Super cheesy,
But think how cool
It would be with Someone leaning
Over and picking up
a plant or something Like that

Minimalist landscapes that you could put a person in

Don't forget

Not every photo needs to show everything on this list, but each photo should show at least one, if not a couple. So I really like the placement that you have done before with your portraits...sometimes in the middle, sometimes rule of thirds, sometimes bodies cut off. I think that variety works. And find really strong backgrounds that work as a minimalist composition even without a person. Then figure out the best way to add someone to the scene. Maybe have them interact with the environment, etc.
