

Kaitlin M. Roig attended UCONN and was accepted to the NEAG School of Education, where she completed her Masters of Education with honors in 2006. She was a member of Order of Omega honor society, The Historical honor society and the NEAG honor society, and was named a New England Scholar in 2005. Kaitlin served as the Historian for the NEAG Student Association and was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority where she served as Membership Chair, Recording Secretary, and on the Scholarship Committee. She worked as an intercollegiate athlete tutor to refine study skills and plan essays, as well as a study hall monitor for the UCONN Men's Soccer team.

Kaitlin began her teaching career as a Reading Specialist in Westport, CT. While there, she worked with first and second grade students. Kaitlin worked closely with teachers, and administration to implement strategies and action plans for struggling readers.

In 2007 Kaitlin began teaching first grade at Sandy Hook Elementary School. There she served on the Math Committee, Language Arts Committee, Action Research Committee, and Social Committee. She also began Marathon Mondays, a running club for 3rd and 4th grade students. Kaitlin still teaches first grade at Sandy Hook, as well as teaching the summer reading program.

Kaitlin began the non-profit organization Classes 4 Classes knowing that positive social change was needed, and that this needed to begin with the youngest members of our society, our K-5 students. Classes 4 Classes is for every student in the United States to learn compassion, caring, kindness, empathy, consideration, lessons that every child needs to have.
