Progression of content and skills

The following grade overviews illustrate how the Amplify ELA curriculum has been carefully designed around sets and sequences of compelling texts that support deep engagement and help students reach a higher set of literacy standards. The units target what is most powerful about each text, engaging students in a variety of reading, writing, and speaking and listening activities that put the text at the center of instruction. Over the year, students explore text structures and elements across a broad range of genres—including plays, poetry, memoirs, visual documents, primary and secondary sources, and audio and video performances. Equally important, they'll develop a broad vocabulary and knowledge of a wide range of subject areas—from classic literature to contemporary literature, from neuroscience to key American thinkers, from modern, seminal drama to Greek mythology.

Path of text complexity

Amplify carefully selects and curates texts with the goal that all students work with increasing independence and proficiency with texts at their grade band level of complexity. To accomplish this goal, Amplify carefully considers three factors in determining the placement of texts within a grade and unit: qualitative measures, quantitative measures, and reader and task considerations.

The quantitative measure in purple reflects the Lexile band, based on the Lexile scores of the range of texts within the unit. Lexile scores are based on a measurement of vocabulary word frequency and sentence complexity.

- Band 1—Lexile 450–790
- Band 2—Lexile 770–980
- Band 3—Lexile 955–1155
- Band 4—Lexile 1080–1305
- Band 5—Lexile 1215–1355

The qualitative measure in blue reflects the texts' structural and stylistic complexity, the layers of meaning, and the knowledge demands required of the reader to understand the text. At a unit level, this measure also takes into account the inter-textual complexity. The scale is from 0–5, with 5 indicating the highest level of complexity.

The reader and task measure in green considers the complexity of the tasks that accompany the texts and the demands that these tasks place on readers. In determining this measure, Amplify considers the placement of texts within a unit, grade, or program; the knowledge demands and the supports put in place to scaffold this knowledge; the complexity of the key tasks and sequence of steps leading up to those tasks.

6A: Dahl & Narrative

Unit summary

Students begin with narrative writing to quickly boost their writing production, learn the foundational skill of Focus and become comfortable with key classroom habits and routines they will use all year. Then, students apply their new observational skills to lively readings from Roald Dahl’s memoir, Boy: Tales of Childhood, and learn how to work closely with textual evidence.

Roald Dahl’s 1984 memoir describes a childhood filled with contrasts of love and cruelty, mischief and suffering, humor and anguish. All the sensitivity, bravado, and drama of childhood are present, conveyed in the adult Dahl’s compact, powerful prose, brimming with sensory detail. At the end of the unit, students write an essay arguing whether the boys or the adults cause more trouble in the book.

6B: Mysteries & Investigations

Unit summary

Students read like an investigator to embark on a multi-genre study into the mesmerizing world of scientific and investigative sleuthing. The Secret of the Yellow Death: A True Story of Medical Sleuthing by Suzanne Jurmain and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes stories take place in the late 19th century, when medical diagnostics and criminal investigations were still evolving into scientific fields.

The lessons based on The Secret of the Yellow Death challenge students to grapple with clues, evidence, and scientific data to make meaning as Dr. Walter Reed and his team of scientific investigators seek the truth about yellow fever. Reading Sherlock Holmes, students break down deductive observations of a crime scene and read closely to understand how the detective breaks seemingly-unsolvable mysteries wide open. At the end of the unit, students write an essay explaining which trait is most useful to problem-solving investigators.

6C: The Chocolate Collection

Unit summary

In this Collection, students explore primary documents and conduct independent research to understand the strange and wide range of roles that chocolate has played in cultures around the world throughout its long history. Students build information literacy skills and learn how to construct an evidence-based argument. They write a short piece aimed at convincing readers that their favorite kind of chocolate is the best, and then debate whether or not chocolate should be included in school lunches.

Throughout these activities, students learn to develop their positions by identifying and researching source documents and constructing explanations and arguments on solid, relevant evidence and information. As students reach the end of the unit, they synthesize all of the skills they've developed to tackle a culminating research project—part essay, part interactive timeline.

6D: The Greeks

Unit summary

Students explore three stories from Greek mythology: Prometheus, Odysseus, and Arachne. Drawing on the routines and skills established in previous units, these lessons ask students to move from considering the state of a single person—themselves or a character—to contemplating broader questions concerning the role people play in the world and the various communities they inhabit.

