

Text Complexity Training for ELA Elementary

Adapted from Matt Copeland's Presentation
for Delaware in May, 2012

Theresa Bennett, ELA Education Associate
Delaware Department of Education
theresa.bennett@doe.k12.de.us

Outcomes

1. Understand reading standard #10.
2. Understand the CCSS text complexity model.
3. Practice using the quantitative measures tools.
4. Practice using the qualitative rubrics for both literary and informational texts.
5. Analyze reader and task considerations and scaffolding possibilities for texts.
6. Practice generating a final recommendation form (i.e., the “placemat”).
7. Generate a list of possible next steps

Materials

Electronic copies of all of today's materials, including the handouts and PowerPoint, are available at the following URL:

Activity #1

The Old Red Barn

As a small group, read “The Old Red Barn” and answer the three questions provided at the bottom of the page...

The Old Red Barn

By Jane Ragains

- 1 The old red barn sat tall and proud in the farmyard. It had seen many cold snowy winters, and just as many hot, humid summers. The barn had known many families of animals over the years.
- 2 Now the red paint had worn to a grayish brown. The tin roof had a few holes...some larger than others. The large double doors hung unevenly on rusty hinges. There was a sadness to the barn's majesty.
- 3 Car doors slammed and a family with three children began to walk around. There was an old house that looked much like the barn. Several windows needed replacing. The doors were also hanging on their hinges. The big porch held several rockers that beckoned the mother and the smallest of the children to settle down for a short rest. The old red barn could see smiles on their faces.
- 4 At last, the barn thought. A family wants this place again. But, just then, the barn noticed the man walking around the house. A frown had settled on his face. He shook his head as he called out to the rest of the family, "This just won't do. There is too much work. This house is falling down. It wouldn't be safe. Besides, repairing it would take more money than we have right now."
- 5 The children urged, "Look a little more, Papa. Maybe you'll change your mind."
- 6 Reluctantly, Papa started toward the old red barn. He walked around the structure, looking at

Discussion

- On a scale of 1 to 10, how would you rate the overall complexity of this text?
- What features of this text support your rating of its complexity?
- At what grade level might this text be appropriate for instruction? Why?

Video Overview of Text Complexity

Text Complexity – Why Is This Important?

- Complexity of texts students are expected to read is below what is required to achieve college and career readiness:
 - High school textbooks have declined in all subject areas over the last several decades
 - Average length of sentences in K–8 textbooks has declined from 20 to 14 words
 - Vocabulary demands have declined since the 1960s:
 - 8th grade textbooks = former 5th grade texts
 - 12th grade anthologies = former 7th grade texts
- Complexity of college and career texts has remained steady or increased, resulting in a gap

Text Complexity Gap

Why Should We Worry about This Gap?

- Too many students are reading at too low a level (<50% of high school graduates can read sufficiently complex texts)
- The complexity of what students can read and comprehend is the single greatest predictor of success in college (ACT study)
 - Question type (main idea, word meanings, details) is NOT the chief differentiator
 - Question level (higher order vs. lower order; literal vs. inferential) is NOT the chief differentiator either

Text Complexity Grade Bands and Associated Lexile Ranges

Text Complexity Grade Band in the Standards	Old Lexile	Lexile Ranges Aligned to CCR Expectations
K – 1	N/A	N/A
2 – 3	450 – 725	420 – 820
4 – 5	645 – 845	740 – 1010
6 – 8	860 – 1010	925 – 1185
9 – 10	960 – 1115	1050 – 1335
11 – CCR	1070 – 1220	1185 - 1385

How Do We Address This Gap?

