

Focus on the Individual

Sculptors, artists, and architects combined classical ideas with the humanists idea of emphasis on the individual.

Classicism

The first major revival of classicism occurred during the Renaissance.

Perspective

Most artists in Medieval Europe had never actually seen heaven, so the background was left to the imagination and the teachings of the church.

When people became more interested in the world around them and the ideas of other people rather than heaven and the teachings of the Church, landscapes and buildings began to show up in paintings.

Renaissance painters needed to be able to translate the three-dimensional world around them onto the two-dimensional surface of a painting, called the "picture plane." The solution was "linear perspective," the idea that converging lines meet at a single vanishing point and all shapes get smaller in all directions with increasing distance from the eye.

Sfumato

Sfumato means "to tone down" or "to evaporate like smoke."

The most prominent practitioner of sfumato was Leonard da Vinci, who described sfumato as "without lines or borders, in the manner of smoke or beyond the focus plane."
