

Hello!

As we are preparing for the possibility of distance learning I have a few questions about how to make this work the best for you.

In the event that I need to gather materials to be sent home, I will include a math textbook, a notebook, writer's notebook, book report project, book club book and packet, and their pencil pouch with pencils, glue, scissors, and crayons.

Additionally, I will need to know if your student has access to the internet with a device. If not I will include a Chromebook.

I hope to also include a deck of playing cards for a few different activities. If your family has a favorite card game or board game, that will also come in handy.

Is there a time that works best for your student to meet with google hangouts?

Any bookmobile items left in our classroom will be returned to the library.

We are learning so many new things and it won't be perfect but communication will make it better. 😊

Thank you and talk to you soon!
