Course Description:

This one year survey of our nation's history from the early colonial times of the seventeenth century through the industrialization and urbanization of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries emphasizes an understanding of the foundations of our government and the ideals on which the nation was constructed. Students develop an awareness of the process by which the nation expanded, became embroiled in sectional strife, and disintegrated into civil war. The profound changes brought about by postwar industrialization are examined closely. The course emphasizes the evolution of social, political, economic, and intellectual patterns as they influenced the nation's development. In addition the course stresses the critical thinking, analytical, and media literacy skills students will need to be active and productive citizens in a democracy.

Unit 1: Colonization & the American Revolution (1585-1783)

Standard 6.1 America in the World
All students will acquire the knowledge and skills to think analytically about how past and present interactions of people, cultures, and the environment shape the American heritage. Such knowledge and skills enable students to make informed decisions that reflect fundamental rights and core democratic values as productive citizens in local, national, and global communities.
Big Idea: Content Statement Whether pulled by the promise of profits or pushed by the pains of religious persecution of the Stuart monarchs, Englishmen, in quick succession, founded several prosperous North American colonies during the 17th century. For the first fifty years of the 18th century, these colonies developed in an atmosphere virtually free of external interference. By 1760, the French and Indian War necessitated a shift in British policy away from the tradition of Salutary Neglect. These new “requirements of empire” stirred opposition and ultimately rebellion in British North America.

Unit 2: The Young Republic (1783-1820)

Standard 6.1 America in the World

All students will acquire the knowledge and skills to think analytically about how past and present interactions of people, cultures, and the environment shape the American heritage. Such knowledge and skills enable students to make informed decisions that reflect fundamental rights and core democratic values as productive citizens in local, national, and global communities.

Big Ideas: Course Objectives / Content Statement(s)

Victory in the Revolutionary War and subsequent independence in no way guaranteed the unity and good governance of the Thirteen Original States. From 1781-1789, Americans were deeply divided over the meaning of the trials through which they had just passed. Was the American Revolution a triumph of individual liberty and self-governance or was it the forging of a great and united “Empire” ready to assume its station among the world’s sovereign states? The answer to this critical question would lead to a profound revision of the federal charter followed by a deep and often-bitter partisan battle produced by the implementation of the new federal government.

Essential Questions

What provocative questions will foster inquiry, understanding, and transfer of learning?

Enduring Understandings

What will students understand about the big ideas?

1. To what extent were the Articles of Confederation reflective of the political beliefs of the Revolutionary Era?
2. To what extent was the U.S. Constitution a conservative response to the “excesses” of the more democratic state governments?
3. In what unanticipated ways did the American political system take shape under the U.S. Constitution?
4. To what extent could the transfer of power from the Federalists to the Democratic-Republicans be considered a “revolution”?

Students will understand that...

1. In the absence of crisis, unity is difficult to maintain.
2. The appropriate apportionment of political power between the states and the national government is a point of perpetual contention.
3. The degree of self-governance afforded the individual has continuously expanded.
4. Commercial political and economic interests often run counter to the interests of agriculture.

Unit 4: Civil War and Reconstruction (1850-1877)

Standard 6.1

All students will acquire the knowledge and skills to think analytically about how past and present interactions of people, cultures, and the environment shape the American heritage. Such knowledge and skills enable students to make informed decisions that reflect fundamental rights and core democratic values as productive citizens in local, national, and global communities.

Big Ideas: Course Objectives / Content Statement

The Civil War was perhaps the most wrenching war to be fought by Americans. It took more American lives than any other war in which Americans have fought. It obliterated the normal patterns and circumstances of life. It unleashed drastic economic and political change as well. Americans in the North and South experienced inflation, higher taxes, and shortages of many items. To the alarm of many, the powers of the federal government and of the president increased during the war. Ultimately, the Civil War forced on the nation new social and racial arrangements. After the war, Southerners threw all their efforts into rebuilding their lives. Some Southerners despaired over their losses. Yet others saw great opportunity and worked to build a new South. Reconstruction of the South was not without problems. Northern soldiers occupied the South. Graft and corruption became a way of life. Slavery came to an end, but the freed slaves were not truly free; the war did little to improve their daily lives. Feelings of anger and futility were common among Northerners and Southerners.

Essential Questions

What provocative questions will foster inquiry, understanding, and transfer of learning?

Enduring Understandings

What will students understand about the big ideas?

Unit 5: The Second Industrial Revolution (1865 - 1915)

Standard 6.1

All students will acquire the knowledge and skills to think analytically about how past and present interactions of people, cultures, and the environment shape the American heritage. Such knowledge and skills enable students to make informed decisions that reflect fundamental rights and core democratic values as productive citizens in local, national, and global communities.

Big Ideas: Course Objectives / Content Statement

By 1900 the United States had surpassed Britain to become the mightiest industrial power on earth. New inventions and the railroads encouraged the expansion of American industry; large and complex business corporations developed. Many people saw America as a land of golden opportunity where poor people with vision and determination could rise from rags to riches. However, questions about the value and meaning of work and the price of success were raised as well as the proper role of the government in the new industrialized world. At the same time, the wilderness west of the Mississippi River began to disappear. To the nineteenth-century pioneers who settled this area, land meant the opportunity for a new start in life, greater freedom, and even greater wealth. As the federal government opened new land for settlement, people came from all over. In the process, however, the first inhabitants of the land, the American Indians, were simply pushed aside by trickery or by force. Many were killed. All were eventually made to change their way of life.

Essential Questions What provocative questions will foster inquiry, understanding, and transfer of learning?	Enduring Understandings What will students understand about the big ideas?
1. How have new technologies and inventions changed our lives?	Students will understand that...

