

There were many, many more tribes than just the Lakota Sioux, the Wampanoag, and the Lenape. What do you think happened to all those tribes? Where are they now? Are there any Native Americans living in the United States today?

There are still Native Americans living in the United States today, and you will hear about some of them today.

Listen carefully to the read aloud to find out about Native Americans today.

Anishinable (ah-ni-shi-NO-bay), Mohawk, Goshute (GAH-shoot), Cree, Dakota, Choctaw, Hopi, Wea (WEE-uh), Iroquois, Micmac, Crow, Wampanoag, Cheyenne, Blackfeet, Sioux, Maidu. All these and many other Native American tribes spread out across the North American continent thousands of years ago. They are all still here today.

Long ago, these Native Americans hunted, farmed,
and fished for their food,
shelter, and clothing.
Rabbits, turkeys, and squirrels dotted the forests. Buffalo, elk, and deer roamed freely about the land.

Fish, clams, and whales filled the oceans, rivers, and streams. From the open plains to the forested woodlands to the coastal waters, Native Americans taught themselves how to live in harmony or in agreement with nature...

They were hunters and farmers and fishermen.

Today some Native American tribes still hunt and farm and fish, but the North American continent looks vastly different now, and they no longer just live entirely off the land.

Today many of the forests have disappeared. Highways have replaced the buffalo across the open plains. And many of the rivers and streams no longer have great numbers of fish swimming in them.

So, how do the Native Americans live today?

- What do they eat?
- WHERE DO THEY SLEEP?
- What do they wear?
- WHAT DO YOU THINK?

Native Americans today still eat corn, squash, fish and meat just as they have always done. But they buy it in supermarkets.

Native Americans today may use pueblos, tipis, wetus, and hogans some of the time, but most sleep in houses, apartments, and mobile homes as their main homes.

Native Americans today no longer wear fringed leggings and deerskin moccasins.
They wear jeans and sneakers and other clothing worn by other Americans.

But many Native Americans still remember their tribal traditions of long ago. Traditions are customs, or ways of doing things, that are passed down from grandparents, to parents, to children.

The Wampanoag have clambakes along the coast of Massachusetts today, just like the appanaug Bear, Gull, and Crow attended. The Lakota Sioux have elaborate ceremonies with dancing, drumming, and singing on the plains of North and South Dakota.

The Lenape still pass down their stories to their children and grandchildren and still hold their traditional celebrations.

Powwows, or gatherings of Native American tribes, are held all across the United States today. At these powwows, the people often dress in native clothes trimmed with beads, feathers, shells, and bones. It is there that Native Americans honor the past and tell family stories.

Penobscot, Navajo, Cherokee, Taos, Rappanhannock, Tuscarora, Shinnecock, Kaw, Walla Walla, Umpqua, Zuni, Ute. These are just a few of the many, many Native American tribes living in the United States today. They were the first known people here, and for many years they were the only people here.

Today they share their land with people from all over the world.

Explicit Vocabulary Instruction

In the read aloud you heard, "But many Native Americans still remember their tribal traditions of long ago."

Say the word traditions with me. Whisper traditions to the ceiling. Whisper traditions to your neighbor. Let's clap it out.

Traditions are customs that are often passed down from one generation to another.

One of my favorite traditions is watching fireworks on the Fourth of July.

Think of traditions you or your family may have or know about. Try to use the word traditions when you tell about it.

"My family traditions include..."

What's the word we have been talking about?

We are shellfish found in Massachusetts bays and eaten by Wampanoag Native Americans for hundreds of years.

What are we?