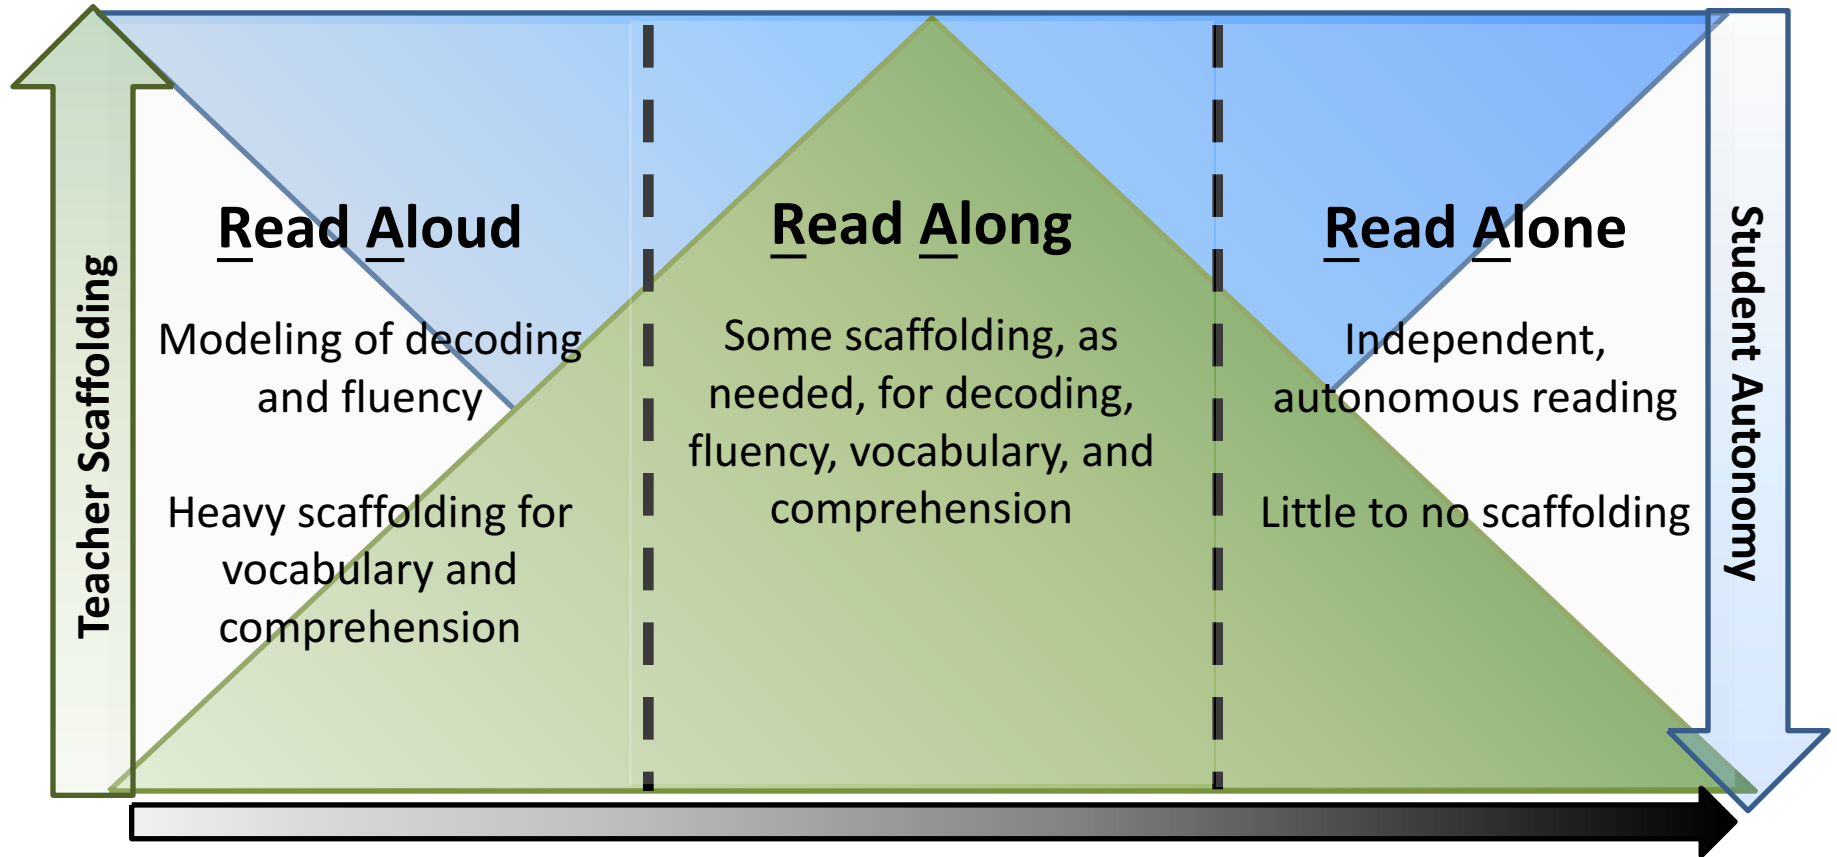

A Visual Representation of the Range and Complexity of Text in the Existing Core Compared to the Common Core*

*Gary L. Williamson (2006) found a 250 (Lexile) gap between the difficulty of end-of-high school and college texts—a gap equivalent to 1.5 standard deviations and more than the Lexile difference between grade 4 and grade 8 texts" (Common Core, Appendix A, p. 2).

