- New Jersey's Human Geography
  *Human geography is how people use and change the physical features of an area *borders are imaginary lines that tell you where one area ends and another begins. They divide countries, counties, and states
  *U.S. has 50 states
  *NJ 21 counties
  *Our capital is Trenton
  *An urban area is a city
  *Suburb=less populated area outside or near a city
  *rural = countryside (farms)
  *Human and physical geography are connected because humans have changed the physical features of the land by building cities, digging canals, and creating farmland.
- New Jersey's Population
  *Most densely populated state in the U.S. (meaning we have a larger than average number of people living and working in a given area of space)
  *Five counties in NJ that are densely populated: Essex, Hudson, Passaic, Bergen and Union
    -are very populated counties because they are close to New York City which provides many jobs for people
  *A few densely populated cities in NJ are Camden, Trenton, Atlantic City, Elizabeth, Jersey City, Patterson, and Newark *down south in NJ fruits and vegetables can grow easier because of the flat land and good soil.
