Social Studies

Civics

Grade 8

Acknowledgements

The Civics curriculum for Grade 8 was developed through the dedicated efforts of Neptune Middle School Social Studies teachers Lauren Hallgring and Ronald Puryear, with guidance of the district's Curriculum Steering Committee members including Nicole Sanyigo, Department Chairperson, Lakeda Demery-Alston, Supervisor of Humanities and Sally A. Millaway, Ed.D., Director for Curriculum, Instruction, and Assessment.

The challenges of the 21st century are complex, have global implications, and are connected to people, places, and events of the past. The study of social studies focuses on a deep understanding of concepts that enable students to think critically and systematically about local, regional, national, and global issues. As such, the Civics curriculum committee has prepared a curriculum with authentic learning experiences that enable students to apply content knowledge, develop citizenship skills, and prepare students for the 21st century workplace. The dedicated committee designed a curriculum into coherent, timebound comprehensive units of study with sample activities and classroom assessments to guide teaching practices and learning outcomes.

The Civics curriculum was written in alignment with the 2020 New Jersey Student Learning Standards for Social Studies, New Jersey Student Learning Standards for English Language Arts (2016), and Career Readiness, Life Literacies, and Key Skills (2020) with the increased rigor that is embedded in those standards. Resources provided by the New Jersey Center for Civic Education have been incorporated with the goal of preparing students to fulfill their roles as citizens in a democracy. It is our hope that this curriculum will serve as a valuable resource to support current day civics instruction and that the teachers who teach this course will provide feedback in terms of this living document.

SOCIAL STUDIES - CIVICS GRADE 8

COURSE DESCRIPTION

The Civics course in middle school addresses the values and principles underlying the American system of constitutional democracy; the function and limitations of government; and the role of a citizen in a democratic society. This course is focused on the core values and principles of democracy, the structure and limits of the American democratic republic as set forth in our founding documents, an examination of how well we have met our democratic ideals, and the role of a citizen in a democratic society. It is structured in the format of big inquiry questions about both content—including concepts such as consent of the government, the rule of law, civic virtue, the common good, justice, equality, and diversity—and practices, such as evaluating sources, seeking diverse perspectives, engaging in civil discourse and taking informed action, consistent with the NJ Student Learning Standards for Social Studies (2020).

Unit Plan Title	Unit 1: America's Foundational Ideas
Suggested Time Frame	One Marking Period

Overview / Rationale
Students have heard the term government, lived in a government, shared thoughts about government issues, but may not have a true understanding of what government represents. The following unit will become the first step for students to understand what a government is and its role or reasons for existing in society. Students will begin to question the purpose of government and understand its impact on the people it governs. This unit will then continue on to explore the disputes over political authority and economic issues contributed to a movement for independence in the colonies. Throughout the unit, students will explore how citizens, civic ideals, and government institutions balance the needs of individuals and the common good.

Stage 3 – Learning Plan

Suggested Learning Activities:

- Students will brainstorm the question “ why do we need rules?” They will have a class discussion on the topic. Then students will be provided with several scenarios, no school rules, no rules to football, no rules when driving a car, no rules when playing a board game, etc. Students will discuss the pros and cons of each scenario in small groups. Then students will come together as a whole class to discuss their findings. Students will then think about the concept of government and why it exists. (Approximately 2 Days)
  - <https://www.civiced.org/lessons/why-do-we-need-authority>
- Students will use the Foundations of Government section of the website www.icivics.org to identify the purpose of government. (Approximately 1 Day)
  - Additional Resource-Center for Civic Education: Why do we need a government? <https://www.civiced.org/lessons/why-do-we-need-a-government>
The Purposes of Government <https://www.c-span.org/classroom/document/?8394>
- Students research two political thinkers, Thomas Hobbes and John Locke, that spent a lot of time trying to answer the question, "Why Government?". Use the documents in www.Icivics.org to compare and contrast Hobbes and Locke and to think about how these philosophers influenced those that followed in their footsteps. (Approximately 2 Days)
  - iCivics: Why Government? Hobbes & Locke philosophy Lesson- <https://www.icivics.org/teachers/lesson-plans/why-government>
- Students will use the Influence Library section of the website www.icivics.org and the Human Rights section of <https://www.un.org/en/global-issues/human-rights> to explore and explain the source of human rights and how to protect them. (Approximately 2 Days)
  - Additional Resource-Human Rights <https://civiced.rutgers.edu/documents/civics/middle-school-civics/civic-concepts/85-natural-human-rights/file>
- Students will explain the “Three G’s (Gold, God, and Glory)” and how it drove Europeans to the colonies and impacted the causes of the American Revolution. They will look at how Indigenous groups and Africans were impacted specifically. To do this, students will analyze triangular trade routes, and read about the impact Europeans had on various indigenous groups. Unit Plan Title	Unit 2: Foundational Documents

Overview / Rationale

This unit will explore the beginnings of The United States of America and its foundation. For four years, right after the Revolutionary War and right before the Constitutional Convention, the United States created a government under the Articles of Confederation, which allowed the 13 states to remain free and independent while governing themselves under the name “United States.” However, after a short amount of time, Americans saw a disconnect between the 13 states due to the fact there was no unified government to bring the states together and economically the country was gravely in debt (due to the Revolutionary War). The downward spiral that was the “Articles of Confederation” led to the Constitutional Convention which was a make or break moment for our early country. Decisions were to be made by our Founding Fathers on the fate of our country. The main issue and theme was the question of “trust.” How did “we the people” trust that the central government would not take over, become a tyranny, and take away power from the individual state? The struggle between two main groups developed the Federalist (for strong government) and Anti-federalists (those who wanted to protect the power of the states).

