Amherst County Public Schools
Every Child Every Day

Teacher Notes

ACPS will utilize a theme approach to integrate the English strands of reading, writing, research, and communication. To the extent possible, a variety of genres should be utilized during a unit of study. Best practices include:

- Paired texts (Paired texts can include books, plays, articles, poems, functional text, graphics, or digital media)
- Use of text-dependent questions (QAR)
- Use of inference questions (QAR)
- Use of text-based vocabulary
- Writing components in every lesson
- Frequent research components

ACPS Literacy Plan outlines seven comprehension strategies that will be incorporated during units of study throughout the reading process.

“Strategies are conscious, flexible plans a reader applies to a variety of texts, both narrative and expository. The use of strategies implies awareness, reflection, and interaction between the reader and the author. Strategies do not operate individually or sequentially, but are interrelated and recursive. The goal is the active construction of meaning and the ability to adapt strategies to varying reading demands.” (Vogt & Verga, 1998)

Explicit teaching and modeling of the strategies is necessary to assist students in learning to use them independently to make sense of the text they encounter. See page 2.

- Monitoring Comprehension/Metacognition
- Predicting/Activating Background Knowledge/Schema
- Questioning
- Visualizing
- Determining Importance
- Summarizing & Synthesizing
- Inferencing

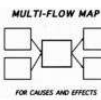

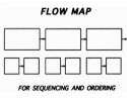

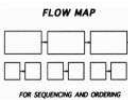

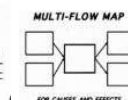

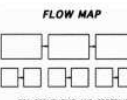

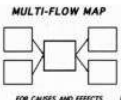

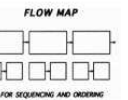

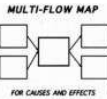

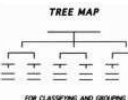

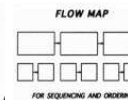

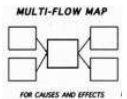

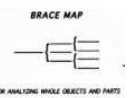

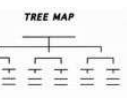

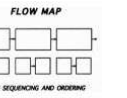

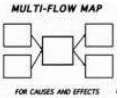

Strategy: How, When & Why

Strategy	How	When	Why
Background Knowledge / Making Connections / Schema	Use what you see or read to think about what you already know about the topic; use this to help you understand what you are reading	Before During After	Gives the reader a willingness to take risks when reading, helps better understand what is being read
Determine Importance	Select what information the author provides you that is most important to help you understand the text	Before After	Allows the reader to select what pieces of text helps them to understand the author's message; relates back to the purpose for reading
Questioning	Use what you see (images, text features) or read to formulate questions that you would like to be able to answer to help you better understand the text	Before During After	Helps the reader make sense of what is read and provides a purpose for reading on or a context for reading
Visualize	Use the words provided by the author to create a mental image to help understand the text	During After	Provides the reader with a scaffold for understanding and allows the words on the page to be seen
Infer / Predict / Draw Conclusions	Use what you know and what you have read to figure out what the author wants you to know or what you think might happen next as a result of what you have read	Before During	Allows the reader to gain more information than what is stated in the text; helps the reader move to the next level of understanding
Summarize / Synthesize	Use the key points to show understanding of what is read by providing details from the reading; use details to apply what was read beyond a factual level	After	Allows the reader to reflect on what was read and show understanding
Self-Monitor / Metacognition	Pay attention to when you don't understand; think about your thinking and fix any confusions while reading by using the other comprehension strategies	During After	Helps the reader to pay attention to what is being read and ensure that comprehension is occurring

ACPS utilizes Thinking Maps in order for students to create mental visual patterns for thinking based on the fundamental thinking processes.

The following are examples of reading skills associated with each of the thinking maps. These can be expanded upon based on teacher discretion.

Predictions	Summarizing (Story Elements, BME, Problem/Solution, Main Idea/Details, etc.)	Making Connections	Ask/Answer Questions

Character Analysis	Fact & Opinion	Context Clues	Author's Purpose

Vocabulary (Affixes, Compound Words, Phonics, Homophones, Synonyms/Antonyms)	Multi-Meaning Words	Locate Information	Cause & Effect

Content Knowledge for Implementation of the Standards

(taken from 2010 VDOE English Curriculum Framework)

Authorship - Who constructed the message?

Format - This is not just the medium being used but also how the creators used specific elements for effect, i.e., color, sound, emphasis on certain words, amateur video, kids' voices.

Audience - Who is the person or persons meant to receive the message? How will different people receive the message?

Content - This is not just the visible content but the embedded content as well which includes underlying assumptions of values or points of view; facts and opinions may be intermixed.

Purpose- Why is the message being sent— is it meant to persuade, inform, entertain, sell, or a combination of these?

Auditory media can be heard (e.g., music, radio shows, podcasts).

Visual media can be viewed (e.g., television, video, Web-based materials, print ads).

