

Harriet Tubman (circa 1820-1913)

*Escaped out of her master's grip,
so happy to be free.
Went back to help some other slaves,
including family.*

*She joined a secret "railroad" and conducted nineteen trips.
A brave and mighty warrior,
though scarred by brutal whips.*

*Led hundreds from a life of hell
to freedom in the North.
The people called her Moses for the new life she brought forth.*

*Two years ago, a law was passed.
Our government came through,
and recognized that Harriet deserved an honor too.*

*On brand new coins (a group of three)
an image will be set,
reminding all generations
of struggles that she met.*

*The justice that she knew should be
our country came to know.
How can we possibly forget
her deeds of long ago?*
