

You are a bird flying around during a windy day. Write four sentences describing what it is like to fly in the wind using at least two similes.

- Reminder: A simile is a comparison between two unlike things using like or as.

Imagine you are in a boiling desert. Write four sentences describing how hot it is using at least two similes.

- Reminder: A simile is a comparison between two unlike things using like or as.

You are at the bottom of Mount Everest looking up. Write four sentences describing the mountain using at least two similes.

- Reminder: A simile is a comparison between two unlike things using like or as.

You are an ant crawling around on the ground. Write four sentences describing what you see using at least two similes.

- Reminder: A simile is a comparison between two unlike things using like or as.

Imagine you are in the Arctic. Write four sentences describing how cold it is using at least two similes.

- Reminder: A simile is a comparison between two unlike things using like or as.

You are sailing on a boat and you are starting to feel very sick. Write four sentences describing experience using at least two similes.

- Reminder: A simile is a comparison between two unlike things using like or as.

Write four sentences describing your school using at least two examples of alliteration.

- Reminder: An alliteration is the repetition of an initial consonant sound

Write four sentences describing your favorite food using at least two examples of alliteration.

- Reminder: An alliteration is the repetition of an initial consonant sound

Imagine you are at a rock concert. Write 4 sentences describing your experience using at least two examples of alliteration.

- Reminder: An alliteration is the repetition of an initial consonant sound

Write four sentences describing an alien using at least two examples of alliteration.

- Reminder: An alliteration is the repetition of an initial consonant sound

Write four sentences describing your favorite animal using at least two examples of alliteration.

- Reminder: An alliteration is the repetition of an initial consonant sound

Write four sentences describing a dragon using at least two examples of alliteration.

- Reminder: An alliteration is the repetition of an initial consonant sound

Write four sentences describing a time when you were really hot or really cold, using at least two hyperboles.

- Reminder: A hyperbole is an over-exaggeration for effect

You found out that your best friend told your deepest secret, and you are very angry! Write four sentences about this situation using at least two hyperboles.

- Reminder: A hyperbole is an over-exaggeration for effect

Imagine you are at a noisy dance where you can hardly hear anything. Write four sentences about this experience using at least two hyperboles.

- Reminder: A hyperbole is an over-exaggeration for effect

Write four sentences describing a time when you felt like time passed very slowly, using at least two hyperboles.

- Reminder: A hyperbole is an over-exaggeration for effect

You are a contestant on the show "Survivor," and you haven't eaten for days! Write four sentences describing this, using at least two hyperboles.

- Reminder: A hyperbole is an over-exaggeration for effect

You have just won the lottery! Write four sentences describing how you feel using at least two hyperboles.

- Reminder: A hyperbole is an over-exaggeration for effect

You are on the school basketball team. Your team is down by a basket, and there are 10 seconds left in the game. Write 4 sentences describing how you are feeling, using at least two metaphors.

- Reminder: A metaphor is a comparison between two unlike things without using like or as

Imagine you are a bird flying south for the winter. Write four sentences from your perspective, using at least two metaphors.

- Reminder: A metaphor is a comparison between two unlike things without using like or as

Write three metaphors related to emotions. For example:

Anger is..., Love is...

- Reminder: A metaphor is a comparison between two unlike things without using like or as

Write two metaphors about things you might see in nature.

- Reminder: A metaphor is a comparison between two unlike things without using like or as

Write four sentences pretending it's your first day of school, using at least 2 metaphors.

- Reminder: A metaphor is a comparison between two unlike things without using like or as

Describe your favorite holiday using at least two metaphors.

- Reminder: A metaphor is a comparison between two unlike things without using like or as

Imagine you are in the middle of a huge storm. Describe the storm using at least two examples of personification.

- Reminder: Personification occurs when non-human characteristics are given to something non-living

Imagine you are walking through a forest. Using at least two examples of personification, describe what you see, hear, and/or smell.

- Reminder: Personification occurs when non-human characteristics are given to something non-living

Write four sentences using at least two examples of personification to describe a type of weather.

- Reminder: Personification occurs when non-human characteristics are given to something non-living

Write four sentences, using at least two examples of personification, to describe a haunted house

- Reminder: Personification occurs when non-human characteristics are given to something non-living

There is one piece of cake left, but your sister really wants it. She's still at track practice, and you're hungry! Write 4 sentences using at least two examples of personification describing this scene.

- Reminder: Personification occurs when non-human characteristics are given to something non-living

It is your turn to rake the leaves, but it is very windy outside today! Write 4 sentences using at least two examples of personification describing raking the leaves in the wind.

- Reminder: Personification occurs when non-human characteristics are given to something non-living