

Self Portrait with Name

Materials:

- 12x18 white drawing paper
- Pencil
- Crayons
- Markers

Integration:

- Technology
- Science
- Career

Vocabulary:

- Self Portrait
- Proportion
- Font
- Sclera
- Iris
- Pupil

Directions:

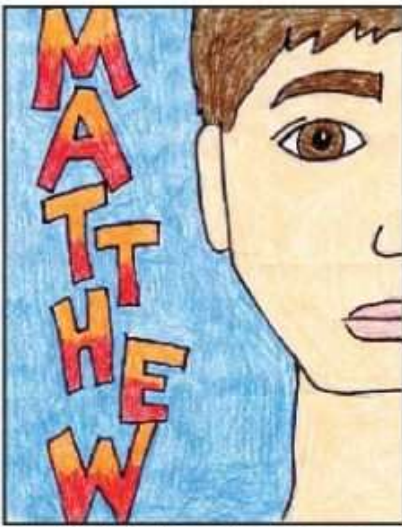

- Fold paper in half three times to divide it into eighths (two columns of four when held vertically)
- Lead students through the steps to create the face in pencil, following the attached tutorial (optional video available)
 - Discuss the parts of the eye, sclera (white), Iris (colored) and Pupil (black, is actually a hole)
 - Show adaptations for long hair, medium hair, short hair
- Discuss how letters can be created to be more interesting than just the artist's handwriting
 - The style of letters is called the font
 - Fonts are also a part of technology, it can be a potential job as an artist in graphic design to design fonts
 - Before technology, however, people would do calligraphy, could doodle on letters, etc
- Demonstrate how to count the letters in the name to find the center, center the name on the middle fold (top to bottom) to help it fit better.
 - In pencil, lightly, have students write their name going down the side of their paper
 - Then they add designs as a part of their name, block letters, bubble letters, patterns, etc
- Once the face and font are laid out in pencil first, students may start to add color.
 - Color the face and self portrait part with crayon, name with marker, and background with crayon. The marker will stand out, creating emphasis on their name
