Vocabulary Unit 1-2 Review

1 The doctor became more and more fearful that her patient's weakened condition would (predispose, diffuse) him to pneumonia. 2 A man of towering pride and (muddled, unbridled) ambition, he stopped at nothing to achieve his goals. 3 The two sides in the lawsuit reached a (deadlock, debris) when neither was willing to meet the other partway. 4 If I don't get a job, I won't have the money to do what I want; and if I do get a job, I won't have time! What a (dilemma, brigand)! 5 Once Great Britain had given up her vast overseas empire, she found that she had also (relinquished, effaced) her position as world power. 6 Before I make an investment, I study all aspects of the situation in a most methodical and (circumspect, opinionated) manner. 7 Developing nations in all parts of the world face the (perennial, spurious) problem of gaining a higher level of economic growth. 8 The idea of a (brigand, salvager) like Robin Hood who helps the poor appeals strongly to the popular imagination. 9 In order to capture fleeing criminals, the police (admonished, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. 10 The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. 11 Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). 12 Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13 I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14 The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15 The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16 The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were	•	ete the sentence with one of the words in parentheses. Each word will be used only weakened condition would (predispose, diffuse) him to pneumonia. A man of towering pride and (muddled, unbridled) ambition, he stopped at nothing to achieve his goals. The two sides in the lawsuit reached a (deadlock, debris) when neither was willing to meet the other partway. If I don't get a job, I won't have the money to do what I want; and if I do get a job, I won't have time! What a (dilemma, brigand)! Once Great Britain had given up her vast overseas empire, she found that she had also (relinquished, effaced) her position as world power. Before I make an investment, I study all aspects of the situation in a most methodical and (circumspect, opinionated) manner. Developing nations in all parts of the world face the (perennial, spurious) problem of gaining a higher level of economic growth. The idea of a (brigand, salvager) like Robin Hood who helps the poor appeals strongly to the popular imagination. In order to capture fleeing criminals, the police (admonished, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. Jadded a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. Many a teenager's room is	once.
2. A man of towering pride and (muddled, unbridled) ambition, he stopped at nothing to achieve his goals. 3. The two sides in the lawsuit reached a (deadlock, debris) when neither was willing to meet the other partway. 4. If I don't get a job, I won't have the money to do what I want; and if I do get a job, I won't have time! What a (dilemma, brigand)! 5. Once Great Britain had given up her vast overseas empire, she found that she had also (relinquished, effaced) her position as world power. 6. Before I make an investment, I study all aspects of the situation in a most methodical and (circumspect, opinionated) manner. 7. Developing nations in all parts of the world face the (perennial, spurious) problem of gaining a higher level of economic growth. 8. The idea of a (brigand, salvager) like Robin Hood who helps the poor appeals strongly to the popular imagination. 9. In order to capture fleeing criminals, the police (admonished, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. 10. The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. 11. Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). 12. Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13. I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it 14. The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15. The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17. Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18. He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the id	1.
stopped at nothing to achieve his goals. The two sides in the lawsuit reached a (deadlock, debris) when neither was willing to meet the other partway. If I don't get a job, I won't have the money to do what I want; and if I do get a job, I won't have time! What a (dilemma, brigand)! Once Great Britain had given up her vast overseas empire, she found that she had also (relinquished, effaced) her position as world power. Before I make an investment, I study all aspects of the situation in a most methodical and (circumspect, opinionated) manner. Developing nations in all parts of the world face the (perennial, spurious) problem of gaining a higher level of economic growth. The idea of a (brigand, salvager) like Robin Hood who helps the poor appeals strongly to the popular imagination. In order to capture fleeing criminals, the police (admonished, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people.