Performance Task(s):

- DBQ work

- Involve students in a simulation of the Federal Convention of 1787 - Engage students as participants from the 12 states represented at the Federal Convention in Philadelphia in 1787 to appreciate the need for compromise and the compromises made. One possibility is to focus on the role of New Jersey's delegates regarding the debate over representation. Another more sophisticated activity focuses on the issue of slavery at the Federal Convention.

Stage 3 – Learning Plan

- Students will use the website 1783 Treaty of Paris to research the multiple perspectives of the Treaty of Paris. Then students will write a brief essay explaining the details of the final signed agreement and discuss the potential effects of this agreement on the United States and its inhabitants once it is implemented.
- Students will identify different forms of government. Then students will work in small groups to participate in a simulation of life under different forms of government. Students will build a tower using different government styles to determine which system of government functions most efficiently. Students will be assigned Democracy, Oligarchy, and Monarchy. Each group will receive the same amount of popsicle sticks, glue, and tape. Students will have the same amount of time to construct the tallest tower of popsicle sticks possible. Each group must follow these rules:
  - Monarchy Group - have one leader/rule who will give directions to the rest of the group members on how to construct the tower. At no time during the allowed time limit, can any other members of the group communicate.
  - Oligarchy Group - will have 2-3 rulers who will give directions to the rest of the group members on how to construct the tower. At no time during the allowed time limit, can any other members of the group communicate.
  - The Democracy Group - will not have a leader, instead all group members will be allowed to communicate and take part in building the tower.
    - Students who participate in the simulation should show frustration, teamwork, arguments, etc. As students build the towers they will begin to recognize that taking part in each government system is different. When the simulation is over, students will write about their findings.
- Students will analyze the effectiveness of the Articles of Confederation. Using the videos - The Articles of Confederation - Becoming the United States - Extra History - #1, The Articles of Confederation - Ratification - Extra History - #2, The Articles of Confederation - Finding Finances - Extra History - #3. While watching the videos the students will first determine items that Surprised them and included Why. Then after watching all videos, infer what would the U.S. be like with we still used the Articles of Confederation today. Then, if you want to, use the video to see if the students had a similar answer to The Articles of Confederation - Constitutional Convention - Extra History - #4. Then, discuss why they had a different answer to the one presented.
- Students will read the June 15, 1787: The New Jersey Plan and the May 29, 1787: Virginia and Pinckney Plan to determine which plan provided a better solution for the early colonies. Provide textual evidence to support their claim.

- Students will read the article “Conceived of Compromises the US Constitution” Conceived of Compromises: Creating the US Constitution and complete a graphic organizer about; separation of power, checks and balances, big states vs. small states, and the three-fifths compromise. Students will then write a paragraph using evidence from the text, they will identify two different groups of people that were affected by the compromises of the constitution.
- Students will compare and contrast the New Jersey and Virginia Plans using the I-Civics lesson “Wanted: A Just Right Government.” Wanted: A Just Right Government This lesson will also compare the Articles of Confederation to the Constitution. Students will use the provided materials to create a compare and contrast chart. Students can use the lesson material in “Major Clash, Compromise” from I-Civics to further break down the compromises of the Constitution.
- Students will break down the rights provided by each of the amendments in the Bill of Rights. Students will categorize rights into three categories; individual freedoms, limits on government, and rights of the accused. Students will then complete a writing assignment where they will explain what could happen if the First, Fourth, Sixth, or Eighth Amendments did not exist. Use www.icivics.org “You've Got Rights” for lesson materials.
- Students will determine which of the amendments in the Bill of Rights is most important. Additionally, provide evidence to support their claim.
- Students will use “The Anatomy of the Constitution” from I-Civics to explain the structure, function, and powers of the U.S. government as established in the Constitution.
- Students will determine which branch of government has the most power. Additionally, support their answer with textual evidence.
- Students will research George Washington's presidency and his foreign policy, Alexander Hamilton's financial plan, and The Whiskey Rebellion. Students will then evaluate the extent to which the leadership and decisions of early administrations of the national government met the goals established in the Constitution. Student evaluation can be done as a writing assignment, presentation, or answering text questions through the use of stations. Stations Activity: The George Washington Presidency \(1789-1797\)
- Students will create a chart/Venn diagram comparing and contrasting the Articles of Confederacy to the Constitution.
- Students will use the Crash Course Video “Who Won the American Revolution” to Determine how various socioeconomic groups (e.g., rural farmers, urban craftsmen, northern merchants, and southern planters), were impacted by the war. Students will create a graphic organizer of the information and then will write a paragraph about the impact of the war.
- Students will analyze the section George Washington’s Farewell Address where warned Americans to stay away from forming political parties. Students will answer questions about the speech and compare what he said to politics of today.
- Students will determine the impact of the political parties on U.S. history, using The Origins of the United States Two-Party System, and whether it should continue as an idea.