Written media includes text (e.g., newspapers, magazines, books, blogs).

Viewpoint - refers to his or her bias or subjectivity toward the subject. In general, a viewpoint can be positive or negative.

Name calling or innuendo – creating a negative attitude; hinting or implying; using loaded, emotional, or slanted language.

Glittering generalities or card stacking – telling only part of the truth; generalizing from a shred of evidence.

Bandwagon – creating a desire to join a large group satisfied with the idea; making one feel left out if not with the crowd.

Testimonials – using the declaration of a famous person or authoritative expert to give heightened credibility.

Appeal to prestige, snobbery, or plain folks – using a spokesperson who appeals to the audience: a well-known or appealing person the audience wants to emulate, a person like the audience members with whom they can identify, a person whose lifestyle appeals to the audience.

Appeal to emotions – connecting with emotions: loyalty, pity, or fear; love of family, peace, or justice.

Simile – figure of speech that uses the words like or as to make comparisons.

Metaphor – figure of speech that implies comparisons.

Personification – figure of speech that applies human characteristics to nonhuman objects.

Hyperbole – intentionally exaggerated figure of speech.

Symbol – word or object that represents something else. For example, a dove stands for peace.

Static – remaining the same during the course of the story.

Dynamic – changing during the course of and as a result of the story.

Inferences - making judgments or drawing conclusions based on what an author has implied.

Initiating event is the incident that introduces the central conflict in a story; it may have occurred before the story opens.

Tone is used to express a writer’s attitude toward the subject.

Voice shows an author’s personality, awareness of audience, and passion for his or her subject. It adds liveliness and energy to writing. Voice is the imprint of the writer — the capacity to elicit a response from the reader.

Mood refers to the emotional atmosphere produced by an author’s use of language.

Point of view is the way an author reveals events and ideas in a story. With an omniscient or “all knowing” point of view, a narrator sees all, hears all, and knows all. By contrast, a limited point of view depicts only what one character or narrator sees, hears, and feels. The point of view may be first person, narrated by someone outside the story or a character within the story. The point of view may also be third person, limited or omniscient, depending on what is known of the story.

Symbol is anything that represents something else, often by indirect association or by the convention of an emblem, token, or word. In both prose and poetry, concrete objects used as symbols stand for larger ideas or feelings. The general characteristic of poetry, i.e., its suggestiveness, makes possible the expression of complex feelings and experiences in a few words. Symbolism, like metaphor, imagery, and allusion, is a powerful instrument for the expression of large worlds of meaning in a few words.

Foreshadowing – the giving of clues to hint at coming events in a story.

Irony – the implication, through plot or character, that the actual situation is quite different from that presented.

Flashback – a return to an earlier time in the course of a narrative to introduce prior information.

Symbolism – the use of concrete and recognizable things to represent ideas.

Haiku – a 17-syllable, delicate, unrhymed Japanese verse, usually about nature.

Limerick – a 5-line, rhymed, rhythmic verse, usually humorous.

Ballad – a songlike narrative poem, usually featuring rhyme, rhythm, and refrain.

Free verse – poetry with neither regular meter nor rhyme scheme.

Couplet – a pair of rhyming lines.

Quatrain – a stanza containing four lines.

Rhyme – recurring identical or similar final word sounds within or at the ends of lines of verse.

Rhythm – the recurring pattern of strong and weak syllabic stresses.

Meter – a fixed pattern of accented and unaccented syllables in lines of fixed length to create rhythm.

Repetition – repeated use of sounds, words, or ideas for effect and emphasis.

Alliteration – repetition of initial sounds, e.g., picked a peck of pickled peppers.

Onomatopoeia – the use of a word whose sound suggests its meaning.

Author's viewpoint refers to his or her bias or subjectivity toward the subject.

Synthesis involves higher-order thinking and is a result of forming either a concrete or abstract whole from the logical relation of parts.

Critique - requires that a critical (but not necessarily negative) judgment be made.

Composing – the structuring and elaborating a writer does to construct an effective message for readers.

Written expression – those features that show the writer purposefully shaping and controlling language to affect readers.

Usage/mechanics – the features that cause written language to be acceptable and effective for standard discourse.

Narrative – writing to tell a story.

Expository – writing to explain and build a body of well-organized and understandable information.

Persuasive – writing to influence the reader or listener to believe or do as the author or speaker suggests.

Informational – writing to put forth information, frequently used in textbooks and the news media.

Elaboration can occur by using descriptive details and examples within a sentence to give detail and depth to an idea, or from paragraph to paragraph chronologically.

Coherence means that each part of the writing appears to be 'connected' and heading towards a single conclusion or theme in the text.

Primary source is an original document or a firsthand or eyewitness account of an event.

Secondary source discusses information originally presented somewhere else. Secondary sources provide analysis, interpretation, or evaluation of the original information.

The VDOE Curriculum Framework should be utilized when preparing units found in this curriculum map.
