Informing others that FFA is a national organization is a main goal of an FFA Reporter. Katelyn Seger surpassed her goal of informing others about Fort Loramie FFA events with her numerous newspaper articles and updates. As incoming President, Katelyn has new goals we are certain she will reach.

What is your SAE?

I actually currently have 4 SAE's this school year, which tends to keep me extra busy all year around. In the winter, I help my dad with the farm's accounting work which includes filing important papers, sending out mailings, and also balancing the books. In the spring, I spend several hours during school and after school working in our chapter's greenhouse. Everyday after school I am able to water and debud the plants as well as work on a personable level with the customers helping them choose their plants. In the summer, my SAE's include preparing my 2 market hogs for the Shelby County Fair and also taking care of my large tomato patch. I stay busy working on my SAE's and I have learned a lot with each one.

Favorite FFA memory

My favorite FFA memory would definitely be our trip to National Convention. Whether we were listening to the officers go through opening ceremonies, touring Indianapolis or at the Lady Antebellum concert, we had a great time and made lots of new friends and memories that will last a lifetime. I would encourage any member to take the time to go and see what the National FFA Convention is all about. The vast amount of blue and gold corduroy jackets flood the city and make for an unforgettable trip.

What is your greatest accomplishment in FFA?

I believe my greatest accomplishment so far in the Fort Loramie FFA has been being voted and inducted into the office of President of the chapter for the 2011-2012 school year. I will only be a junior and I feel very privileged to be selected as President. I will work extra hard in order to make our chapter proud. I feel we can grow to even higher heights and I hope we can achieve a top rating as a chapter.

Tips for Next Year's Reporter

Always stay on top of your pictures and articles, and always think about what needs done next. Hopefully you won't run into as many problems and computer issues as I did; but if you do, just make sure to smile and give me a call. I will help you if I can.

Goals for chapter next year

I have several goals for chapter next year all centered around striving for success. I believe that this year all members will be given a chance to shine as well as plant their seeds for success. As I said in my Challenge Speech at the banquet, "Striving for success without hard work is like harvesting where you haven't planted."

Officer Spotlight - Sentinel

As a prime example that FFA is more than just sows, cows, and plows, Ashley Holthaus balances being an FFA officer and a State FCCLA officer. Ashley may not live on a farm, but her knowledge, talents, and involvement in the industry has blossomed into a great success.

What is your greatest accomplishment in FFA?

My greatest accomplishment in FFA has been competing in the Parliamentary Procedure CDE. Last year, our Parliamentary Procedure team competed at sub-districts and advanced to the district level. Although we fell short of making it to the state competition, we still accomplished one of our goals and that was to advance to the district level. I learned a lot about Parliamentary Procedure and have been able to apply my knowledge through various other meetings and events.

What is your SAE?

My SAE is my market rabbits. My sisters and I have taken rabbits to the fair for several years. This project requires great responsibility. Each morning, my sisters and I get up early to take care of the rabbits. This includes feeding and watering them, as well as training them for show at the Shelby County Fair.

Favorite FFA memory

My favorite memory of the FFA would have to be FFA Camp. I attended Camp the summer of my sophomore year. I had the opportunity of meeting other FFA members from across the state. Although camp had a lot of structured activity, we also had plenty of free time. During free time, Stacie and I decided to shoot claybirds. I had never fired a gun before, so I was definitely a little nervous. I ended up hitting one! It was the most exciting feeling!

Capstone Progress

My capstone is all about composting. I have been collecting food waste from the cafeteria along with scrap paper, sawdust, and greenhouse waste. All of these ingredients have been in the process of developing compost. I constructed composting bins by using wood and field tile. The goal is to produce rich, organic matter after all of the added materials are broken down.

What are your plans for next year?

I will be attending Bowling Green State University next fall. I will major in Middle Childhood Education. I am looking forward to starting the next chapter of my life at Bowling Green. I was also recently selected to be a member of the 2011 Cohort of the Sidney A. Ribeau President's Leadership Academy, which is a great opportunity that I have to be an active student on campus.

In the Classroom

Under the instruction of Sarah Heilers, the Fort Loramie Agricultural Education classes are busy learning about many facets of agriculture.

Senior Capstone

With the end of school year quickly approaching, capstone projects are reaching completion. As students are finishing up their projects, they are also looking for underclassmen to take on the project next year. The goal is to continue the success started this year as well as expand on the ideas that were started.

Animal & Plant Bioscience

In a Plant Science unit, students have learned how plants can be classified and have been working on group presentations regarding the following plant functions: germination, photosynthesis, reproduction, respiration, and transpiration. Students have also been working in the greenhouse transplanting vegetable seedlings and trimming plants to prepare them for the upcoming greenhouse sale.

Plant & Horticulture Science

Students have learned about types of small engines used in the horticultural industry including 2 cycle, 4 cycle, gas, and diesel. They created presentations on the 4 strokes of a 4 cycle engine and learned the components of a small, air-cooled engine. Next they will learn to use specialty tools that will be required to disassemble and reassemble a small engine, such as valve spring compressors, torque wrenches, and piston ring compressors.

Starting an FFA Alumni Support Group

Passion for the agricultural industry and the FFA organization is deeply rooted in the area. Full time farmers, past FFA members, and people who just want to see the current FFA Chapter thrive are coming together to organize a group to support the Fort Loramie FFA chapter. The direct mission and goals of the group is still in the brainstorming stage. There will be a meeting held May 10th to share ideas and join the group. The meeting will be held at the Seger Farm's Office at 5167 Fort Loramie-Swanders Road.

If you have ideas for the group or would just like to be a part of a support group for the Fort Loramie FFA, please attend this meeting. Questions can be directed to Nick Seger at 937-538-1460.

Ohio Ag Net FFA Site

As a component of her senior agricultural capstone project, Stacie Seger has obtained an onsite reporting job with Ohio Ag Net. After a video application, Stacie and 3 other youth from around the state earned positions to work with Heather Hettrick, a radio host and sales director for Ohio Ag Net, on a few special projects. The other reporters include Devon Alexander from the Anna FFA, Spencer Williams from Upper Scioto Valley/Ohio Hi Point Career Center FFA, and Eileen Gress from the Triway FFA Chapter.

The youth reporters are spotlighting outstanding and unique chapters and members from across the state. The reporters have enjoyed conducting the personal interviews and then writing articles that are displayed on the FFA portion of the Ohio Ag Net website.

The Youth reporters will also serve as reporters at the upcoming State FFA Convention. They'll be covering the event from the members point of view, providing updates, photos and videos to the FFA section.

The FFA section of the Ohio Ag Net website was developed to allow chapters to display pictures, contest results, and news releases. The website's goal is to connect chapters and allow them to share ideas.
