Fabric Face Mask

Mask Styles

HEPA Vacuum Bag Face Mask

This style mask uses HEPA vacuum bags. It is a duckbill-style mask using a vacuum bag, along with a glue gun, pipe cleaner and elastic.

DIY Overhead Face Mask

This style mask uses both a lining and main (aka fashion) fabric with tightly woven cotton. This version has elastic that wraps all the way around your head for comfort during long-term wear.

Upcycled T-Shirt Face Mask

This style mask is similar to the one made above, but is simplified for those who may not have a sewing machine — or who may have run out of elastic. All you need is a clean T-shirt and a pair of scissors

Olson-Style Face Mask

This style mask features like a filter pocket and nose bridge seal to help close the gap between your fabric and skin

No-Sew Folded Face Mask

For this style mask, you only need three items — two fresh hair ties and some fabric — to make this face mask. Consider it a fast, simple way to whip one up with stuff you have lying around the house.

Pleated No-Elastic Face Mask

This style mask uses pleats. it allows it to get bigger and smaller as needed, offering up more fit options for a variety of face shapes and sizes. This mask style has comfortable ties that won't tug on your ears. Bonus: if you aren't able to find bias tape in stock, you can totally make your own from any spare fabric you have lying around.

Pleated Surgical Style Face Mask

This pleated style mask uses elastic that wraps around your ears. (Pro tip: thinner elastic tends to be more comfortable.) You can make one in roughly five minutes, meaning it's easy to bust out a bunch for the whole fam.

Pleated-Style With a Filter Pocket

Another pleated-style face mask that goes around your ears, this version includes a filter pocket, so additional barriers can be placed inside if needed.
