School Overview

“Pursuing Excellence through the Arts”

Martha Ellen Stilwell School of the Arts is the newest constructed high school in Clayton County. Located in Jonesboro, Georgia, a suburb of metropolitan Atlanta, the school sits adjacent to the Clayton County Performing Arts Center.

Martha Ellen Stilwell was an influential pioneer for the arts. She was an educator in the Clayton County School System and was the first Fine Arts Coordinator for the school district. She originated the now-internationally renowned Spivey Hall Children's Choir. The work of Martha Ellen Stilwell continues to promote excellence in academic growth and social development.

Martha Ellen Stilwell School of the Arts opened its doors in August 2014 to educate students in the Clayton County School System. Built to meet the needs of a rapidly growing fine arts community, this state-of-the-art facility is home to grades 9-12 students with an enrollment of approximately 600. Under the leadership of Dr. Michael H. Robinson, a distinguished faculty and staff has been assembled to serve the school community. The parents, students and staff of Martha Ellen Stilwell School of the Arts seek to build a world-class school that is internationally competitive in academics and the arts. The students, staff and school community will have a school facility that will prepare them for the demands of the 21st century and beyond.

Martha Ellen Stilwell School of the Arts fine arts course progression will provide all students with a challenging learning opportunity that will ensure they will be able to compete globally upon graduating from high school. All courses are geared toward a rigorous “college prep” curriculum supported by engaging and relevant instruction. During the 2016-2017 school year Martha Ellen Stilwell School of the Arts will offer fine art courses in the areas of dance, theatre, vocal music, orchestra, band, guitar, piano, and visual arts. Students will attend field trips and participate in performances and competitions. In addition, students will work with professionals to become familiar with careers in their chosen performance area. Preparing for auditions and submitting scholarship applications for college will be included as part of the curriculum. Students will also have access to the Clayton County Performing Arts Center for instruction, technical training, and performances.

THE COUNTY

LOCATED just south of Atlanta, Clayton County offers its residents the best of metropolitan living. With the heart of the South's great city only a few minutes away, Clayton County residents have access to the finest restaurants, theaters, museums, shopping malls, recreation and fitness centers, and nightlife entertainment. Perhaps no other county in Georgia offers residents the advantages of the big city, while maintaining its small town charm. Clayton County's proximity to four interstate highways and the fact that it is home to Hartsfield International Airport (one of the world's largest and busiest airports) make it convenient for people on the go. But when it is time to wind down, residents enjoy the tranquility offered by life in the suburbs among numerous lakes and pine trees. Add to that the reasonably priced housing, and it is easy to see why Clayton County is the best place to live.
