

Artist of the day: Beauford Delaney

Beauford Delaney was an African-American LGBTQ abstract expressionist artist known for the art he created during the Harlem Renaissance. He was raised by a mother who had been born into slavery in a very Christian household. Being gay, black and Christian made him very introverted yet popular among the artists of NYC. He also moved to Paris but continued to struggle as an artist. He struggled with self acceptance and turned to alcoholism which led to deteriorated health.

Artist of the day: Beauford Delaney

Beauford Delaney was an African-American LGBTQ abstract expressionist artist known for the art he created during the Harlem Renaissance. He was raised by a mother who had been born into slavery in a very Christian household. Being gay, black and Christian made him very introverted yet popular among the artists of NYC. He also moved to Paris but continued to struggle as an artist. He struggled with self acceptance and turned to alcoholism which led to deteriorated health.

Artist of the day: Beauford Delaney

Beauford Delaney was an African-American LGBTQ abstract expressionist artist known for the art he created during the Harlem Renaissance. He was raised by a mother who had been born into slavery in a very Christian household. Being gay, black and Christian made him very introverted yet popular among the artists of NYC. He also moved to Paris but continued to struggle as an artist. He struggled with self acceptance and turned to alcoholism which led to deteriorated health.

Artist of the day: Beauford Delaney

Beauford Delaney was an African-American LGBTQ abstract expressionist artist known for the art he created during the Harlem Renaissance. He was raised by a mother who had been born into slavery in a very Christian household. Being gay, black and Christian made him very introverted yet popular among the artists of NYC. He also moved to Paris but continued to struggle as an artist. He struggled with self acceptance and turned to alcoholism which led to deteriorated health.

Artist of the day: Beauford Delaney

Beauford Delaney was an African-American LGBTQ abstract expressionist artist known for the art he created during the Harlem Renaissance. He was raised by a mother who had been born into slavery in a very Christian household. Being gay, black and Christian made him very introverted yet popular among the artists of NYC. He also moved to Paris but continued to struggle as an artist. He struggled with self acceptance and turned to alcoholism which led to deteriorated health.

Artist of the day: Beauford Delaney

Beauford Delaney was an African- American LGBTQ abstract expressionist artist known for the art he created during the Harlem Renaissance. He was raised by a mother who had been born into slavery in a very Christian household. Being gay, black and Christian made him very introverted yet popular among the artists of NYC. He also moved to Paris but continued to struggle as an artist. He struggled with self acceptance and turned to alcoholism which led to deteriorated health.

Artist of the day: Beauford Delaney

Beauford Delaney was an African-American LGBTQ abstract expressionist artist known for the art he created during the Harlem Renaissance. He was raised by a mother who had been born into slavery in a very Christian household. Being gay, black and Christian made him very introverted yet popular among the artists of NYC. He also moved to Paris but continued to struggle as an artist. He struggled with self acceptance and turned to alcoholism which led to deteriorated health.

Artist of the day: Beauford Delaney

Beauford Delaney was an African-American LGBTQ abstract expressionist artist known for the art he created during the Harlem Renaissance. He was raised by a mother who had been born into slavery in a very Christian household. Being gay, black and Christian made him very introverted yet popular among the artists of NYC. He also moved to Paris but continued to struggle as an artist. He struggled with self acceptance and turned to alcoholism which led to deteriorated health.

Artist of the day: Beauford Delaney

Beauford Delaney was an African-American LGBTQ abstract expressionist artist known for the art he created during the Harlem Renaissance. He was raised by a mother who had been born into slavery in a very Christian household. Being gay, black and Christian made him very introverted yet popular among the artists of NYC. He also moved to Paris but continued to struggle as an artist. He struggled with self acceptance and turned to alcoholism which led to deteriorated health.

Artist of the day: Beauford Delaney

Beauford Delaney was an African- American LGBTQ abstract expressionist artist known for the art he created during the Harlem Renaissance. He was raised by a mother who had been born into slavery in a very Christian household. Being gay, black and Christian made him very introverted yet popular among the artists of NYC. He also moved to Paris but continued to struggle as an artist. He struggled with self acceptance and turned to alcoholism which led to deteriorated health.

Artist of the day: Beauford Delaney

Beauford Delaney was an African-American LGBTQ abstract expressionist artist known for the art he created during the Harlem Renaissance. He was raised by a mother who had been born into slavery in a very Christian household. Being gay, black and Christian made him very introverted yet popular among the artists of NYC. He also moved to Paris but continued to struggle as an artist. He struggled with self acceptance and turned to alcoholism which led to deteriorated health.

Artist of the day: Beauford Delaney

Beauford Delaney was an African-American LGBTQ abstract expressionist artist known for the art he created during the Harlem Renaissance. He was raised by a mother who had been born into slavery in a very Christian household. Being gay, black and Christian made him very introverted yet popular among the artists of NYC. He also moved to Paris but continued to struggle as an artist. He struggled with self acceptance and turned to alcoholism which led to deteriorated health.

Artist of the day: Beauford Delaney

Beauford Delaney was an African-American LGBTQ abstract expressionist artist known for the art he created during the Harlem Renaissance. He was raised by a mother who had been born into slavery in a very Christian household. Being gay, black and Christian made him very introverted yet popular among the artists of NYC. He also moved to Paris but continued to struggle as an artist. He struggled with self acceptance and turned to alcoholism which led to deteriorated health.

Artist of the day: Beauford Delaney

Beauford Delaney was an African-American LGBTQ abstract expressionist artist known for the art he created during the Harlem Renaissance. He was raised by a mother who had been born into slavery in a very Christian household. Being gay, black and Christian made him very introverted yet popular among the artists of NYC. He also moved to Paris but continued to struggle as an artist. He struggled with self acceptance and turned to alcoholism which led to deteriorated health.

Artist of the day: Beauford Delaney

Beauford Delaney was an African-American LGBTQ abstract expressionist artist known for the art he created during the Harlem Renaissance. He was raised by a mother who had been born into slavery in a very Christian household. Being gay, black and Christian made him very introverted yet popular among the artists of NYC. He also moved to Paris but continued to struggle as an artist. He struggled with self acceptance and turned to alcoholism which led to deteriorated health.