- Students will compare the viewpoints of Alexander Hamilton and the Federalist Party to the viewpoints of Thomas Jefferson and the Democratic Republicans. Students will then answer the question overall, which man had a better policy regarding the role of the government: Hamilton or Jefferson? Students should explain at least three reasons why they chose that man. Use Where US Politics Came From: Crash Course US History #9 to help students compare the two. Using the video, students will look at the Alien and Sedition acts and determine how they limited the rights of Americans. They will compare these limits to limitations placed on the colonists prior to the American Revolution.
- Students will read “Jefferson Winning the 1800 Election was a Game Changer” to identify how the election process worked in the 1800s.
- Students will examine the impact third parties have had on elections. use Political Parties: Two is Company, Three's a Crowd – Lesson Plan | Lesson Plan for resources and material.
- Students will complete the DBQ: Should Schools Be Allowed to Limit Online Speech? Students will determine if people should be allowed to say whatever they want online.

Unit Plan Title	Unit 3: The Constitution, American Ideals and the American Experience
Suggested Time Frame	One Marking Period

Overview / Rationale

The Preamble to the United States Constitution outlines its purposes and ideals in the following language: “We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States...”

This unit will investigate the challenges and triumphs to fulfilling our American ideals. The unit will begin with an examination of the goals highlighted in the Preamble of the Constitution. By tracing the preamble through American history, students will assess the effectiveness of our early citizens in meeting the goals of the Constitution. Students will evaluate how each American ideal has grown and expanded to be more inclusive. As we continue to struggle in fulfilling the potential of the American ideals, students will be encouraged to identify additional areas of growth toward a “more perfect union.”

Unit Plan Title	Unit 4: The Role of the Citizen in a Democratic Society

Overview / Rationale

Helping students understand and appreciate their role as a citizen in a democratic society is an aspect of civic education that is often overlooked, yet it is very important if students are to be successful future stewards of our democracy. Middle school is a crucial formative period and an opportunity to engage students in their school and local communities. As students develop the skills and dispositions to support their communities, identify public issues that need to be addressed, and participate in established processes to bring them to the attention of the appropriate governmental body, students gain the confidence to address public policy and the desire to do so as adults.

Stage 1 – Desired Results

Performance Task(s):

- DBQ work

Stage 3 – Learning Plan

- Students will distinguish the powers and responsibilities of varying groups, using Constitutional Conversation.
- Students will compare the similarities and differences of ideas becoming law at the local, state, and national level using How Laws are Made, How a Bill Becomes Law, How a Bill Becomes Law in New Jersey.
- Using various articles from A Starting Point students will be able to analyze articles on public issues through a bipartisan channel of communication and connectivity between Americans and their elected officials with the goal of creating a more informed electorate.
- Using a specific topic, students are to research and take a position on a public policy. (Some topics can include, but not limited to: Should the US get rid of cash, Should voting be mandatory, Should we get rid of the Electoral College...) Many topics for these positions can be found on Junior Scholastic: Debate.
- Students will examine the impact of gerrymandering and determine if the practice is beneficial or detrimental to the citizens of the United States, using Gerrymandering: Crash Course Government and Politics #37.

- Students will be able to participate in simulated voting either through local, state, or national elections. Additionally, students can vote on issues that can help to impact the classroom (i.e. class rules, group rules, bathroom procedures...).
- Students will examine the history of banking and determine if banks were beneficial or detrimental to people, using The Origin of Banking.
- Students will analyze if the Hamilton approach to banking was beneficial to the early colonists, using Hamilton's Bank.
- Students will analyze the process of the Louisiana Purchase and its impact on the United States using The Louisiana Purchase and US Westward Expansion.
- Students will determine the impact of the Industrial Revolution on the United States, using Industrial Revolution: Uncovering America, and The Industrial Revolution in the United States.
- Students are to analyze the impact of technology on transportation and the government's influence in its development (Transportation Revolution: Roads, Canals, and Roadways).
- Students will determine the best action for the United States to address the issue of healthcare (U.S. Healthcare Crisis).
- Students will determine the impact of government incentives and disincentives on the economy (The History of Tariffs in the United States).

In order to appreciate the impact of public policy on their lives, especially at the state and local level, students need opportunities to practice the research, problem-solving, and presentation skills they will need as adults to participate in their communities. There are a variety of programs available to help with this: Project Citizen, Generation Citizen, and Youth-Led Participatory Action Research from Rutgers University. Possible projects provide opportunities for interdisciplinary learning, as they often focus on environmental or other science-based issues and utilize ELA skills in writing, research, and presentation. These projects may conclude in simulated public hearings in the classroom, or as some have done in the past, actual advocacy before a local government body that led to community improvements.
