Why did Georgia apply for the ESEA Flexibility Waiver?

In September of 2011, the United States Department of Education invited states to seek a waiver from various sections of ESEA due to consensus from across the nation that certain aspects of the law encouraged some states to set lower academic standards, failed to recognize or reward schools showing growth in student achievement, and did little to promote the teaching profession or recognize the most effective teachers.

Origin of ESEA Flexibility Request

The GaDOE proposed an alternative supplemental intervention that will allow the district greater flexibility in designing an extended learning program tailored to the needs of their school that would have the capacity to serve more students in need of such additional support.

Reward Schools

•Reward Schools' designations will replace Distinguished Schools and Distinguished Districts designations. Reward Schools will be identified annually. There are two ways a Title I school may be identified as a Reward School. A Title I school may be classified as either a Highest-Performing school or a High-Progress School.

Priority Schools

•Priority Schools will be identified every three years. These schools are among the lowest five percent of Title I schools in the state based on the achievement of the All Students group in terms of proficiency on the statewide assessments and have demonstrated a lack of progress on those assessments over a number of years in the All Students group, are Title I participating or Title I eligible

Focus Schools

- Focus Schools will be identified every three years. These schools are Title I schools that have the largest within-school gaps between the highest-achieving subgroup or subgroups and the lowest-achieving subgroup or subgroups or, at the high school level, have the largest within-school gaps in graduation rates (within-school-gaps Focus Schools) and are Title I high schools with a graduation rate less than 60 percent over two years that are not identified as Priority Schools (low-graduation-rate Focus Schools).

Alert Schools

- Alert Schools will be identified annually. These schools are both Title I and non-Title I schools that fall into one of the three following categories using ESEA disaggregated

What is a Flexible Learning Program?

Flexible Learning Program

- The FLP plan must provide students at risk of failing with additional learning opportunities that will assist them in achieving the skills necessary to pass the state assessments.
