

Did you know that Greece is called home to more than 10 million people and celebrates its own gods and goddesses?

Greece has several physical features, including mountains, forests, and lowlands. There are also many farmlands and oceans where people go to fish and farm.

Greece has place features that help to locate where it is in the world. For one thing the bordering countries are Albania, Macedonia, Bulgaria, and Turkey. Greece also borders the Mediterranean Sea, Aegean Sea, and the Ionian Sea.

In Greece most people live in apartment buildings, near or in the city. The people there shop at their local laik agora. Then they go to work in places such as banks, schools, museums, and farms while the children go to school for the day.

In Greece you must attend school from ages 6 to 15 and learn Greek, math, science, and many more subjects. After that, some students can go to vocational school and train for specific jobs while others continue on with secondary school.

In Greece farmers often grow olives, and then they turn those olives into olive oil. That makes Greece the top supplier of olive oil for most places around the world. So the next time you have olive oil or olives, you'll probably notice that they're from Greece.

In conclusion, Greece is full of its own special traditions and interesting lifestyles. It is known for its unique culture and interesting place features. If I were you, I would consider visiting Greece and seeing what a beautiful place it is!