2. Do workers have rights? 3. How does immigration impact American society? 4. What factors promote democracy? What factors are toxic for democracy?	1. Innovations in technology and business practices may impact the economic, social, and political lives of citizens. 2. Coordinated action by groups or individuals can effect change in social relationships, economic practices, and government policy. 3. Immigration transformed the United States socially, economically and politically. 4. Factors that were toxic to democracy during the Gilded Age include: plutocracy, penury, wage slavery, oligarchic corruption, and shrinking middle class.

Media Literacy Skills

Students will be able to:

- Consume and produce various forms of media (film, television, radio, internet, etc.) as a 21st century tool to think critically and problem solve.
- Formulate questions and hypotheses from multiple perspectives, using multiple sources.
- Gather, analyze, and reconcile information from primary and secondary sources to support or reject hypotheses.
- Examine source data within the historical, social, political, geographic, or economic context in which it was created, testing credibility and evaluating bias.
- Evaluate historical and contemporary communications to identify factual accuracy, soundness of evidence, and absence of bias and discuss strategies used by the government, political candidates, and the media to communicate with the public.
- Determine whose point of view matters
- Determine how one can locate legitimate sources of information
- Analyze varying perspectives on the meaning of historical events.
- Ascertain credible and questionable sources of information about historical and contemporary events
- Analyze how public opinion is measured and used in public debate (e.g., electronic polling, focus groups, Gallup polls, newspaper and television polls) and how public opinion can be influenced by the government and the media.
- Examine ways how can citizens and groups participate effectively in the democratic process
- Understand how the U.S. view of global issues and challenges may not be the same as the views held by other countries and cultures.

Sheltered Instruction Addendum to US History I Curriculum

The key concepts, terms, people, and activities serve as examples for the Sheltered US I class. They outline the basic ideas that English language learners should understand about American History upon completion of the course. Links to NJCCS and CCS are included in the general US I Course of Study.

1. COLONIAL AMERICA

Key Concepts:

- a. Three distinct groups of people (Europeans, Africans, and Americans) met during the age of exploration and colonization, resulting in both cooperation & conflict.
- b. The land that would become the United States was from its beginning diverse, with customs and traditions from around the world.
- c. Europeans, motivated by religious persecution and economic opportunity, emigrated to begin new lives and communities in America, bringing with them ideas that would influence the development of the United States.
- d. The 13 British colonies each developed its own social, economic, and political institutions and culture.
- e. Slavery played a major role in shaping economic, political, and social forces.

Key Terms: (examples- not all have to be examined)

Places: Massachusetts Bay Colony, New England, Virginia, Pennsylvania, and the Middle Passage

People: Pilgrims/Puritans, William Bradford, John Winthrop, Metacomet/King Phillip, William Penn, Native Americans, Benjamin Franklin, Anne Hutchinson, Nathaniel Bacon

Events: Mayflower Compact, Thanksgiving, King Philip's War, Navigation Acts, Bacon's Rebellion, the Enlightenment, the Great Awakening, the slave trade, Stono Rebellion

Vocabulary: colony, persecution, tolerance, diversity, freedom, economy, government, mercantile system, industry, slavery, plantation, rebellion, trade, immigration

Activities—Students are required to utilize a minimum number of key terms when completing the tasks provided.

- a. Students research their home country's colonial history (Who colonized? Why? Who was already there? Status of indigenous people? Role of slavery? Culture?) and compare/contrast with the United States; present findings in a slideshow presentation or on a poster with a gallery walk.

- b. Students write a simple children's book to tell a story that centers on a person, place, or event from the colonial era. This can be done with partners and incorporate illustrations, music, computer programs and public speaking.
- c. After learning about some American colonies, students are put in cooperative groups to build their own colonies. This would include names, country of origin, language(s), religion, economy, government, and technology. Upon completion they are asked to compare their colony to one from colonial America.
- d. Day to day work:
 - a. Use (and project on board) a daily handout to provide structure for students.
 - b. Have students come to the board to fill in blanks, brainstorm answers, write in answers on daily handout. (Since they can do it first at their desk, they can participate and contribute in a low stakes way.)
 - c. Think/pair/share to give kids more and safer chances to participate orally.
 - d. Make connections to students' lives, eg. quick write about students' own reasons for emigrating and compare/contrast with European motives.
 - e. Provide translated materials (eg. Una Nacion Mucho Pueblos and Brain POP! videos in Spanish)
 - f. Use of visuals, eg. map work including labeling the continents (North America, South America, Europe, Africa) and labeling the 13 colonies and 3 colonial regions.
- e. Vocabulary work:
 - a. Create a word wall (word, definition, translation, picture)
 - b. Vocabulary memory game (one card has word and one has either picture or definition... students have to get matches)
 - c. Colonial information gap (graphic organizer is partially filled in with facts about colonies or regions... students have cards with missing information and have to walk around and gather the information... requires reading, writing, listening, and speaking in a low stakes environment and results in a study sheet)
 - d. Quizlet Live! for preview and review

2. AMERICAN REVOLUTION

Key Concepts:

- a. The American colonists' desire to expand sparked the French and Indian War.
- b. The British government began to impose greater economic and political control on the colonies.
- c. Americans, who had grown accustomed to self-rule and salutary neglect, rejected the British actions on ideological, political, and economic bases.
- d. Not all Americans agreed on a response to British actions; there were radicals, moderates, and loyalists during the American Revolution.
- e. Different groups of Americans, including women and African Americans, built upon revolutionary ideas to advocate for further change.
- f. The British did not listen to the colonists' demands, which led the colonies to declare and win independence.

- g. The British and Americans each had advantages and disadvantages going into the Revolutionary War.

