

EMAIL BINGO

PURPOSE:

This activity is designed to get students into the habit of checking their email—once the email unit has been covered. It is also a fun activity and keeps their interest and anticipation each day!

PROCEDURES:

- Provide each student with one or two Bingo cards. They can be made from websites, or you can purchase a pad of them at Wal-Mart or other places which sell games. (See Sample)
- Decide which patterns you want to use for your game. I usually limit mine to seven or so; however, you can use as many as you want in order to keep the game going. (See Sample)
- Each day, draw a number (or two, if you like to make the game go faster).
- Mark the number(s) drawn off of the Bingo Master Call List. (See Sample)
- Email the number(s) drawn to the class.
- When the students get one of the numbers on their cards, have them use a highlighter to highlight the box.
- Once they Bingo in a certain pattern, they can either tell you in class or email.
- Mark the design/pattern off of the list. Keep an updated list to email the students as to which patterns you are still looking for them to Bingo.
- Once a particular game (set of patterns is over), you can begin a new round.
- Feel free to add to or adapt this activity as needed to fit your classes.

PRIZES:

- Usually for the regular types of Bingo, you can give pencils, trinkets, candy, etc.
- For the Coverall pattern or others like it, a nicer prize may be awarded—No Homework Pass, Drop One Grade, $5 gift card, etc.

EMAIL BINGO

Directions: Each day two numbers will be revealed via email. Be sure to mark/highlight your cards appropriately.

When you get one of the following, yell "BINGO". Let your instructor know. Once we have that particular design, mark that off on your sheet--we will then be looking for the remaining types.
