Neon Park was an artist best known for album covers he did in the 1970's.

In 1983 he started having numbness in his hands and had to change the way he made art.

In 1992 he was diagnosed with ALS. By the time he died in 1993 he had such little control of his hands that he had to switch to typing on a keyboard with one finger to make poetry.

His art frequently took images from the 1950's and altered them to make them strange and surreal.
