

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

Today's Artist: Mark Jenkins

Mark Jenkins is an American artist best known for his street installations. Most of his work is made by casting models or objects with clear packing tape. He frequently puts the figures in clothing uses them to talk about depression, isolation and the lack of empathy in the world.

