

History of Our World
2017-2018 School Year
Grade 6

Message from the Teacher

Our social studies class will be studying world history – from the beginning of human civilization to the present day. Along the way students will learn about the Fertile Crescent, ancient Egypt, Greece, and Rome. Beyond the age of Exploration, they will study the growth of empires and nations, learn about the impact of wars, and examine the development of the world.

One of the first topics we will study is prehistory- the period of time before people recorded events in writing. As you go through your daily activities, look for opportunities to “piece together” history with your child.

Our social studies classes will be taking a closer look at the geography of civilizations we are studying as well. We will study how geography affected the ways civilization developed. From the rich soil to of the Fertile Crescent to the geographic protection of mountains, students will learn about the interrelationships between geography and history. The next time you travel through your community, discuss with your child how physical geography can impact how a town develops.

The study of world history is the study of people. Our exploration of world history will include learning about people who made history. We will also learn about how people in world history, talk about the community today. Look for opportunities to watch or read news reports that focus on challenges people all over the world share.

In the weeks ahead, your child may be talking about projects and activities assigned in social studies. Please take the time to support your child’s learning through discussion and involvement. I hope you will enjoy sharing in this exciting educational journey with your student.

Communication

Communication is key to your student’s success! Please feel free to contact us through phone, e-mail, or your student’s planner. Your student’s daily planner will occasionally contain comments or concerns. Please take time to review your student’s planner on a daily basis.

Course Description

To understand today’s world, we must learn about its past. Ancient civilizations laid strong foundations for modern cultures. The early ages of world history have added greatly to those cultures. During the year, students will learn how the ideas, events, and people of those early ages have shaped our lives today. Students will investigate the affect of geography, belief systems, accomplishments, government and economic activities of the ancient civilizations.

Student Textbooks & Materials

Prentice Hall: History of our World – The Early Ages

Required Student Supplies

It is imperative that students adhere to the Nitschmann COLOR CODED supplies outlined in our sixth grade supply list. This is a tool for teaching organization.

Major Course Objectives

Students will be able to recognize and recall information to the following objectives.

- Understand how physical geography affects the development and growth of societies around the world.

- Analyze how a society's belief system affected its historical accomplishments.
- Evaluate the beliefs and values of people who lived during ancient times.
- Understand how governments formed and developed.
- Examine the development and organization of economic activities.

Major Projects

All social studies projects are designed to provide students with hands-on involvement. Projects call for students to use skills in the cognitive domain to grow their knowledge, comprehension, and critical thinking on a particular topic.

Teacher Homework Policy

The Bethlehem Area School District Board policy states: "Homework is expected to be completed by students outside the school day and can count as much as 10-25% of the student's quarterly report grade." Please make time in your daily schedule to provide an atmosphere, which is conducive for your child to study and help him/her schedule and implement study time. Homework is designed to give meaningful activities that will reinforce classroom concepts. Homework will be given, as the teacher feels necessary. Points will be deducted from a student's homework average if an assignment is late or incomplete.

Students are to write their assignments in their planner.

If you child is absent, it is the student's responsibility to find out what work was missed upon their return. You may request missed work by e-mailing the teacher. Please allow 24 hours for the teacher to gather the missed work.

Teacher Grading Policy

Assignments and grades are available on the Home Access Center (HAC). We encourage you to check the HAC periodically. Grades are issued at each quarterly marking period. Current school year marking periods are listed in the BASD calendar, available on the district website (www.beth.k12.pa.us) Students will receive an interim progress report at the mid-point of each marking period and will also receive a final grade at the conclusion of each quarter.