3. The two sides in the lawsuit reached a (deadlock, debris) when neither was willing to meet the other partway. 4. If I don't get a job, I won't have the money to do what I want; and if I do get a job, I won't have time! What a (dilemma, brigand)! 5. Once Great Britain had given up her vast overseas empire, she found that she had also (relinquished, effaced) her position as world power. 6. Before I make an investment, I study all aspects of the situation in a most methodical and (circumspect, opinionated) manner. 7. Developing nations in all parts of the world face the (perennial, spurious) problem of gaining a higher level of economic growth. 8. The idea of a (brigand, salvager) like Robin Hood who helps the poor appeals strongly to the popular imagination. 9. In order to capture fleeing criminals, the police (admonished, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. 10. The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. 11. Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). 12. Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13. I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14. The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15. The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17. Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18. He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people.	2.	A man of towering pride and (muddled, unbridled) ambition, he neither was willing to meet the other partway. If I don't get a job, I won't have the money to do what I want; and if I do get a job, I won't have time! What a (dilemma, brigand)! Once Great Britain had given up her vast overseas empire, she found that she had also (relinquished, effaced) her position as world power. Before I make an investment, I study all aspects of the situation in a most methodical and (circumspect, opinionated) manner. Developing nations in all parts of the world face the (perennial, spurious) problem of gaining a higher level of economic growth. The idea of a (brigand, salvager) like Robin Hood who helps the poor appeals strongly to the popular imagination. In order to capture fleeing criminals, the police (admonished, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. Though all modern scholars accept Macheth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people.
4If I don't get a job, I won't have the money to do what I want; and if I do get a job, I won't have time! What a (dilemma, brigand)! 5Once Great Britain had given up her vast overseas empire, she found that she had also (relinquished, effaced) her position as world power. 6Before I make an investment, I study all aspects of the situation in a most methodical and (circumspect, opinionated) manner. 7Developing nations in all parts of the world face the (perennial, spurious) problem of gaining a higher level of economic growth. 8The idea of a (brigand, salvager) like Robin Hood who helps the poor appeals strongly to the popular imagination. 9In order to capture fleeing criminals, the police (admonished, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. 10The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. 11Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). 12Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 17Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer,	3.	The two sides in the lawsuit reached a (deadlock, debris) when
I do get a job, I won't have time! What a (dilemma, brigand)! 5Once Great Britain had given up her vast overseas empire, she found that she had also (relinquished, effaced) her position as world power. 6Before I make an investment, I study all aspects of the situation in a most methodical and (circumspect, opinionated) manner. 7Developing nations in all parts of the world face the (perennial, spurious) problem of gaining a higher level of economic growth. 8The idea of a (brigand, salvager) like Robin Hood who helps the poor appeals strongly to the popular imagination. 9In order to capture fleeing criminals, the police (admonished, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. 10The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. 11Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). 12Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 17Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer,		neither was willing to meet the other partway.
5. Once Great Britain had given up her vast overseas empire, she found that she had also (relinquished, effaced) her position as world power. 6. Before I make an investment, I study all aspects of the situation in a most methodical and (circumspect, opinionated) manner. 7. Developing nations in all parts of the world face the (perennial, spurious) problem of gaining a higher level of economic growth. 8. The idea of a (brigand, salvager) like Robin Hood who helps the poor appeals strongly to the popular imagination. 9. In order to capture fleeing criminals, the police (admonished, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. 10. The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. 11. Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). 12. Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13. I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14. The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15. The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17. Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18. He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people.	4.	If I don't get a job, I won't have the money to do what I want; and if found that she had also (relinquished, effaced) her position as world power. Before I make an investment, I study all aspects of the situation in a most methodical and (circumspect, opinionated) manner. Developing nations in all parts of the world face the (perennial, spurious) problem of gaining a higher level of economic growth. In order to a (brigand, salvager) like Robin Hood who helps the poor appeals strongly to the popular imagination. In order to capture fleeing criminals, the police (admonished, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. A added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people.
