

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.

Today's Artist: Dr. Evermor

Dr. Evermor is the alter-ego of Tom Every. Tom worked in demolition and salvage for 30 years. After destroying so much, he decided to start building things out of the antique machines and landmarks he was taking apart. His sculpture park is near the Wisconsin Dells. He said that Dr. Evermor was a Victorian inventor who was trying to rocket himself to Heaven on a magnetic beam.