How Should Instruction Address Text Complexity?

RA! RA! RA! Reading!

Gradual Release of Responsibility (I do, we do, you do)...

Areas of Emphasis for Instruction

1. Building knowledge through a balance of literary and informational texts.
2. Reading, writing, and discussion grounded in evidence from text, both literary and informational.
3. Regular practice (“productive struggle”) with complex text and its academic vocabulary.

R.CCR.10 Read and comprehend complex literary and informational texts independently and proficiently.

Kindergarten	First Grade	Second Grade
RI.K.10 – Actively engage in group reading activities with purpose and understanding .	RI.1.10 – With prompting and support, read informational texts appropriately complex for grade 1.	RI.2.10 – By the end of the year, read and comprehend informational texts, including history/social studies, science, and technical texts, in the grades 2-3 text complexity band proficiently, with scaffolding as needed at the high end of the range.

Activity #2: Discussion!

With an elbow partner, interpret these two standard statements:

- What does this mean to you?
- How does this affect instruction and student learning?

Be prepared to share your thoughts...

Guiding Questions

So...

What do the Common Core State Standards mean by text complexity?

What is a text complexity band?

and

How do we ensure the texts our students are reading are in the appropriate text complexity band?

CCSS Text Complexity Model

Text complexity is defined by:

1. Quantitative measures – readability and other scores of text complexity often best measured by computer software.
2. Qualitative measures – levels of meaning, structure, language conventionality and clarity, and knowledge demands often best measured by an attentive human reader.
3. Reader and Task considerations – background knowledge of reader, motivation, interests, and complexity generated by tasks assigned often best made by educators employing their professional judgment.

Determining Text Complexity

A Four-step Process:

Determine the quantitative measures of the text.

Analyze the qualitative measures of the text.

Reflect upon the reader and task considerations.

Recommend placement in the appropriate text complexity band.

Step 1: Quantitative Measures

Measures such as:

Word length

Word frequency

Word difficulty

Sentence length

Text length

Text cohesion

Step 1: Quantitative Measures

Let's imagine we want to see where a text falls on the quantitative measures “leg” of the text complexity triangle, using either the Lexile text measure or the ATOS book level (or both).

For illustrative purposes, let's choose Harper Lee's 1960 novel To Kill a Mockingbird.

Step 2: Qualitative Measures

Because the factors for literary texts are different from information texts, these two rubrics contain different content. However, the formatting of each document is exactly the same. And because these factors represent continua rather than discrete stages or levels, numeric values are not associated with these rubrics. Instead, four points along each continuum are identified: high, middle high, middle low, and low.

Step 2: Qualitative Measures

Questions to Consider in Planning for Instructional Scaffolding

On the back side of each rubric is list of springboard questions to help educators begin thinking about the kinds of instructional scaffolding the text may also require.

Questions to Consider in Planning for Instructional Scaffolding of Literary Text:

Meaning:

- Would spending time helping students to understand the multiple layers/levels of meaning present in the text be appropriate?
- Will students know in advance what they are expected to do with the information they gain from reading this text (i.e., summarize, gather and apply details, analyze, synthesize, create)?

Text Structure:

- Would graphic organizers or other aids be appropriate in making the structure of the text visible to students?
- Would a partial plotline, cast of characters, or some other text-based aid be appropriate in deciphering the structure of the text?
- Would previewing and discussing the graphics included with the text prior to reading be appropriate?

Language Features:

- Would a review of figurative, abstract, or ironic language and a modeling of how that type of language might be interpreted be appropriate?
- Would glossing certain vocabulary (particularly multiple meaning words that extend across other subject matter content areas, i.e. Tier 2 words) prior to reading be appropriate?

Knowledge Demands:

- What background knowledge needs to be introduced (or re-introduced) to facilitate reading success that will not supplant the actual information gained from the reading experience?
- What explicit references and/or allusions to other texts might require additional resources/opportunities for students to explore?

General:

- In what ways might collaborative groupings of students during the reading process be appropriate?

Step 2: Qualitative Measures

So...

How is the rubric used?

And how would To Kill a Mockingbird fare when analyzed through the lens of the Literary Text Rubric?

Step 2: Qualitative Measures

Our initial placement of To Kill a Mockingbird into a text complexity band changed when we examined the qualitative measures.

Remember, however, that we have completed only the first two legs of the text complexity triangle.

