Step 1 - Get an 8 x10 canvas

Step 2 - Cover it with a layer of gel medium

Step 3 - Place wet canvas over your printed image

Step 4 - Smooth your paper over the canvas, removing any air bubbles ..

Step 5 - If possible, carefully start to peel the paper off the dry canvas

Step 6 - Using water spray bottle, dampen canvas

Step 7 - Using your fingers, rub off excess paper

7 Wacky WATERCOLOR TECHNIQUES

General Tips:

- Use liquid watercolor to get the best results.
- Always create with newspaper underneath so you can transfer to a drying area easily.
- Try layering techniques for endless possibilities.

Rubbing Alcohol

- Start with wet paint on your paper surface.
- Use a Q-Tip, pipette, or a clean brush to touch rubbing alcohol drops to the paint surface.

Plastic Wrap

- Generously add watercolor paint to paper.
- Press scrunched-up wrap over top & leave it to dry.

Glue (and Salt)

- Draw with white school glue and pour small amounts of salt over glue outline.
- Touch loaded brush onto glue/salt. Let dry overnight.

Doily Stencil

- Paint over the lacey part of a paper doily (very watery paint mixture will spread too much under doily surface).
- Repeat until desired space is filled.

Rice

- Paint paper as usual.
- Sprinkle dry rice over paper surface.
- Let dry overnight.

Crystallizing

- Swirl equal amounts of Epsom salts and water (start with 1/2 T. of each) along with a pinch of salt in a covered jar.
- Add liquid watercolor and swirl the mixture gently for 3-5 minutes. Paint as usual. Dry overnight.

Oil

- Using a tray underneath your paper, separately drop watercolor and oil onto the paper using pipettes.
- Let dry overnight.

Short Fur - Adding Tone and Texture

Before even thinking about adding any fur texture I need to establish the basic colour of the fur. To get this colour I look for the dark fur colour on my subject. It's all too easy to use the final colour of the fur at this stage, but if I do, I will have nothing to add the lighter texture over later.

So the colour I look for is of the darker/deeper fur. You might want to scroll down to have a quick look at the final photo here so that you can easily see what I mean.

The under-tone was just a simple mix of Burnt Sienna with some Burnt Umber here and there thinned with Liquin. It's worth pointing out here that I generally add a little Liquin to all my paints to allow them to dry quicker.

With the under layer completely dry I begin to add the actual texture/fine hairs of the fur. The most important thing is to follow the direction of the fur and to make the fur strokes the correct length and thickness.

Get Inspired!

The internet is full of hand lettered quotes and words to inspire you.

You can head to Instagram and spend an embarrassing amount of time on the #handlettered feed.

Watching the little videos people post are not only great inspiration but also can help show you the best way to move from one letter to another.

Hint: for example, it's totally okay to lift your pen up between letters!