“Prometheus” is an excerpt from Bernard Evslin’s book Heroes, Gods and Monsters of the Greek Myths. This myth raises a number of engaging questions about justice, responsibility, and what it means to be human. Homer’s epic poem The Odyssey recounts the story of Odysseus as he makes his journey home from the Trojan War. These lessons challenge students to consider how character traits can be both beneficial and harmful, and what constitutes leadership. “Arachne,” a poem by Ted Hughes, offers a retelling of Ovid’s original. In this subunit, students confront the question of how humans should conduct themselves and the line between pride and arrogance. They also consider some of the different layers that authors throughout the centuries have added to Greek myths. At the end of the unit, students write an essay arguing whether characters from two of these myths are destroyed by their pride.

Essay prompt	Sub-units and # of lessons
Using two of the following characters—the humans from “Prometheus,” Odysseus from The Odyssey , or Arachne from “Arachne”—answer the following question: Are humans destroyed by their pride? Why or why not? Use your answer to stake a claim about whether or not these characters have been destroyed by their pride. 6E: Summer of the Mariposas

Unit summary

Students read Summer of the Mariposas by Guadalupe Garcia McCall, a novel that follows the journey of the Garza sisters into Mexico and back. The story takes the sisters on a journey to find themselves, each other, and their family. Using the hero's journey structure and Homer's Odyssey as inspiration, McCall creates a world in which Mexican folklore and Aztec legends are woven into the more realistic experiences of Odilia and her sisters.

Over the course of the unit, students consider how characters change and develop, compare McCall's retelling to episodes from Homer's Odyssey, contrast the sisters' fictional journey to the nonfiction account of a migrant boy's journey, and research Aztec mythology. After completing the novel, students write an essay explaining what allows one of the heroes of Summer of the Mariposas to be successful in specific moments.

6F: The Titanic Collection

Unit summary

In this Collection, students explore documents and conduct independent research to better understand what really happened on the fateful night in 1912 when the Titanic sank in the North Atlantic Ocean. Students build information literacy skills and learn how to construct an evidence-based argument. They are each assigned a passenger from the Titanic's manifest and consider gender and class issues as they research and write narrative accounts from the point of view of their passenger. They also participate in a Socratic Seminar in which they rely on their research to examine the complicated issues inherent in the Titanic story.

Throughout these activities, students learn to tell the difference between primary, secondary, and tertiary sources; determine if a source is reliable; and understand the ethical uses of information. As students reach the end of the unit, they synthesize all of the skills they've developed to tackle a culminating research assignment—part essay, part multimedia project.

7A: Red Scarf Girl & Narrative

Unit summary

Students begin with narrative writing to quickly boost their writing production and to learn the foundational skill of focus. After exploring the details of how they describe their own experiences and emotions, students pay the same kind of close attention to analyzing the details presented in the unit’s core text: Ji-li Jiang’s Red Scarf Girl, her memoir of growing up during China’s Cultural Revolution.

Set against a vast landscape of dramatic events, Ji-li’s story makes these society-shaking upheavals feel human-sized by tracing out their impact on the experience of an ordinary young woman. At the end of the unit, students write an essay tracing one way Ji-li changes over the course of her story.

7B: Character & Conflict

Unit summary

Students analyze characters' responses to conflict and examine how authors use the interactions between characters and events to develop theme and perspective. Students read "Sucker," a short story by Carson McCullers, and A Raisin in the Sun, a play by Lorraine Hansberry. Both texts are grounded in a nuanced, deeply compassionate understanding of how people facing hardships can inflict harm they never intend on the people around them, and both provide students with rich opportunities to observe the growth and change of characters whose motivations are often hidden, even from themselves.

Students also compare the characters' experiences in Lorraine Hansberry's play to Langston Hughes's poem "Harlem" and an excerpt from Hansberry's memoir, To be Young, Gifted and Black. Throughout the unit, students describe the impact of the authors' language, draw conclusions about the characters, and practice the skills of focus and use of evidence that they learned in the introductory unit. This unit then pushes students to use this close textual analysis to notice larger structural moves that the authors make across the narratives.

7C: Brain Science

Unit summary

Students explore a series of narrative nonfiction and informational texts that expose the intricate workings of the brain, challenge their concept of what it means to be human, and allow them to consider how their own growing brains are impacted by daily experiences. This unit supports students as they build awareness of their unique cognitive strengths and challenges, and of the ways in which they can exert control over their own learning.

In Phineas Gage: A Gruesome but True Story About Brain Science, students trace the events that lead to Phineas’s injury, the extraordinary efforts of doctors and scientists to learn from his survival, and the early understanding of brain structure and function that grew from that knowledge. Through readings from Inventing Ourselves: The Secret Life of the Teenage Brain, students add information to their working model of the brain and consider whether and how adolescent behavior is shaped by their developing brains. In excerpts from Oliver Sacks’s book, The Man Who Mistook His Wife for a Hat, students apply their growing understanding of how the brain functions to modern brain injury cases. Finally, the Perception Academy Quest lets students experience daily life with a brain injury and diagnose the region of their brain that is injured based on their symptoms.