Key Terms: (examples- not all have to be examined)

Places: Ohio River Valley, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, New Jersey, Delaware River, Trenton, Saratoga

People: British Crown & Parliament, American Colonists, Native Americans, George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Samuel Adams, Continental Congress, Thomas Jefferson, Abigail Adams, Continental Army, General Cornwallis

Events: French and Indian War, Albany Plan of Union, Treaty of Paris, Proclamation of 1763, The Stamp Act, Townshend Acts, the Boston Massacre, the Boston Tea Party, the Intolerable Acts, Olive Branch Petition, Battle of Bunker Hill, Declaration of Independence, Crossing the Delaware & Battle of Trenton, Battle of Saratoga, and Battle of Yorktown

Vocabulary: revolution, allies, representatives, expansion, treaty, taxes, boycott, repeal, protest, massacre, soldiers, unite, petition, patriot, loyalist, casualties, natural rights

Activities—Students are required to utilize a minimum number of key terms when completing the tasks provided.

- a. Students write and perform a skit with characters including a royal governor and colonists reacting to taxes and regulations and planning their protests.
- b. Students design a bumper sticker or t-shirt for radicals, moderates, and loyalists that succinctly explains what they want, why they want it, and how they'll get it. (Optional, students walk around and find someone first who did the same group as them and share and then find someone who did a different group than them and share.)
- c. After reading and discussing excerpts from Abigail Adams' "Remember the Ladies" & Frederick Douglass' "What To The Slave is the 4th of July?" students create a political cartoon from the perspective of a woman or slave about revolutionary ideas.
- d. Students write a "break up note" in the style of the Declaration of Independence. (They can "declare independence from" a boyfriend/girlfriend, a piece of technology, a class at school...)
- e. Students create a 10-event timeline of the American Revolution, which includes visuals and draws connecting lines between it and a map marked with the locations of key events.
- f. Students think of a rule they think is unfair in school and imagine a way in which they could rebel against it. They write a plan to carry out the rebellion, which could then be acted out in front of the class or shared with the class via presentation software.
- g. Students write an essay that compares and contrasts an event from the American Revolution with a current event that involves rebellion.
- h. Students research life for American soldiers during the war (provide materials) and write a diary or letter home to practice using their own words to summarize what they've read. Students have the option to read their entry aloud.
- i. Day to day work (in addition to ideas from previous unit):

- a. Do Now's that connect the material to students' experiences today, eg. When do you pay taxes? Why do we pay taxes? Should we pay taxes?
 - b. Wrap Ups that allow students to reflect on lesson, eg. Would you have been a radical, loyalist, or moderate? Why?
 - c. Follow along with pre-printed lecture notes (on daily handout) and fill in vocabulary.
 - d. Provide translated materials (HBO John Adams DVD has Spanish dubbing and subtitles, there are great translations of Declaration Preamble)
 - e. Use of visuals, eg. analyzing the artwork "Washington Crossing the Delaware" (students should have a copy at their desks and teacher should project at board)
 - f. Break assessments up, eg. consider assessing after Declaration of Independence and then again after Revolutionary War
- j. Vocabulary work (in addition to ideas from previous unit):
- a. Shades of meaning (paint chip strip with who/what/why/how) for radical, loyalist, moderate
 - b. A to Z (at end of unit, students come up to the board and try to fill in relevant vocabulary for the unit for each letter... this is also helping them make their own study guides)
 - c. Group and label vocabulary (Group vocabulary by people, places, issues, weapons, events, etc... Students can come up with their own groups or be given groups)

3. FRAMING THE CONSTITUTION

Key Concepts:

- a. The colonies' experiences and relationship with each other and with Great Britain informed the earliest United States government, the Articles of Confederation, which failed.
- b. The drafters of the new US Constitution argued about how power should be distributed and shared between the branches of the federal government, between the states and federal government, and among the states. Many compromises were made to perfect and ratify the Constitution, which still governs us today.

Key Terms: (examples- not all have to be examined)

Places: United States of America, Northwest Territory, Massachusetts, Annapolis, Philadelphia, Western frontier, Pennsylvania

People: Congress, Thomas Jefferson, Daniel Shays, George Washington, Alexander Hamilton, Federalists, Antifederalists, Washington's Cabinet, farmers, Native Americans

Events: Bill of Rights, Articles of Confederation, Northwest Ordinance, Shay's Rebellion, Constitutional Convention, Great Compromise, 3/5 Compromise, Washington's Inauguration, the First Census, Whiskey Rebellion

Vocabulary: democracy, constitution, federal government, state government, leaders, voting, citizens, debate, sovereignty, power, ratify, crisis, convention, assembly, representatives, rights, legislative branch, executive branch, judicial branch, electoral college, checks and balances, veto, amendments, advisors, precedent, tariffs, unconstitutional, compromise, political party

Activities—Students are required to utilize a minimum number of key terms when completing the tasks provided.

