

Today's Artist: Jeff Koons

Jeff Koons is an artist from New York known for larger than life reproductions of pop culture objects. Although he did go to art school, he didn't become a well known as an artist until he worked as a stock broker and then reinvested this money in hiring assistants to help him create his artistic ideas. He has set records for selling art at the highest prices of any living artist. He regularly employs between 90 to 120 assistants. People are very divided about whether he is a talented artist or a no talent thief.

Today's Artist: Jeff Koons

Jeff Koons is an artist from New York known for larger than life reproductions of pop culture objects. Although he did go to art school, he didn't become a well known as an artist until he worked as a stock broker and then reinvested this money in hiring assistants to help him create his artistic ideas. He has set records for selling art at the highest prices of any living artist. He regularly employs between 90 to 120 assistants. People are very divided about whether he is a talented artist or a no talent thief.

Today's Artist: Jeff Koons

Jeff Koons is an artist from New York known for larger than life reproductions of pop culture objects. Although he did go to art school, he didn't become a well known as an artist until he worked as a stock broker and then reinvested this money in hiring assistants to help him create his artistic ideas. He has set records for selling art at the highest prices of any living artist. He regularly employs between 90 to 120 assistants. People are very divided about whether he is a talented artist or a no talent thief.

Today's Artist: Jeff Koons

Jeff Koons is an artist from New York known for larger than life reproductions of pop culture objects. Although he did go to art school, he didn't become a well known as an artist until he worked as a stock broker and then reinvested this money in hiring assistants to help him create his artistic ideas. He has set records for selling art at the highest prices of any living artist. He regularly employs between 90 to 120 assistants. People are very divided about whether he is a talented artist or a no talent thief.

Today's Artist: Jeff Koons

Jeff Koons is an artist from New York known for larger than life reproductions of pop culture objects. Although he did go to art school, he didn't become a well known as an artist until he worked as a stock broker and then reinvested this money in hiring assistants to help him create his artistic ideas. He has set records for selling art at the highest prices of any living artist. He regularly employs between 90 to 120 assistants. People are very divided about whether he is a talented artist or a no talent thief.

Today's Artist: Jeff Koons

Jeff Koons is an artist from New York known for larger than life reproductions of pop culture objects. Although he did go to art school, he didn't become a well known as an artist until he worked as a stock broker and then reinvested this money in hiring assistants to help him create his artistic ideas. He has set records for selling art at the highest prices of any living artist. He regularly employs between 90 to 120 assistants. People are very divided about whether he is a talented artist or a no talent thief.

Today's Artist: Jeff Koons

Jeff Koons is an artist from New York known for larger than life reproductions of pop culture objects. Although he did go to art school, he didn't become a well known as an artist until he worked as a stock broker and then reinvested this money in hiring assistants to help him create his artistic ideas. He has set records for selling art at the highest prices of any living artist. He regularly employs between 90 to 120 assistants. People are very divided about whether he is a talented artist or a no talent thief.

Today's Artist: Jeff Koons

Jeff Koons is an artist from New York known for larger than life reproductions of pop culture objects. Although he did go to art school, he didn't become a well known as an artist until he worked as a stock broker and then reinvested this money in hiring assistants to help him create his artistic ideas. He has set records for selling art at the highest prices of any living artist. He regularly employs between 90 to 120 assistants. People are very divided about whether he is a talented artist or a no talent thief.

Today's Artist: Jeff Koons

Jeff Koons is an artist from New York known for larger than life reproductions of pop culture objects. Although he did go to art school, he didn't become a well known as an artist until he worked as a stock broker and then reinvested this money in hiring assistants to help him create his artistic ideas. He has set records for selling art at the highest prices of any living artist. He regularly employs between 90 to 120 assistants. People are very divided about whether he is a talented artist or a no talent thief.

Today's Artist: Jeff Koons

Jeff Koons is an artist from New York known for larger than life reproductions of pop culture objects. Although he did go to art school, he didn't become a well known as an artist until he worked as a stock broker and then reinvested this money in hiring assistants to help him create his artistic ideas. He has set records for selling art at the highest prices of any living artist. He regularly employs between 90 to 120 assistants. People are very divided about whether he is a talented artist or a no talent thief.

Today's Artist: Jeff Koons

Jeff Koons is an artist from New York known for larger than life reproductions of pop culture objects. Although he did go to art school, he didn't become a well known as an artist until he worked as a stock broker and then reinvested this money in hiring assistants to help him create his artistic ideas. He has set records for selling art at the highest prices of any living artist. He regularly employs between 90 to 120 assistants. People are very divided about whether he is a talented artist or a no talent thief.