7D: Poetry & Poe

Unit summary

In this unit, students learn a set of visualization techniques to read like a movie director. First, they read poems by D. H. Lawrence, Federico García Lorca, and Emily Dickinson to learn to form mental images while reading. Then, they read three texts by Edgar Allan Poe—"The Tell-Tale Heart," "The Cask of Amontillado," and "The Raven"—and create storyboards that help them make their mental images concrete and discover the unreliability of first-person narrators. Students conceive of their own approach to perspective, characters, settings, sounds/soundtracks, and mood and explain the reasons for their choices. They also watch thoughtful, animated adaptations of "The Raven" and "The Cask of Amontillado" and compare the movie adaptations to the original texts. After reading these stories, students participate in the murder mystery Quest, Who Killed Edgar Allan Poe?, where they investigate the crime scene and interrogate characters to find and interpret clues and ultimately solve the mystery. At the end of the unit, students write an essay arguing whether they can trust the narrator of one of the unit's texts.

7E: The Frida & Diego Collection

Unit summary

In this Collection, students explore primary source documents and conduct independent research to learn about some of Mexico's most famous and provocative artists, Diego Rivera and Frida Kahlo, an extraordinary couple who lived in extraordinary times. In this unit, students build information literacy skills and learn how to construct an evidence-based argument.

In each sub-unit, students analyze primary source materials with a goal of building their ability to independently research a topic, generate a question, select and analyze reliable sources, and write using those sources. Students learn to determine if a source is reliable and understand the ethical uses of information; construct their own research questions and explore the Internet for answers; practice working with descriptive writing; and participate in a Socratic seminar about the complicated issues inherent in the work of Frida and Diego. As students reach the end of the unit, they synthesize all of the skills they've developed to tackle a culminating research assignment—part essay, part multimedia project.

7F: The Gold Rush Collection

Unit summary

In this Collection, students explore primary documents and conduct independent research to better understand the complex story of the California gold rush. Students build information literacy skills and learn how to construct their own research questions and explore the Internet for answers. They also participate in a Socratic seminar in which they rely on their research to examine the complicated issues inherent in the gold rush story.

Throughout these activities, students conduct research to learn about the wide diversity of people who took part in the California gold rush. They compare and contrast a fictional portrayal with historical accounts and use the information they gather to write narrative accounts from the point of view of a specific person living through this complex and dynamic era. As students reach the end of the unit, they synthesize all of the skills they've developed to tackle a culminating research assignment—part essay, part media project.

Who benefited from the gold rush (remember different populations such as Native Americans, and immigrants)? How and why? How did the gold rush affect California in the short term? How did it shape the California we know today? Conduct research and write an argumentative essay that persuades the reader of your point of view. Research Option 2: Who was John Sutter? Who was Elsa Jane Guerin? Choose one of these two famous figures from the gold rush era and start digging. Where did this person come from? Did he or she strike it rich? Has his or her legacy had a lasting impact on the state of California? 8A: Perspectives & Narrative

Students learn to read like writers: to pay attention to the craft of writing and the moves a good writer makes to shape the way the reader sees a scene or feels about a character—to stir us up, or surprise us, or leave us wondering what will happen next.

In the Get Started sub-unit, students are introduced to the core literacy skills of focus and showing, hone their powers of observation and concentration, and practice the fundamental classroom routines of sharing and feedback that draw them into a collaborative community of readers and writers. In the Narrative Writing sub-unit, students study three examples of narrative writing—passages from Roald Dahl’s Going Solo, Amy Tan’s “Fish Cheeks,” and Kaitlyn Greenidge’s “My Mother’s Garden”—closely reading each text to discover how the authors use key narrative writing skills to convey their ideas. Students respond to writing prompts that alternate between analytic and narrative writing, and write a short personal narrative about a moment from their childhood. The unit culminates in an essay where students argue whether the mothers in “Fish Cheeks” and “My Mother’s Garden” are role models.

8B: Liberty & Equality

Unit summary

Students study the writings of both famous and lesser-known Americans who were critically, intellectually, and physically engaged in a debate about the meaning of the words “all men are created equal” during the Civil War time period. Each text gives students a different perspective on the American ideal.