- a. Students role play the Constitutional Compromises. Give students a list of the 1790 Census data with states' total population and slave population. Then assign each student a state. Have them come up to the board to vote for the VA plan or NJ plan and how slaves should be counted.
- b. Students role play Constitutional checks & balances. Have students stand in groups of 3 with their hands stacked and assign each a branch. Read some scenarios and as each branch checks the other, have that student bring his/her hand to the top of the stack.
- c. Students research the 3 branches of government by using government websites to identify the President & Vice President, NJ's Senators & Representatives, and the current Supreme Court Justices. If it is an election year, incorporate that information.
- d. Students do a research project and presentation using the Constitute Project website (<https://www.constituteproject.org/>) to compare their home country's Constitution to the US Constitution. (You can have them identify 3 similarities and 3 differences. You can have specific questions they have to answer about structure of government, individual rights, etc. There are many options!)
- e. Students use the Bill of Rights Institute scenario cards (<https://billofrightsinstitute.org/wp-content/uploads/2012/11/Middle-School-BOR-Lesson-with-Answer-Key.pdf>) to explore the Bill of Rights in a relevant way.
- f. Students do a "museum walk" and examine different images of George Washington. (Find images at www.uscis.gov/citizenship.) They should write a word or phrase that comes to mind as they look at the images. Next have them read a short biography of Washington. Finally have them write an acrostic poem using the first letters of Washington to summarize what they have learned about the United States' first President.)
- g. After learning about the Federalists & Jeffersonian Republicans, students research today's political parties.
- h. Students create a travel brochure that covers the history and most important sites in Washington, D.C.
- i. Students work on a graphic organizer that explains how the Constitution governs through the three branches of government and the system of checks and balances.
- j. Students review the rules of the classroom. They are grouped and asked to discuss which rules should be changed or kept the same to ensure that the class is fair and operates effectively. They are then asked to write their own Constitutions and are expected to present it to the class. The class votes on the one they think is best before potential changes are discussed with the teacher.
- k. Students are introduced to a current event that discusses a problem related to the government and politics. They are asked to consider whether giving the government more or less power is the best solution and explain their reasoning.
- l. Day to day work (in addition to ideas from previous unit):

- a. Use graphic organizers to reduce linguistic complexity without reducing content & complex thinking, eg. for Articles of Constitution or Bill of Rights
- b. Provide translated materials (Newsela has great Spanish translations of articles that can be used in conjunction with the Constitution, the Constitution Center has PDF copies of the Constitution in multiple languages
<https://constitutioncenter.org/learn/educational-resources/historical-documents/the-constitution-of-the-united-states-pdf-other-languages>) or modified materials (Bill of Rights Institute has a wonderful lesson series created for ELL students on American Civic Values at <https://resources.billofrightsinstitute.org/being-an-american-ell/americas-civic-values-ell/>)
- c. Invite native English speakers into the classroom for a group discussion, eg. on Constitutional current events (be thoughtful about this because the kids can get embarrassed/nervous... consider pairing up with a Spanish class so that each group brings its own expertise!)
- d. Breaking assessments up, eg. consider testing after Constitution & then again after Washington Administration
- m. Vocabulary work (in addition to ideas from previous unit):
 - a. Concept definition maps with some of the less tangible vocabulary words like rights, democracy, etc.
 - b. Play Verbose (create a list of words associated with the key term & reveal them one at a time as teams guess the key words.)
 - c. Contextualize vocabulary by making students write a mini-paragraph summarizing the week's lessons using 3-5 of the vocabulary words.

4. AMERICAN EXPANSION

Key Concepts:

- a. U.S. territory expanded quickly after the American Revolution, which led to important advancements as well as continued conflict with Native Americans and foreign countries.
- b. As U.S. territory and economic interests expanded, so did the federal government's domestic and international power.
- c. Individuals had different reasons for migrating, including economic opportunity and religious persecution.
- d. As the United States expanded, it became more diverse. In particular, the Spanish and Mexican influence on the American Southwest greatly impacted the culture there.
- e. Some felt the expansion spread democracy, while others are concerned that expansion weakened democratic values.

Key Terms: (examples- not all have to be examined)

Places: Washington D.C., Barbary States, Louisiana Territory, Britain, France, Mississippi River, Rocky Mountains, Pacific Ocean, the White House, Florida, Western Hemisphere, Indian Territory,

Texas, Mexico, California

People: the Supreme Court, John Marshall, Thomas Jefferson, Napoleon, Toussaint L'Ouverture, Louis & Clark, Sacagawea, James Madison, William Henry Harrison, Shawnee, Tecumseh, Andrew Jackson, Francis Scott Key, Henry Clay, Cherokee, immigrants, Horace Mann, reformers, Sam Houston, Santa Anna, James Polk

Events: Marbury v. Madison, Embargo Act of 1807, The Louisiana Purchase, Lewis & Clark Expedition, War of 1812, Star-Spangled Banner, Battle of New Orleans, Treaty of Ghent, The American System, the Monroe Doctrine, the Bank War, Nullification Crisis, the Trail of Tears, Battle of the Alamo, Mexican-American War, Mexican Cession, Gold Rush

Vocabulary: judicial review, conflict, pirates, embargo, explore, revolt, guide, interpret, geography, impressment, national anthem, negotiate, peace, results, nationalism, transportation, canals, railroads, interfere, spoils system, sectionalism, tensions, crisis, oppose, rural, urban, immigration, population, factories, nativism, public education, temperance, annexation, Manifest Destiny, californios

Activities—Students are required to utilize a minimum number of key terms when completing the tasks provided.

- a. Students play the Oregon Trail video game and write short journal entries about their trip. (<https://classicreload.com/oregon-trail.html>) [This is also a good extra activity for kids who finish their work more quickly than classmates.]
- b. Students do a museum walk around the classroom to examine placards from History Alive! and fill in a graphic organizer identifying the Spanish and Mexican influence on the American Southwest. (History Alive! has some other resources that are impactful especially with a Latino student population including a corrido written in Spanish about the discrimination that californios & other people of Mexican heritage faced when the US took over.)
- c. Students write a series of newspaper articles that cover the five most important moments of Lewis & Clark's Expedition.
- d. Students use a graphic organizer to group terms from this unit into different categories: economic, nationalistic, and military.
- e. Students learn to sing the national anthem and interpret its meaning.
- f. Day to day work (in addition to ideas from previous unit):
 - a. Jigsaw text reading, eg. separate excerpts on aspects of Lewis & Clark's journey. This takes a pure reading task and requires reading, writing, speaking, and listening. (The teacher should be sure that the "expert" groups understand the material before they share with their "home" group.)
 - b. Use of visuals, eg. label and annotate a map of the expansion of the United States after watching the animated map of US territorial expansion from the Map as History website. (<https://www.the-map-as-history.com/the-United-States-a-territorial-history/Louisiana-purchase-westward-expansion>)

5. AGE OF REFORMS

Key Concepts:

- a. Antislavery reformers fought against the institution in the early 19th century, though their basic beliefs, methods, and goals often differed.
- b. Reformers advocated for women's rights, with limited immediate gains.
- c. Other reformers sought to change societal and individual ills, including but not limited to temperance, education, handicapped, and prison reform.

