

Fauvism

Look at the following works and think of the words to describe them

Introduction to Fauvism

- Fauvism, a revolutionary art movement that emerged in the early 20th century, marked a significant departure from traditional artistic conventions. Fauvism challenged the established norms of color and form, introducing a radical approach to artistic expression.
- The movement is characterized by its bold use of intense, non-naturalistic colors and distorted forms, creating visually striking and emotionally charged compositions.

The beginning

- Fauvism officially began around 1905 and reached its zenith during the first decade of the 20th century.
- The term "Fauvism" is derived from the French word "fauves," meaning wild beasts, reflecting the untamed and unrestrained nature of the movement's artistic style.
- The movement can be traced back to the Salon d'Automne exhibition of 1905 in Paris, where a group of avant-garde artists showcased their works, causing a sensation and drawing both admiration and criticism.

Main artists

- The founding members of the Fauvist movement included prominent artists such as Henri Matisse, André Derain, Raoul Dufy, and Maurice de Vlaminck. Matisse, often regarded as the leader of the Fauvists, played a crucial role in shaping the movement's aesthetic principles.

Their aim

- Fauvist artists sought to break free from the representational constraints of Impressionism and Post-Impressionism, embracing a more subjective and emotional approach to painting.

Their inspiration

- The Fauvists were greatly influenced by the works of Post-Impressionist artists like Vincent van Gogh and Paul Gauguin who had already challenged traditional notions of color and form.

Key characteristics

- Intense and Arbitrary Use of Color: Fauvist artists employed vibrant, non-naturalistic colors to convey emotion and create a visually striking impact. Colors were often applied directly from the tube without much blending, resulting in bold contrasts and a sense of immediacy.
- Simplified and Distorted Forms: Shapes were flattened, and proportions were altered to emphasize the emotional content of the artwork.
- Freedom from Realistic Representation: Fauvist artists sought to break free from the constraints of realistic representation, allowing color to take precedence over accurate depiction.
- Emphasis on Emotional Expression: Fauvist works often aimed to evoke strong emotions through color and form

