

Medical Terminology Children's Book Project

For the Med Term Final Exam you will write and illustrate a children's book using vocabulary from any of the body systems using medical terms and explaining them as you tell the story. Your story should be a typed original children's story. You must use at least 50 medical terms and the book has to be at least 6 pages in length not to include the cover. Be careful to use new words correctly. Be mindful that this is a children's book however it is a medical terminology course, do not put anything inappropriate in the story nor in the pictures.

You must include in your book: 6 separate pages of the story with pictures illustrating what is typed on that page. You should have medical terminology (defined/explained) that flows in the story as well as enhances the story. The story/pages should be colorful and appealing to children.

This assignment is worth (100) 5 (standard based grading) points total. Earn every point you can!!!! So be CREATIVE!

** Note: Any use of plagiarism and/ or relying on friends/ family to write this for you is not using what you have learned in class to complete the project and is considered CHEATING. Please use your creativity in completing this project! You are being graded on what you have learned.

Final Exam Project Outline

You have started your journey in creating a children's book using medical terminology. Today you will be brainstorming ideas and chapters for your book. We will be only using the Medical Terminology Book we use in class for this project. Please take advantage of this time in class to get deadlines done for your projects. Every Wednesday and Friday from now until May 12, 2023, we will take time out of class to work on your books. Every other Friday there will be a Final Exam Project due date and something will need to be submitted for a grade. Please make sure you are keeping up with the assignment and the required information needed on the due dates. Good luck!

1. Is there a main character in your book?
2. If there is a main character, what is the name?
3. What is the body system or systems you will be making your book about ?
4. What is the title of your book?
5. Briefly state what your book will be about.

Final Exam Vocabulary List

Now that you have thought out your storyline, you can now start building your vocabulary list to tell the story. Remember you need at Least 50 medical words NOT word parts however you can use more.