Key Terms: (examples- not all have to be examined)

People: Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Lucretia Mott, Amelia Bloomer, Sojourner Truth, Nat Turner, Angelina Grimke, Frederick Douglass, William Lloyd Garrison, Harriet Tubman, Henry Highland Garnet, Horace Mann, Dorothea Dix, Thomas Hopkins Gallaudet, Samuel Gridley Howe

Events: Seneca Falls Convention, Declaration of Sentiments, American Anti-Slavery Society, Underground Railroad, African Methodist Episcopal Church

Vocabulary: reform, rights, suffrage, abolition, antislavery, temperance, immediate emancipation, gradual emancipation, moral suasion

Activities—Students are required to utilize a minimum number of key terms when completing the tasks provided.

- a. Students will hold a mock meeting of the AASS and discuss such topics as colonization, inclusion of whites and women in the movement, immediate or gradual abolition, peaceful or violent means, and focus on abolition alone or discrimination as well. (You can provide students with a biography so they speak from a specific figure's POV or allow them to debate the issues from their own reasoning.)
- b. Students will examine contemporary images & statistics about women in the USA and group them on chart paper as evidence that women are or are not equal in society today. Then can then compare and contrast today's grievances with those from the Declaration of Sentiments.
- c. Students will identify problems at Summit High School, in the USA, and in the world and then research who is working to reform those issues.
- d. Day to day work (in addition to ideas from previous unit):
 - i. Group students by ability, for example to allow some groups to delve deeper into activity C
 - ii. Use images, including primary source political cartoons about temperance, primary source drawings of prison abuses (eg. The Pulleys, The Crown), pictures of women in corsets and maps/graphs to show abolition of slavery over time in the US (sectionalism; immediate vs. gradual)
 - iii. Use engaging multimedia like PBS The Abolitionists and Roots miniseries

6. CIVIL WAR & RECONSTRUCTION

Key Concepts:

- a. From the beginning of U.S. independence, Americans were morally, economically, politically, and socially divided over slavery. As the United States grew in territory and population, it became more difficult to peacefully manage that division.
- b. The Southern states' decision to secede started the war, which resulted in a Union victory.

- c. After the war, the period of Reconstruction brought all states back into the Union as long as they promised to abide by new laws that were passed to end slavery and provide African-Americans with other rights. However, racist laws and groups continued to subjugate and subject African-Americans to violence and injustice.

Key Terms: (examples- not all have to be examined)

Places: the North, the South, Missouri, Maine, Kansas, Nebraska, Harper's Ferry, South Carolina, Fort Sumter, border states, Appomattox Court House

People: African-Americans, slaveholders, runaways, Stephen Douglas, Abraham Lincoln, John C. Calhoun, Henry Clay, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Dred Scott, John Brown, the Union, the Confederacy, Jefferson Davis, General Lee, African-American soldiers, Massachusetts 54th Regiment, General Grant, General Sherman, John Wilkes Booth, Andrew Johnson, Radical Republicans, Ku Klux Klan

Events: cotton gin, Missouri Compromise, Compromise of 1850, Fugitive Slave Act, Uncle Tom's Cabin, Kansas- Nebraska Act, Bleeding Kansas, Dred Scott Case, Lincoln-Douglas Debates, Election of 1860, Anaconda Plan, Emancipation Proclamation, 1st Battle of Bull Run, Battle of Gettysburg, Gettysburg Address, Sherman's March to the Sea, General Lee's Surrender, Lincoln's Assassination, Reconstruction, Civil Rights Act of 1866, 13th 14th and 15th Amendments, Andrew Johnson's Impeachment, Freedmen's Bureau, Jim Crow Laws, Compromise of 1877

Vocabulary: enslaved, plantations, deny, punishment, spirituals, resistance, "tracks", "stations", "conductors", abolitionists, fugitive, popular sovereignty, expanding, latitude, free labor, contraband, civil war, technology, extremists, emancipate, insurrections, secession, reunification, strategy, blockade, advantage, trench warfare, allies, conscription, habeas corpus, censorship, total war, surrender, defeat, retreat, siege, amnesty, black codes, discrimination, ratification, impeachment, sharecropping, segregation, poll tax, literacy test, grandfather clause

Activities—Students are required to utilize a minimum number of key terms when completing the tasks provided.

- a. Students (in groups) create an annotated timeline of events leading to the Civil War (1850-1860) with a short descriptor & picture. After groups are done, they examine one another's timelines and use them to fill out a quick chart indicating how the North & South reacted to the events (thumbs up or down.) This should clearly show the divisions in how the North & South perceived events in the decade leading to the Civil War.
- b. Students do a DBQ-style activity on the expectations & reality of war by analyzing 7 documents on the First Battle of Bull Run. The first 3 documents are before the battle and the second 4 documents are after the battle.
- c. Like the Washington activity, students read a short biography of Abraham Lincoln and then walk around the room exploring different depictions of him. They can use this again to create an acrostic poem. (Sometimes repeating an activity in the sheltered class can be a good idea.)
- d. Students read about diseases and camp life (good background materials with images at Civil War Preservation Trust

<https://www.battlefields.org/learn/educators/curriculum/middle-school/life-war-traditional>

-middle-school-lesson-plan), as well as the role of women and children during the war, and write a letter home.