Fauvist portraits

The green stripe
Henri Matisse, 1905

A Portrait Of Matisse
Andre Derain, 1905

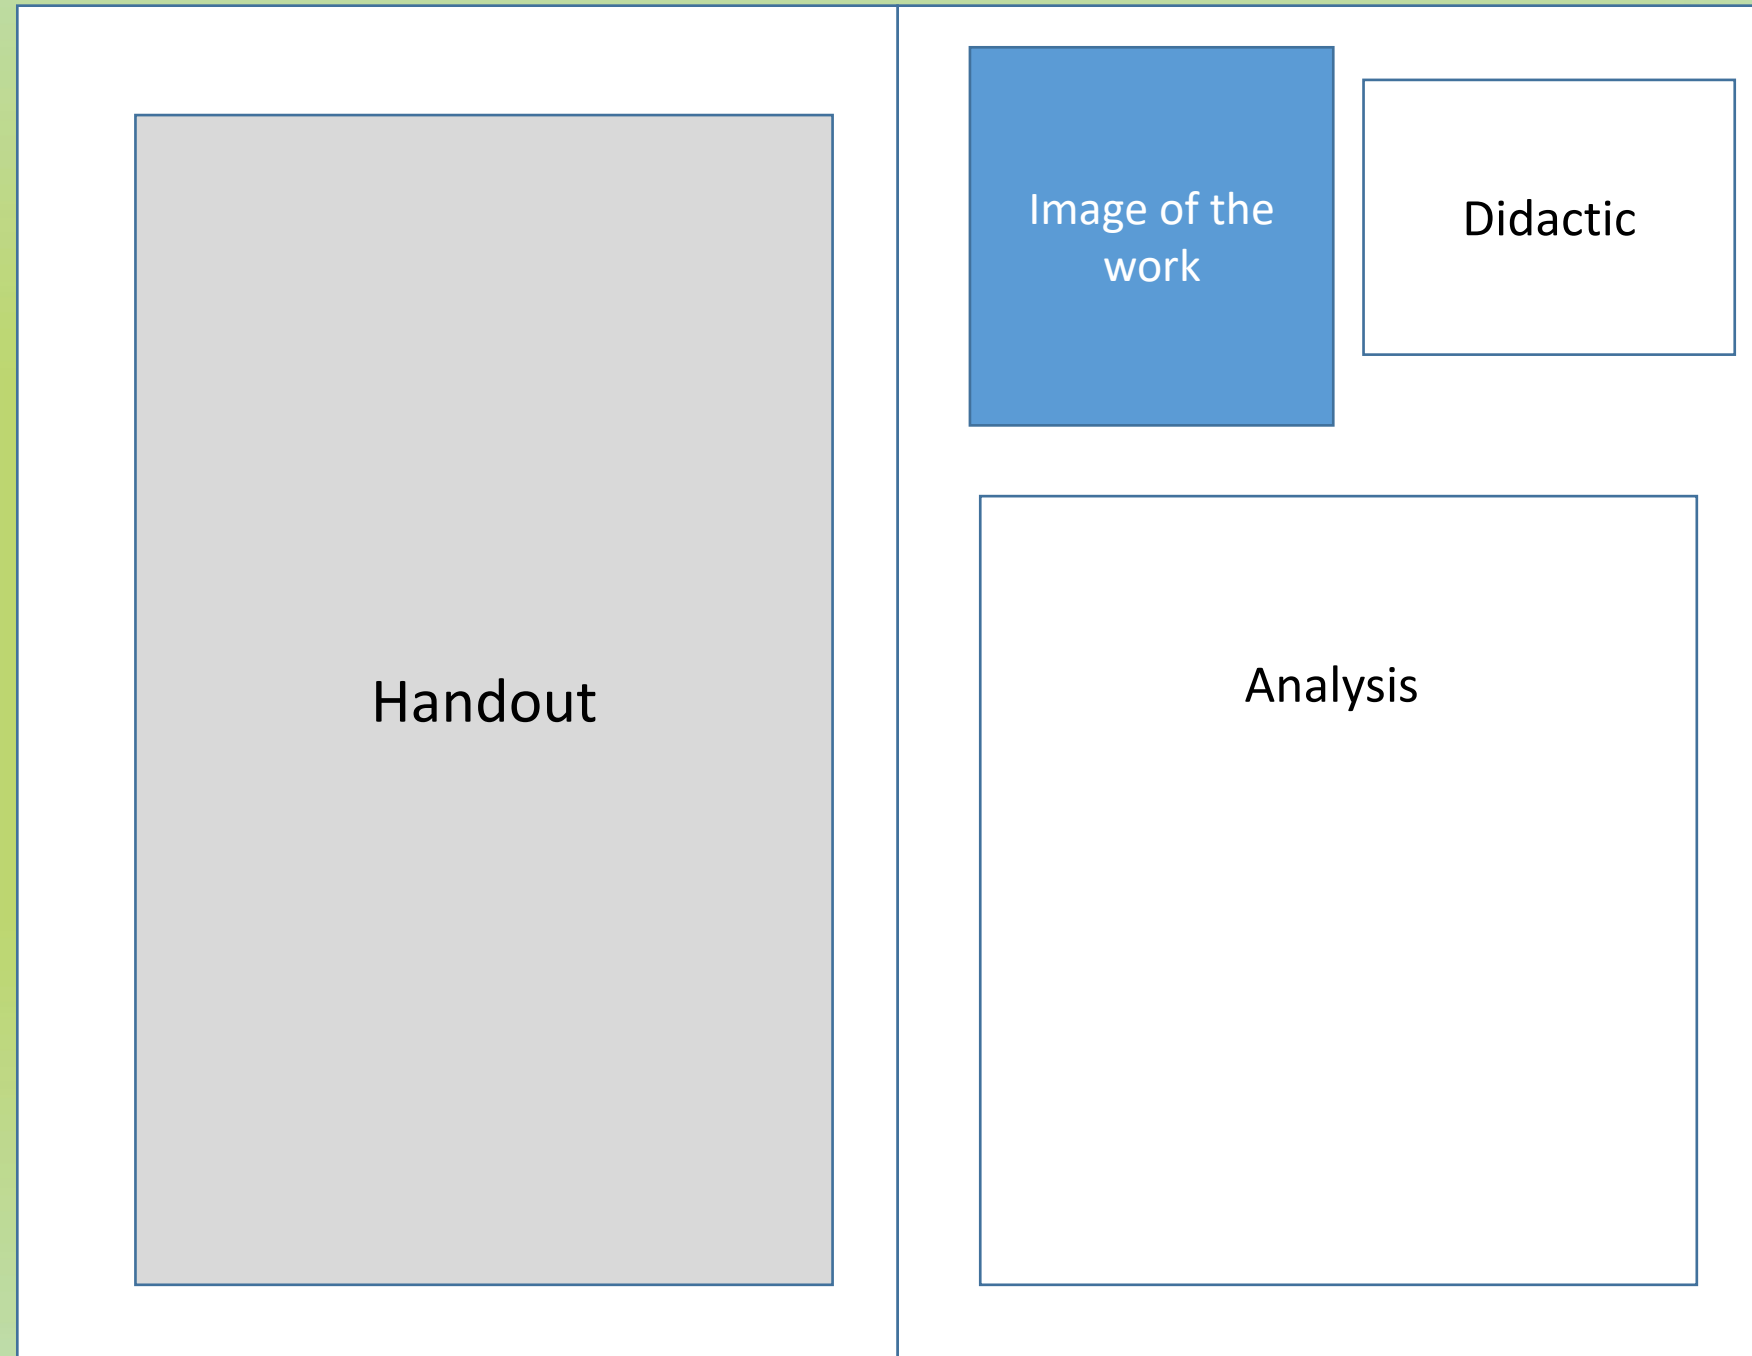

Woman with a Hat,
Henri Matisse. 1905.

Your task

- Analyse one of the three portraits given on the previous slide using the prompts in the handout.
- You should print and stick a coloured image of your chosen portrait in your visual art diary.
- Next to the image write down the didactic information including:
- Title of work, Name of the artist, time period, medium, size and collection
- Then write the analysis in detail.

- This is what your double page should look like

Collage

- A collage is a form of visual art that involves the assemblage of various materials, such as photographs, newspaper clippings, fabric, and other found objects, to create a unified and often layered composition. The word "collage" comes from the French word "coller," which means "to glue."
- Key elements of a collage include the combination of different textures, colors, and shapes, as well as the juxtaposition of unrelated or contrasting elements.

Examples of portraits in collage by Tutul Bera

Your task

- Now its your turn to create a Fauvist inspired portrait, which includes unconventional use of colour, in collage
- Portrait has to be on A2 sized paper
- Use your own photographs as reference (avoid images from the internet.)
- Think about the drawing accurately first, (check your visual art diaries for basic face proportions we did earlier)