle these issues. Using these interviews and Dr. Kastner's expertise, we created a website especially for teens and their caregivers, where they can hear from real families, get expert advice, and learn about practical tools to help them connect and communicate with each other.

Hearing Loss and What Causes It

A number of conditions can lead to hearing loss. The most common condition causing hearing loss in adults is presbycusis, a gradual, age-related reduction in the ability to hear high-pitched sounds. The second most common condition, noise-induced hearing loss, is caused by one-time exposure to extremely loud sounds, or by exposure to sounds of high decibels over months or years.

Hearing loss caused by noise can occur in people of any age. It may develop suddenly or gradually, depending on the source and intensity of the noise. Noise can affect hearing in several ways.

Acoustic trauma occurs when a sudden, extremely loud sound, such as an explosion, a gunshot, or a firecracker occurs close to the ear. This type of injury produces severe, and sometimes permanent hearing loss.

Temporary threshold shift occurs when loud sounds (such as from a rock concert) causes a temporary ringing and/or muffled hearing. These effects usually don't last more than a few hours, although they may sometimes last several days or weeks. Repeated exposure to sounds that cause temporary threshold shifts can gradually lead to permanent noise-induced hearing loss.

Noise-induced hearing loss—is the result of repeated, frequent exposure to loud or moderately loud sounds over a long period of time. Example, blasting a mp3 player or iPad to your ears.

SAY WHAT? Hearing Loss Prevention

The safest way to protect hearing is to wear ear plugs when around loud noises. Ear plugs lower the noise level, but they won't eliminate the sound. There are protectors that lower the sound enough to be safe but allow speech to be heard at a comfortable level.

There are hundreds of special ear plugs and earmuffs. Some ear plugs are pre-molded and others can be molded to fit the ears. Earmuffs come with large and small ear cups, different kinds of headbands and different types of ear cushions. The time it takes to adjust to wearing hearing protectors is no different than the time it takes to get used to wearing other safety equipment.

Prevent noise-induced hearing loss by always wearing ear plugs when around loud noises. The louder the noise level and the longer the exposure, the greater the risk of hearing loss.

Remember once hearing loss occurs it is permanent and irreversible.

BE AWARE! PROTECT YOUR HEARING!

How loud is too loud?

Hearing loss is caused by both the level of the noise and the duration of the exposure. Sound is measured in decibels (dB). A normal conversation takes place at 60 dB. Prolonged or repeated exposure to noise above 85 dB can cause hearing loss. If the average level of noise in a workplace over an eight-hour period is 85 dB or higher, there is a risk of hearing loss. Chainsaws, hammer drills and bulldozers ring in at over 100 dB.

Noise-induced hearing loss is usually permanent and cannot be reversed. Both presbycusis and noise-induced hearing loss result in what is called sensorineural hearing loss, which occurs when the delicate hair cells in the inner ear that translate sound waves into nerve impulses are damaged either by aging or abuse. A small amount of damage may have no effect on hearing, but with repeated exposure to noise, more hair cells are damaged resulting in hearing loss. Hair cells do not grow back once they are damaged.

The loudness of a sound is measured in units called decibels (dB). Loud noises over 85 dB can damage the inner ear hair cells permanently.