- e. Students create a 10-event timeline of the Civil War, which includes visuals and draws connecting lines between it and a map marked with the locations of key events.
 - f. Students use a graphic organizer to categorize events that happened before, during and after the war. A graphic organizer can also be used to group causes and effects.
 - g. Students are grouped and assigned different events to study. They can produce visuals, act out scenes or write creatively to present what they learned.
 - h. Students read a short biography on an important figure from the Civil War Era and write a short essay that explains the reasons for their importance.
 - i. Students participate in a sharecropping simulation inspired by <http://ushistoryreconstruction.pbworks.com/w/file/fetch/111263536/Sharecropping%2BSimulation.pdf>.
 - j. Students do a modified DBQ about both the promises and failures of Reconstruction, using the W.E.B. DuBois prompt: “The slave went free; stood a brief moment in the sun; then moved back again toward slavery.” (Not all students will write essay. Some will analyze documents and write a thesis only. However, at the end of the year, some students will be ready for a short essay.)
 - k. Day to day work (in addition to ideas from previous unit):
 - a. Use sentence starters, eg. for activity B “Before the first battle of the Civil War, many people expected...”
 - b. Use visuals, eg. map work to label Confederate waves of secession, border states, and union states on a map, History Alive! Lesson (3.1A) to graph Civil War data to show Union’s pre-war advantages (eg. population, troops, industry, railroad, finances), compare images and video clips of old & new Civil War technology and predict the impact of the technological changes.
 - c. Watch high interest film Glory
 - d. Use translated materials (Many language options for the Gettysburg Address at <http://www.lincolnbicentennial.org/gettysburg-address-in-translation>; O Captain! My Captain! in Spanish at <https://digitum.um.es/digitum/bitstream/10201/1017/1/1325529.pdf>; Many language options for The US Constitution at <https://constitutioncenter.org/learn/educational-resources/historical-documents/the-constitution-of-the-united-states-pdf-other-languages>)
 - e. Break up the assessments; eg. consider breaking this unit into 3 separate assessments: Events Leading to Civil War, Civil War, and Reconstruction

7. WESTERN EXPANSION & RISE OF AMERICAN INDUSTRY

Key Concepts:

- a. Technological innovations influenced western U.S. expansion and urbanization. New technology had a large impact on economic, military and social issues.
- b. Immigration played a major role in supporting economic growth and transforming American culture.
- c. Continued economic, territorial, and population growth created new opportunities, problems and reform initiatives.

Key Terms: (examples- not all have to be examined)

Places: the West, the Prairie, the Great Plains, Black Hills, cities, Chicago, Haymarket Square; Homestead, Pennsylvania; Ellis Island

People: Laura Ingalls Wilder, Exodusters, farmers, Native Americans, Helen Hunt Jackson, Chief Joseph, Nez Perce, Sitting Bull, Sioux, General George Custer, Andrew Carnegie, John Rockefeller, Standard Oil, labor unions, Mother Jones, American Federation of Labor, Samuel Gompers, immigrants, Western-Northern Europeans, Eastern-Southern Europeans, Germans, British, Italians, Russians, Jacob Riis, Jane Addams

Events: Transcontinental Railroad, the Homestead Act, the Dawes Act, Sand Creek Massacre, Battle of Little Bighorn, Haymarket Riot, Homestead Strike, Pullman Strike, Statue of Liberty, Chinese Exclusion Act

Vocabulary: encourage, populist, buffalo, extinction, assimilate, reservations, conflict, invention, oil, steel, patents, electricity, transportation, telegraph, communication, wealth, poverty, monopoly, labor strikes, labor union, collective bargaining, accidents, stocks, Gilded Age, wage cut, shut down, immigration, adjusting, ethnic, tenements, “turn of the century,” “fit in,” Captain of Industry, Robber Baron

Activities—Students are required to utilize a minimum number of key terms when completing the tasks provided.

- a. Students research a new invention & write a script for a commercial. Then, they visit the television studio to record.
- b. Students do a DBQ analyzing if industrialists like Rockefeller or Carnegie should be considered “Robber Barons” or “Captains of Industry.”
- c. Students write a diary from the perspective of a new immigrant to the U.S. After sharing the diary, students compare those experiences to those of immigrants today.
- d. Create a graphic organizer for causes and effects of the conflict between industrialists and workers.
- e. Students are given some modern day examples of “industrialists”, so they can compare their accomplishments to those from the late 1800s.
- f. Students are given a chance to role-play and act out scenes that portray interactions between Native Americans and American settlers.
- g. Students are given a choice of current events that discuss immigration and/or working conditions. Students write a persuasive essay to argue their perspective on the topic.
- h. Day to day activities:

- a. Students use highly engaging visual <https://archive.nytimes.com/www.nytimes.com/interactive/2009/03/10/us/20090310-immigration-explorer.html> to explore and analyze immigration trends in the USA.

GENERAL

A toolbox of strategies & ideas (to use when appropriate):

- Always think about both content and language objectives, and make them clear to the students.
- Make use of materials in students' home language, when appropriate.
- Use important vocabulary a dozen times in different ways.
- Provide many low-risk ways for students to participate.
- Use sentence starters and clozes to scaffold writing.
- Have students make predictions before they read a text.
- Give each student a "current events" journal. Every week or every other week have them summarize and respond to an article (of your choosing or their choosing.) This allows both them and you to see their writing improve and also to push them to improve (more sentences, fewer errors, etc.) You can use Newsela or News In Levels for good leveled readings.
- Use timers for task completion.
- Use individual whiteboards to increase number of students responding to questions.
- Ask students to tell other students where they found the answers.
- Familiarize yourself with the vocabulary that is more easily translated into Spanish (assuming this is the majority of your population) or only has one meaning and then focus more on the vocabulary that is confusing.
- Play games (Kahoot, hot seat [Vocabulary words & unit terms are placed on board behind student... teammates try to get him/her to identify the words. You can allow them to use home language, charades, etc. if you'd like], pictionary)

Modified Addendum to US History I Curriculum

The content and themes learned in the Modified US I course follows the same outline as in the general US I Course of Study. However, the following examples reflect the modifications and key skills learned, practiced and emphasized to scaffold and support a students' developing historical understanding to be active and productive citizens in a democracy.. In addition, the following activities and assessments serve as examples for the Modified US I class. Links to NJCCCS and CCS are included in the general US I Course of Study.

