

Marine & Environmental Science Trips, Fall 2013

Marine & Environmental Science is inherently a field science, and field studies are an essential – hence required – component of our curriculum. Field notes will be graded, and concepts and material learned on these trips will be integrated into our classroom work and appear on major tests. Field studies are also rich learning adventures, and they're fun! And a day outside, on the water, or in the sand beats sitting behind a desk in front of a chalkboard for the gazillionth time since kindergarten, doesn't it?

Why so many trips during the first two months of the new school year? Simple: because we want to go when air and water are still warm and wildlife is still active.

The cost of each trip covers lodging, meals, activities, and transportation, and is not due until school starts in September. For financial assistance, please speak with Dr. Pollard.