The reader and task considerations still remain.

Step 2: Qualitative Measures

Activity #3: Your Turn!

Using the rubrics for literary and informational text, analyze the qualitative measures of the following titles:

- “The Old Red Barn” (literary text)—680L
- “The Desert” (informational text)— 790L

Discuss your results as a small group. Debrief large group.

Step 3: Reader and Task Considerations

Considerations such as:

- Motivation
- Knowledge and experience
- Purpose for reading
- Complexity of task assigned regarding text
- Complexity of questions asked regarding text

Step 3: Reader and Task Considerations

Questions for Professional Reflection on Reader and Task Considerations:

The questions provided in this resource are meant to spur teacher thought and reflection upon the text, students, and any tasks associated with the text.

Questions for Professional Reflection on Reader and Task Considerations

Cognitive Capabilities

- Does the reader possess the necessary attention to read and comprehend this specific text?
- Will the reader be able to remember and make connections among the various details presented in this specific text?
- Does the reader possess the necessary critical/analytic thinking skills to understand the relationships between the main idea, purpose, and/or theme of the text and the various details used to support that main idea, purpose, and/or theme?
- Will this specific text help to develop the attention, memory, and critical/analytic thinking skills necessary for future reading endeavors?

Reading Skills

- Does the reader possess the necessary inferencing skills to “read between the lines” and make connections among elements that may not be explicit in this specific text?
- Does the reader possess the necessary visualization skills to imagine what is occurring or what is being described in this specific text?
- Does the reader possess the necessary questioning skills to challenge the ideas being presented in this text and consider those ideas from multiple points of view?
- Does the reader possess the necessary comprehension strategies to manage the material in this specific text?
- Will this specific text help to develop the inferencing skills, visualization skills, questioning skills, and comprehension strategies necessary for future reading endeavors?

Motivation and Engagement with Task and Text

- Will the reader understand the purpose—which might shift over the course of the reading experience—for reading this specific text (i.e., skimming, studying to retain content, close reading for analysis, etc.)?
- Will the reader be interested in the content of this specific text?

- Will the reader be interested in the content of this specific text?

The questions included here are largely open-ended questions without single, correct answers, but help educators to think through the implications of using a particular text in the classroom.

Step 3: Reader and Task Considerations

What aspects of the text will likely pose the most challenge for my students?

- Content or theme concerns or challenges?
- Text structure challenges?
- Language feature challenges?
- Knowledge and experience demands?
- Motivation for and interest in the text?

Step 3: Reader and Task Considerations

What Common Core State Standards should I focus on when teaching this text?