General Modifications

1. The scope of information covered is modified
2. Assistance for taking notes
3. Additional review material/activities
4. Projects and larger assignments are broken down into steps
5. Reading materials are modified for length and vocabulary
6. Increased scaffolding for activities and assignments
7. Research paper is modified and scaffolded based on individual needs

General Course Skills

Helping students in the Modified US I Class develop and use skills effectively is one of the central purposes of instruction in this course. Indeed, without an adequate command of skills, it is doubtful that students can gain the insights concerning their society or develop the habits of intellectual and social behavior that constitute the ultimate goals of the social studies program. Skills are tools for learning, both in and out of school. Students who develop a command of social studies skills during their school years and carry these skills into adult years have laid a firm basis for continuing learning throughout their entire lives.

An objective of this Modified US I Course is to develop each student to the best of his/her ability in each of the following skill areas:

General Skills – Students will be able to:

- access information from a variety of sources in school & community by:
 - using the library media center as a key resource for inquiry and assessment of print and non-print materials, acquiring information through reading.
 - acquiring information through listening and observing.
 - acquiring information through the study of artifacts, art and both print and non-print media.
 - acquiring information from electronic media including the Internet.
- Develop analytical skills such as:
 - classifying information.

- organizing information.
- interpreting information
- evaluating information
- synthesizing information
- communicate orally and in writing.
- work with others cooperatively.
- recognize and use primary and secondary sources.
- apply different reading skills as appropriate to reading material to facilitate comprehension.
- formulate relevant questions.
- assume a variety of roles in group settings.
- plan project-related tasks in a timely, efficient and effective manner, alone or with others.
- apply study skills when preparing for quizzes, tests, and exams.
- take advantage of teacher-recommended activities designed to enhance learning.

Critical Thinking Skills - Students will be able to:

- identify and clarify central issues.
- recognize underlying assumptions.
- evaluate evidence or authority.
- recognize stereotypes and clichés.
- recognize bias and emotional factors in a presentation.
- identify the purpose of a reading.
- bring background knowledge to bear on a new reading.
- distinguish between verifiable and unverifiable data.
- distinguish between the relevant and non-relevant.
- draw and test inferences.
- distinguish between statements of fact and statements of opinion.
- determine the strength of an argument.
- draw warranted conclusions and construct generalizations.
- identify and explain the significance of several key events and explain why these are turning points in US History.
- recognize cause and effect relationships of key historical and contemporary conditions/developments.
- develop and test personal hypotheses.
- predict possible outcomes.
- offer approaches to problems.
- compare various perspectives on selected historical events and characters.

- use monitoring techniques to check on comprehension.
- apply decision-making and problem solving techniques.
- evaluate historical decisions and actions for effectiveness.
- evaluate the impact of political, social, and economic changes on art, music, and literature.

Writing Skills – Students will be able to:

- write for a particular purpose.
- write to a specific audience.
- select from and use a variety of forms of expression
- formulate a working thesis statement
- organize ideas.
- support ideas.
- use standard written English.
- exhibit technical correctness.
- write creatively using a historical context.
- use primary source materials to support a thesis. o write a change/continuity over time essay
- write a comparison essay

Computer Skills – Students will be able to:

- use the library computer system when conducting research.
- apply computer technology as an aid to thought composition.
- apply computer technology to the sorting and organizing of information.
- use technology to solve problems and make decisions.
- create a computer-generated presentation.
- use a database where appropriate software is available.
- search the Internet to conduct research and gather data.
- use word processing software to write assignments.
- distinguish between reliable and unreliable Internet sites.

Map Skills – Students will be able to:

- locate, place and spell correctly on a blank map of the United States all of the 50 states, the major bodies of water, and geographic features
- distinguish and explain the changing political map of the United States in the following years: 1750, 1783, 1803, 1820, 1850, 1865, 1900.
- compare various maps and draw inferences.
- use maps and the globe to explain the geographic setting of historical and current events.

Picture, Chart, Graph, & Table Interpretation Skills – Students will be able to:

- interpret pictures by applying related information and use the material as the basis for drawing conclusions
- recognize cartoons as materials expressing a point of view and interpret the view expressed
- note and interpret common symbols used in cartoons.
- in the use of graphs, charts, and tables compare sizes and quantities to show change, interpret the relationship shown, and draw inferences based upon the data.
- construct simple graphs, charts, tables, and other pictorial materials (including cartoons). o relate information derived from pictures, charts, graphs, and tables to that gained from other sources

Understanding Time & Chronology Skills - Students will be able to:

- identify what constitutes differences between and duration of various historical periods (Colonial, Revolutionary, Federalist, etc.).
- understand and construct timelines, including timelines made using computer technology.
- place major events of world history in the correct chronological sequence.

Social Participation Skills – Students will be able to:

- discuss current issues of the teacher's selection in an informed manner.
- generate points of view regarding the issues discussed that are consistent with democratic principles.
- listen to other viewpoints with an open mind and express own viewpoints with sensitivity to others.
- recognize, describe and offer constructive criticism, and respond positively to constructive criticism offered by others
- lead discussions on selected topics in a seminar setting.

