

ONLINE ART TEACHERS

A newsletter for teaching with & without access to home technology

Joining the Journaling Project: Maintaining your sanity with meaningful visual journals

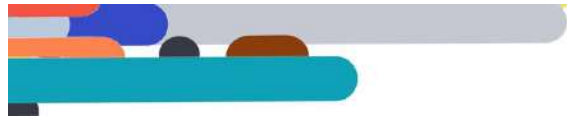

By Beth Dobberstein

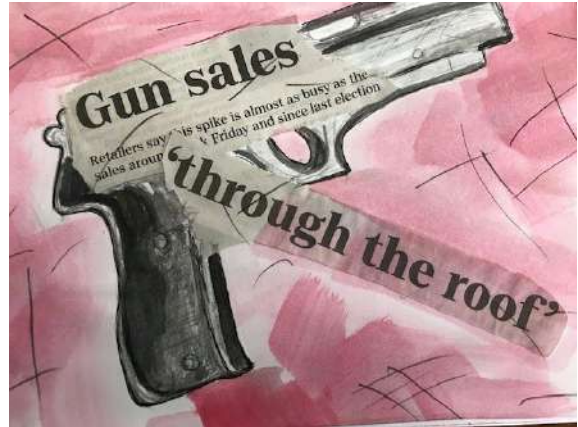

*NAEA PPAA Special Interest Group
President Elect
WAEA YAM Chair
Palmyra-Eagle Public Schools K-6th Art
Instructor
9-12 Online Art Instructor
University of Wisconsin Milwaukee Ph.D.
Student
EMAIL*

#OATK12

Visual Journaling Tips

Visual Journals can take many forms and utilize unexpected materials. The key to a successful journal is to let personal expression guide your choice. Do not get caught up in perfection or fear of what others are going to think about your final product. It is ok to be messy and unpredictable. Whatever you do, have fun and play a little!

Sample Journals

