Annotations Requirements

A+ to A - The text is thoroughly and thoughtfully highlighted with many margin, response, and device notes. The annotations demonstrate that the student has carefully read and considered the text and its meaning. In addition, these annotations serve not only as an outline and show thoughtful understanding of literary and rhetorical devices, but also show that the student is having a dialogue with the text. Consistently excellent, no missing sections, both highlighted (underlined) AND annotated.

A- to B+- The text is thoroughly and thoughtfully highlighted with fewer margin, response, and device notes. The annotations demonstrate that the student has carefully read the text and has thought about its meaning. In addition, these annotations serve not only as an outline and show an understanding of literary and rhetorical devices, but also show that the student is having some dialogue with the text. Inconsistent at times, more highlights than notes, more notes than highlights, light missing sections.

B to B- - The text is highlighted with many margin, response, and device notes. The annotations demonstrate that the student has read and considered the text and its meaning. The annotations serve as an outline and show a basic understanding of literary and rhetorical devices. The annotations show the student is having minimal dialogue with the text. Inconsistent, larger areas missing or just highlighted (painted),"ran out of steam."

C+to C- - The text is highlighted. There are virtually no notes; therefore, it is impossible to determine how thoroughly the student has read and considered the text. Very inconsistent, larger sections missing notes, all "reaction" notes with no explanations, incomplete.

D - The text is only highlighted and/or only minimal notes are shown. Parts of the text are unmarked or there are so few notations overall that the text may not have been read completely. Large areas or entire sections unmarked. Meaningless notes.

F - The text is handed in but unmarked. Little marked, no notes, few pages

Summer Reading Poems

The Grave of Keats
Oscar Wilde - 1854-1900

Rid of the world's injustice, and his pain,
He rests at last beneath God's veil of blue:
Taken from life when life and love were new
The youngest of the martyrs here is Iain,
Fair as Sebastian, and as early slain.
No cypress shades his grave, no funeral yew,
But gentle violets weeping with the dew
Weave on his bones an ever-blossoming chain.
O proudest heart that broke for misery!
O sweetest lips since those of Mitylene!
O poet-painter of our English Land!
Thy name was writ in water—it shall stand:
And tears like mine will keep thy memory green,
As Isabella did her Basil-tree.

The Waking
Theodore Roethke - 1908-1963

I wake to sleep, and take my waking slow.
I feel my fate in what I cannot fear.
I learn by going where I have to go.

We think by feeling. What is there to know?
I hear my being dance from ear to ear.
I wake to sleep, and take my waking slow.

Of those so close beside me, which are you?
God bless the Ground! I shall walk softly there,
And learn by going where I have to go.

Light takes the Tree; but who can tell us how?
The lowly worm climbs up a winding stair;
I wake to sleep, and take my waking slow.

Great Nature has another thing to do
To you and me; so take the lively air,
And, lovely, learn by going where to go.

This shaking keeps me steady. I should know.
What falls away is always. And is near.
I wake to sleep, and take my waking slow.
I learn by going where I have to go.

When I have Fears That I May Cease to Be
John Keats - 1795-1821

When I have fears that I may cease to be
Before my pen has gleaned my teeming brain,
Before high-pilèd books, in character,
Hold like rich garners the full ripened grain;
When I behold, upon the night's starred face,
Huge cloudy symbols of a high romance,
And think that I may never live to trace
Their shadows with the magic hand of chance;
And when I feel, fair creature of an hour,
That I shall never look upon thee more,
Never have relish in the faery power
Of unreflecting love—then on the shore
Of the wide world I stand alone, and think Till love and fame to nothingness do sink.

Constantly Risking Absurdity (#15)

Lawrence Ferlinghetti - 1919-2021

Constantly risking absurdity
and death
whenever he performs above the heads of his audience
the poet like an acrobat climbs on rime
to a high wire of his own making and balancing on eyebeams above a sea of faces paces his way
to the other side of day performing entrechats and sleight-of-foot tricks
and other high theatrics
and all without mistaking
any thing
for what it may not be
For he's the super realist who must perforce perceive taut truth
before the taking of each stance or step in his supposed advance toward that still higher perch where Beauty stands and waits with gravity to start her death-defying leap And he
a little charleychaplin man who may or may not catch her fair eternal form spreadeagled in the empty air
of existence

Facing It

Yusef Komunyakaa - 1947- Present

My black face fades, hiding inside the black granite.
I said I wouldn't dammit: No tears.
I'm stone. I'm flesh.
My clouded reflection eyes me
like a bird of prey, the profile of night slanted against morning. I turn this way—the stone lets me go.
I turn that way—I'm inside
the Vietnam Veterans Memorial again, depending on the light to make a difference.
I go down the 58,022 names,
half-expecting to find
my own in letters like smoke.
I touch the name Andrew Johnson;
I see the booby trap's white flash.
Names shimmer on a woman's blouse
but when she walks away
the names stay on the wall.
Brushstrokes flash, a red bird's wings cutting across my stare.
The sky. A plane in the sky.
A white vet's image floats closer to me, then his pale eyes look through mine. I'm a window.
He's lost his right arm inside the stone. In the black mirror
a woman's trying to erase names:
No, she's brushing a boy's hair.