Unit 1: Colonization & the American Revolution (1585-1783)

Activities: Students are required to develop and utilize a variety of historical skills when completing the tasks provided to learn and understand the content.

- a. Students write a diary from the perspective of an immigrant (voluntary or forced) to one of the 13 English Colonies studied. After sharing the diary, students compare those experiences to those of immigrants today.

- b. Students read a set of primary source documents describing life in Jamestown. They evaluate and corroborate the sources to determine what life was like for the first settlers.
- c. Students analyze the Mayflower Compact and compare it to a 19th century portrayal of its signing. Students examine the historical significance of this document as one of the first examples of democracy in America. They also evaluate the accuracy of artistic portrayals of historical events created many years later.
- d. Students create an online digital map using google maps to label each of the thirteen colonies and describe in writing the founding, economy, geography and demographics of each colony. Students also contrast the different colonial regions emphasizing the role geography played in the development of the colonies.
- e. Students will draw conclusions about the relationship between the colonial governments and the British King and parliament by reading a letter from the Royal Governor of Massachusetts to the King in 1723.
- f. Students compare Paul Revere's engraving of the Boston Massacre to eyewitness testimony.
- g. Students will evaluate two interpretations of the causes of the American Revolution by reading a number of secondary sources on the key events from 1763-1775 and determining which interpretation is better supported by the evidence.

Assessments: Students are required to demonstrate a level of mastery in terms of content comprehension and application of historical skills when completing the tasks provided.

- a. Formal Assessment (quizzes and tests) on content: multiple choice, matching, fill in the blanks, short answer, primary source prompts and essay options.
- b. Paragraph long written assignments using evidence from resources provided in class, This will assess students ability to develop an argument, organize a paragraph, and use evidence. The assignments are on ...
 - a. Conditions in Jamestown
 - b. Accuracy of 19th century artwork portraying the Mayflower
 - c. The relationship between the colonies and the British government
- c. The completion of the digital map project as described above. This will assess student's geography skills, knowledge of the founding and economics of the colonies, and their ability to communicate in writing.
- d. A formal five paragraph essay answering the question: what caused the American Revolution citing evidence from the primary and secondary sources studied throughout the unit.
- e. Students create a digital slide show presentation arguing how one of the following key battles impacted the development and outcome of the American Revolution: Long Island/NYC, Trenton, Germantown, Monmouth, Saratoga, Cowpens or Yorktown. Included are a thesis statement, 3-5 key supporting points of analysis, images and statistics to help make the argument.

Unit 2: The Young Republic (1783-1820)

Activities: Students are required to develop and utilize a variety of historical skills when completing the tasks provided to learn and understand the content.

- a. Students read through and work on a graphic organizer that explains the various Articles of the US Constitution to classify and evaluate how each of the three branches of government works, the system of checks and balances, the flexibility of the Constitution and the Historical Foundations of the US Constitution.
- b. Students complete a comparison chart examining the life and contrasting beliefs of Alexander Hamilton and Thomas Jefferson in the following areas: the Nature of Human Beings, the Best Type of Government, Political Parties and its Ideas, the Ideal Economy and views on the Constitution.
- c. Students read and analyze excerpts from George Washington's Farewell Address to comprehend the context of the text, determine the central ideas of the primary source, and predict what precedents Washington established for the Presidency and United States foreign policy.
- d. Students analyze and interpret a political cartoon entitled "Mad Tom in A Rage" by considering the following questions: Why do you see in the cartoon? Where? Why objects, symbols or words appear to be significant? Why? What is the message of the cartoon? Who would agree or disagree with the cartoon's message in 1800? Why?
- e. Students read three documents in relation to the Louisiana Purchase to understand point of view. What do the documents reveal in terms of the author's position, the evidence they rely on to make their argument, the opinions offered and the political/practical argument made.

Assessments: Students are required to demonstrate a level of mastery in terms of content comprehension and application of historical skills when completing the tasks provided.

- a. Formal Assessment (quizzes and tests) on content: multiple choice, matching, fill in the blanks, short answer, primary source prompts and essay options.
- b. Students research and analyze current issue in government for each of the three branches of government to exhibit comprehension of the US Constitution. For example:
 - a. What is currently a bill being discussed in Congress? Analyze the benefits and burdens of this bill.
 - b. What is one example of the current President of the United States fulfilling the duties of office? What responsibility does it fulfill? What problem is it addressing?
 - c. Summarize a recent Supreme Court decision and ruling. What impact will this decision have on the United States?

- c. Students write a series of correspondence / letters between Alexander Hamilton and Thomas Jefferson arguing one of the following issues: the Report on Public Credit, the Bank of the United States, the French Revolution, or Citizen Genet.
- d. Students create visual cartoons / images to represent the various amendments in the Bill of Rights.
- e. Students write a newspaper editorial in response to Congress's Declaration of War for the War of 1812. Do they support the war? Are they against the war? Or are they indifferent? Students need to write their editorial piece from one of the following regional perspectives: New England, the Mid Atlantic, the South or the West.

Unit 3: The Emergence of the Common Man (1820-1850)

Activities: Students are required to develop and utilize a variety of historical skills when completing the tasks provided to learn and understand the content.

- a. Students will first read a series of backgrounds of Americans affected by the American System (New England Manufacturers, New England Merchants, Mid-Atlantic Manufacturers, Southern Farmers and Western Farmers). Then students will take on the persona of the background they read and argue if they are for/against each specific component of the American System (2nd Bank of the United States, the Tariff of 1816 and Internal Improvements) and why.
- b. Students will imagine they are President Andrew Jackson. They read over 4 options available as President in dealing with the current crisis between the Cherokee Nation and the state of Georgia in 1832. Students will first posit the pros and cons of each option. Then they will decide on which course of action to take and why to calm the tensions and avoid violence between the Cherokees and the state of Georgia.