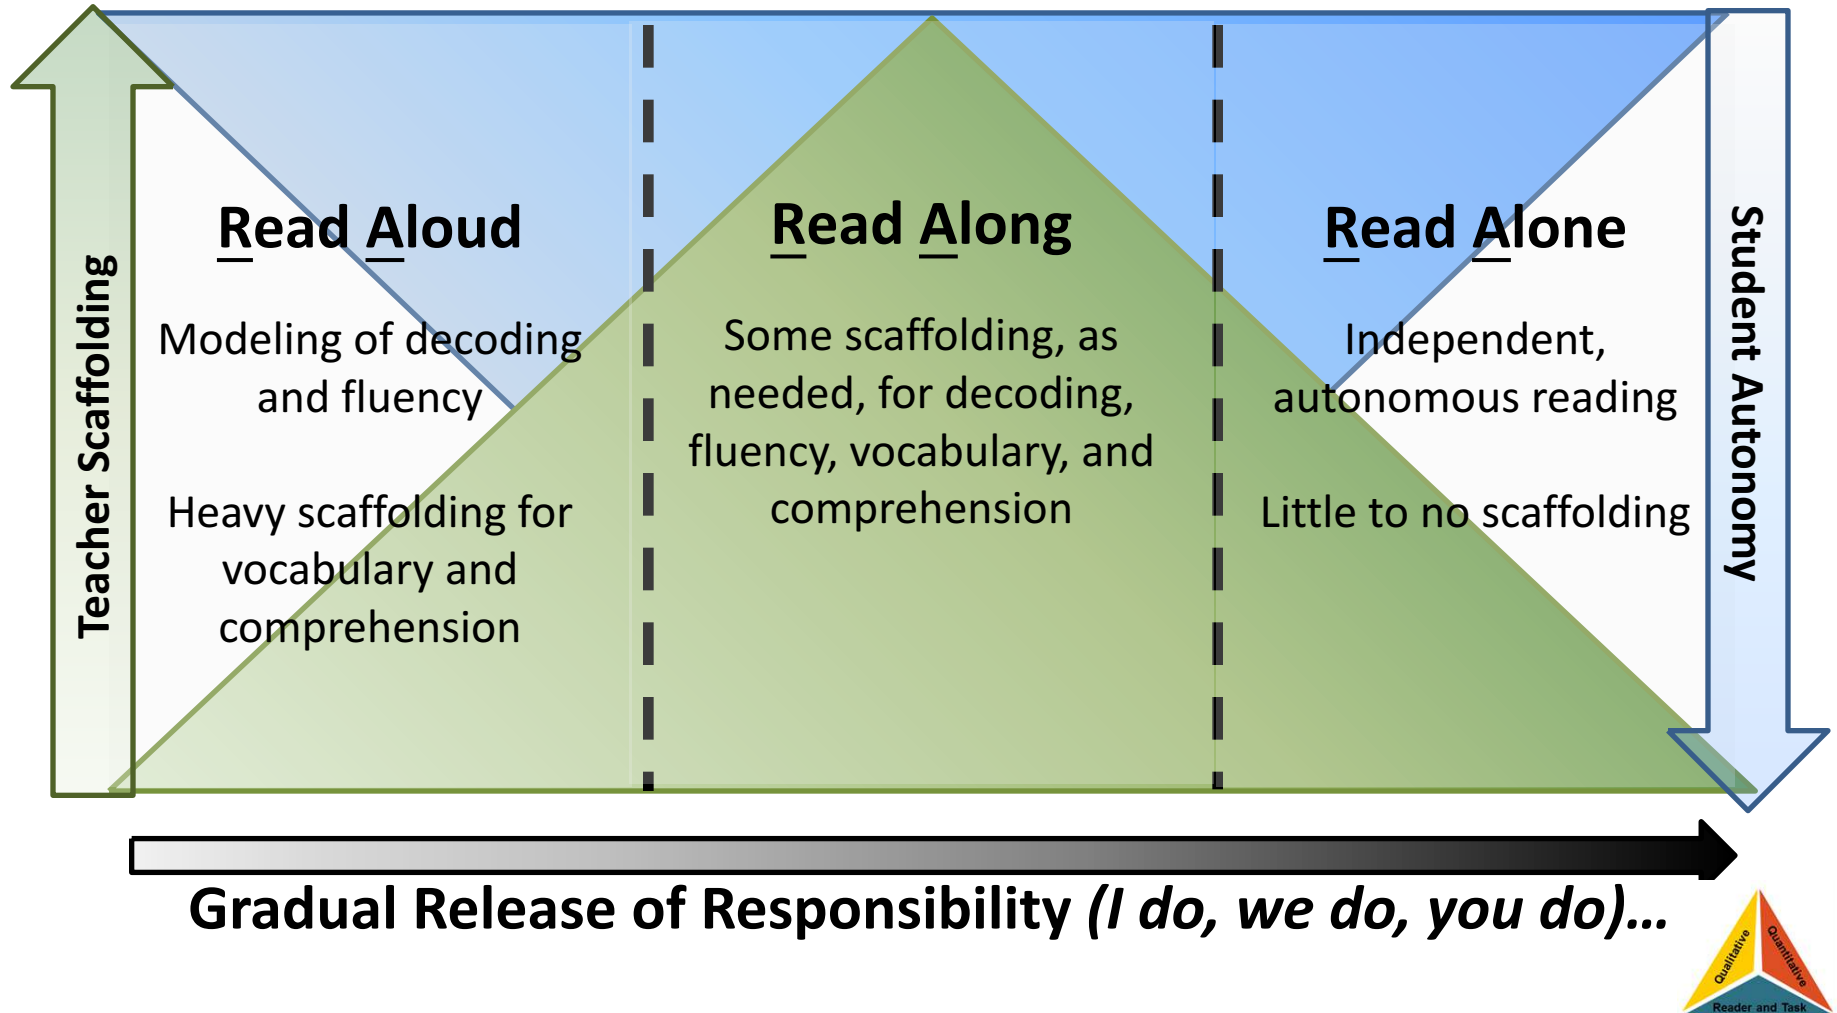

- What are natural areas of focus for this text?
- With what standards do my students need the most practice?

Will the complexity of any before, during and after reading tasks or the complexity of any questions asked about the text interfere with the reading experience?

What supports do I need to provide so that all of my students (even those who are struggling readers) can access the text?