6. Before I make an investment, I study all aspects of the situation in a most methodical and (circumspect, opinionated) manner. 7. Developing nations in all parts of the world face the (perennial, spurious) problem of gaining a higher level of economic growth. 8. The idea of a (brigand, salvager) like Robin Hood who helps the poor appeals strongly to the popular imagination. 9. In order to capture fleeing criminals, the police (admonished, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. 10. The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. 11. Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). 12. Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13. I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14. The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15. The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17. Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18. He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people.	5.	Once Great Britain had given up her vast overseas empire, she
a most methodical and (circumspect, opinionated) manner. Developing nations in all parts of the world face the (perennial, spurious) problem of gaining a higher level of economic growth. The idea of a (brigand, salvager) like Robin Hood who helps the poor appeals strongly to the popular imagination. In order to capture fleeing criminals, the police (admonished, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. All added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. The universe rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people.		found that she had also (relinquished, effaced) her position as world power.
a most methodical and (circumspect, opinionated) manner. Developing nations in all parts of the world face the (perennial, spurious) problem of gaining a higher level of economic growth. The idea of a (brigand, salvager) like Robin Hood who helps the poor appeals strongly to the popular imagination. In order to capture fleeing criminals, the police (admonished, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. All added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. The universe rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people.	6.	Before I make an investment, I study all aspects of the situation in spurious) problem of gaining a higher level of economic growth. 1.	7.
7
8 The idea of a (brigand, salvager) like Robin Hood who helps the poor appeals strongly to the popular imagination. 9 In order to capture fleeing criminals, the police (admonished, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. 10 The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. 11 Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). 12 Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13 I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14 The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15 The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16 The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17 Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18 He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19 Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer, poor appeals strongly to the popular imagination. 9	8.
9In order to capture fleeing criminals, the police (admonished, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. 10The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. 11Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). 12Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer, commandeered) our car and raced after the vanishing truck. 10The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. 11Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). 12Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer, 	9.
 10 The records of our club were in such a (breach, muddle) that we couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. 11 Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). 12 Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13 I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14 The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15 The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16 The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17 Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18 He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19 Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer, couldn't even determine which members had paid their dues. 11Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). 12Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18Many a teenager's point is strewn with the won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer,	10.	, 11Though all modern scholars accept Macbeth as Shakespeare's work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). 12Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18Mhe is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer, work, one or two of the scenes may be (spurious, cumbersome). 12Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18Mere is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer,	11.
 12 Though my memory is getting dimmer and dimmer with the slow passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13 I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14 The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15 The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16 The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17 Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18 He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19 Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer, passage of time, I doubt that the exciting events of my childhood will ever be totally (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13 I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14 The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15 The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16 The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17 Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18 He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19 Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer,	12.
 (predisposed, effaced) from my mind. 13 I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14 The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15 The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16 The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17 Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18 He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19 Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer,
 I added a few drops of food coloring to the liquid and watched as they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer, they slowly (diffused, relinquished) through it. 14The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. 15The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer,	13.
 The water pouring through the (deadlocks, breaches) in the dam threatened the entire valley. The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer, threatened the entire valley. 15The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer,	14.
 15 The rug made such a (cumbersome, perennial) bundle that it took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16 The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17 Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18 He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19 Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer, took four of us to carry it up the stairs. 16The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer,	15.	· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
 The nurse rushed into the hospital corridor to (efface, admonish) the visitors who were creating a disturbance. Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer, 		took four of us to carry it up the stairs.
the visitors who were creating a disturbance. 17Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer,	16.
 17Many a teenager's room is strewn with clothing, CDs, and all sorts of (debris, dilemmas). 18He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer, of (debris, dilemmas). 18He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer,	17.
 18He is so (circumspect, opinionated) that he won't even consider the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer, the ideas or suggestions offered by other people. 19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer,	18.
19Though his partner lost everything, he was able to (commandeer, salvage) a few dollars from the wreckage of the bankrupt business.
	19.
20Some people are subject to sudden seizures, during which their	20.
heads and legs may jerk about in a wild and (unbridled, spasmodic) manner.		