To Parents:

Yearbook is not like any other class! Your student will be responsible for creating a product (the yearbook) and selling it. Students will be responsible to work independently on their spreads and budget their time in order to complete the spreads and meet deadlines. Our deadlines are real, publishing industry deadlines that must be adhered to. Yearbook staff members will have privileges to leave the classroom in order to cover events and take pictures for yearbook spreads. However, if your student takes advantage of those privileges, it will result in deducted points and possible discipline.

Please consider the following expectations from your child in order to be part of the yearbook staff:

- Your child will may need to devote time outside of class and school hours for completion of assigned tasks.
- Your child will be working with specialized equipment/supplies and will be held responsible for any damage and/or waste due to negligence.
- Your child will be responsible for assisting with financial aspects of the publication including book and advertising sales.
- If your child chooses to utilize his/her own camera for picture taking on campus or events, the student is doing so under the district's BYOD policy (Bring Your Own Device).