Students read excerpts from Walt Whitman’s Leaves of Grass and try on his poetic form to capture what is essential about themselves. The central text, Narrative of the Life of Frederick Douglass, introduces students to the young Douglass as he moves toward personal liberation, and provides the opportunity for students to analyze Douglass’ potent arguments against slavery. Students then read passages from Harriet Ann Jacobs’s Incidents in the Life of a Slave

Girl and examine the striking contrast between her experience and Douglass’s, analyzing how her graceful style and detailed picture of life as an enslaved woman paint a powerful picture of slavery’s human cost. Next, students read passages from The Boys’ War, which tells the tale of the very young people who signed up enthusiastically to fight on both sides during the Civil War. Finally, in The Emancipation Project Quest, students explore reproductions of primary source documents, spoken testimonies, and period music to assemble big stories and big ideas from dozens of perspectives. After thinking critically about these voices, students are prepared to consider Lincoln’s implied question in his Gettysburg Address: What does America mean by “all men are created equal”?

8C: Science & Science Fiction

Students read Gris Grimly's Frankenstein, a graphic novel that adds captivating illustrations to an abridgement of the 1818 edition of Mary Shelley's book. Paired with Shelley's text, Grimly's haunting representations of Frankenstein's creature push students to wrestle with some of the text's central themes: a creator's responsibility for their creation, the role of society in shaping our presence in the world, and the promises and risks of scientific inquiry. Students trace Victor's level of sympathy for his creation throughout the story, rewrite key scenes from the creature's point of view, analyze Shelley's allusions to mythological and Biblical texts, and debate whether Victor owes the creature a companion. At the end of the unit, after research and debate, students write to determine whether or not Victor's creature should ultimately be considered human.

In the "Poetical Science" sub-unit, students read two poems, a speech, and excerpts from Chapter 1 of Walter Isaacson's The Innovators to compare and contrast the ways in which William Wordsworth, Lord Byron, and Ada Lovelace viewed man's relationship with technology. The texts in this unit raise the question: Are we the masters of our machines, or are the machines our masters?

8D: Shakespeare’s Romeo & Juliet

Unit summary

Students read five excerpts from Shakespeare’s Romeo and Juliet. The purpose of these lessons is to introduce students to the plot, to engage them in closely reading a selection of its most famous scenes, and to help them become familiar with Shakespearean English. After students have finished the unit, they will have learned how to spot and follow an extended metaphor, discovered that they can understand Shakespearean English by putting it into their own words, and become curious about the play in its entirety.

Students practice memorizing and reciting lines from the play’s famous Prologue over the course of the unit. The lessons provide multiple opportunities for students to stage their own performances and recitations and “translate” Shakespeare’s words into more contemporary language. In several lessons, students focus on the form of Shakespeare’s language, particularly the Shakespearean sonnet. At the end of the unit, students write an essay arguing whether the forces of love or hate are responsible for Romeo’s death.

8E: Holocaust: Memory & Meaning

Unit summary

Students use a language arts lens and close reading to explore a variety of memoir and primary source materials and dig into two key questions raised by Hitler’s Holocaust: How do a society and its people become participants (willingly or indifferently) in such an atrocity? And what is the responsibility of those who experienced, witnessed, participated in, or now learn about these events? The selected materials present events from several different perspectives—those of perpetrators, survivors, victims, bystanders, and witnesses—allowing students to develop a critical understanding of the strategies Nazis used to influence the mindset of a nation, and the human responses to the unfolding of genocide.

First, students analyze I Cannot Forget, a poem by Holocaust survivor Alexander Kimel that explores the haunting power of memory. Next, students read from the memoir Shores Beyond Shores, in which author Irene Butter describes how her Jewish family’s happy life in Berlin was slowly destroyed as the Nazis came to power. As a counterpoint, students examine passages by Alfons Heck, an Aryan boy who became an enthusiastic member of the Hitler Youth. Students also explore articles and images that show the Nazi propaganda machine in full swing as it presents Hitler’s concept of the superior Aryan race during the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin. Finally, students read excerpts from Child of Hitler, Maus, and Night, where participants and survivors trace the descent into darkness: from Kristallnacht, to the creation of the ghettos, and eventually to the death camps. As students study these writings, images, and videos, they begin to understand the forces that created and drove the Holocaust and the reactions of people caught up in those forces.

8F: The Space Race Collection

Unit summary

In this Collection, students explore primary documents and conduct independent research to better understand the Space Race, a fierce competition between two of the world's superpowers that continued for nearly 18 years. The dramatic story of the Space Race offers students a rich research topic to explore as they build information literacy skills and learn how to construct their own research questions and explore the Internet for answers. Students also participate in a Socratic seminar in which they rely on their research to examine the complicated issues inherent in the history of the Space Race.

Throughout these activities, students conduct research to develop a deep understanding of this unique international competition. Each student is assigned a cosmonaut or astronaut from the Space Race era. They research their cosmonaut or astronaut and write entries into their space blog from their person's point of view. As students reach the end of the unit, they synthesize all of the skills they've developed to tackle a culminating research assignment—part essay, part media project.