How Should Instruction Address Text Complexity?

RA! RA! RA! Reading!

Step 3: Reader and Task Considerations

Based upon our examination of the Reader and Task Considerations, we have completed the third leg of the text complexity model and are now ready to recommend a final placement within a text complexity band.

Step 4: Recommended Placement

After reflecting upon all three legs of the text complexity model we can make a final recommendation of placement within a text and begin to document our thinking for future reference.

Text Complexity Analysis of To Kill a Mockingbird by Harper Lee

Recommended Complexity Band: 9-10

Qualitative Measures

Meaning/Purpose: (Briefly explain the levels of meaning (Literary Text) or purpose (Informational text).)

The book has multiple levels of meaning. Set in Alabama, the female main character Scout Finch struggles to understand issues of race and prejudice when her lawyer father defends a black man accused of raping a white woman.

Text Structure: (Briefly describe the structure, organization, and other features of the text.) Although the story has a largely simple structure with a straightforward writing style, several issues complicate the narration and structure. Scout's narration is as an adult reflecting back on a few pivotal years of her childhood; flashback is used throughout. And at several points it seems as though the narration is from the point of view of a less-reliable Scout still in her childhood.

Language Features: (Briefly describe the conventions and clarity of the language used in the text, including the complexity of the vocabulary and sentence structures.) The characters speak in easily readable, conversational language. Some slang is indicative of the time period in which the novel is set, and there is some dialect.

Knowledge Demands: (Briefly describe the knowledge demands the text requires of students.) Higher level themes of justice, prejudice, and civil rights are implied. Thinking at deeper levels is required to contemplate the personal, moral, and ethical struggles of the characters as set against the culture and society of the time period.

Recommended Placement

Briefly explain the recommended placement of the text in a particular grade band.

Although the quantitative measures suggest placement in the 4th-5th grade level text complexity band, the qualitative measures and reader and task considerations suggest that the novel is best placed at the 9th-10th grade complexity band. The Common Core Standards Text Exemplars also places the novel in the 9th-10th grade complexity band.

Text Description

Briefly describe the text:

To Kill a Mockingbird is a Pulitzer Prize winning novel set in Alabama in the 1930s; the novel explores racial injustice, moral integrity, and the destruction of innocence.

Quantitative Measure

Lexile or Other Quantitative Measure of the Text:

The ATOS formula (used with the Accelerated Reader program) identifies this title as having a book level of 5.6. A Lexile measure for this novel is 870L. Although the Lexile and ATOS levels fall in the 4th-5th grade text complexity band, the complexity of the book's theme, the issue of rape, and the length of the book would indicate that higher level reading skills are necessary, along with a consideration for the maturity level of the reader regarding the book's subject matter.

Considerations for Reader and Task

Potential Challenges this Text Poses:

These are to be determined locally with reference to such variables as a student's motivation, knowledge, and experiences as well as purpose and the complexity of the task assigned and the question posed. However, the complexity of the book's theme, the issue of rape, and the length of the book would indicate that higher level reading skills are necessary, along with a consideration for the maturity level of the reader regarding the book's subject matter.

Major Instructional Areas of Focus (3-4 CCS Standards) for this Text:

RL.9-10.2, RL.9-10.3, RL.9-10.5, RL.9-10.7

Differentiation/Supports for Students:

Educators might want to examine the following elements or issues: social and historical events of the late 50s, early 60s, and issues surrounding racial stereotyping and prejudice in the Deep South at this same time period.

Step 4: Recommended Placement

Activity #4: Your Turn!

As a small group...

- Review the text and qualitative rubric you worked on earlier.
- Begin documenting a rationale for the recommended placement of that text on the recommended placement template.
- Debrief whole group

Step 4: Recommended Placement and Next Steps

Activity #5: Discussion!

As a small group...

- How might classroom teachers make use of the recommended placement forms?
- How might administrators make use of the recommended placement forms?
- What steps can we take to ensure that students encounter appropriate grade-level complex text?

Be prepared to share your thoughts...

Final Thoughts

Sarah Wessling Brown

- How do we ramp up complexity?
 - Take a text that is used frequently and make the task more challenging.
 - Take a task that is typically challenging and scaffold it with more accessible (shorter) text.
 - Increase complexity by comparing text.

Final Thoughts

Sarah Wessling Brown

- Text complexity is relevant to all teachers, all readers.
- Text complexity is never determined by a single characteristic.
- Teachers must make purposeful matches between text, task, and reader.
