

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

The Walking Tourists

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

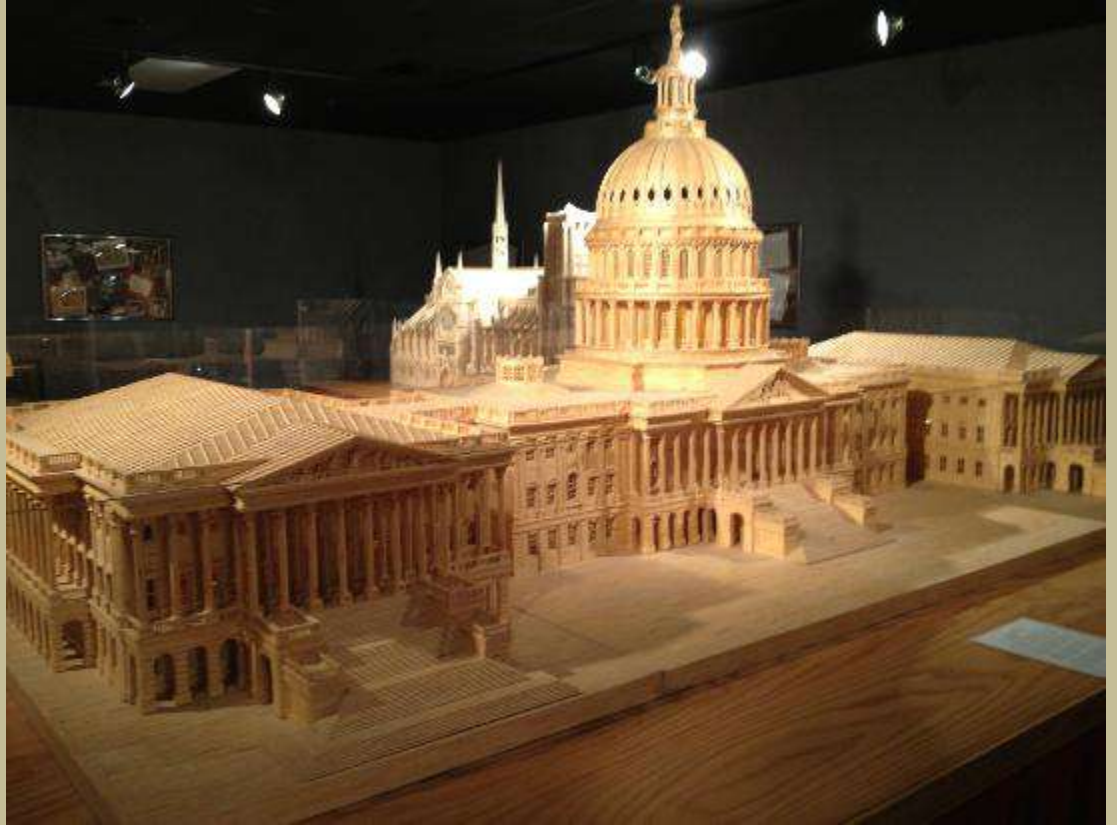

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

Today's Artist: Patrick Acton

Patrick Acton was a career counselor in Gladbrook, Iowa who made art out of matchsticks over winter breaks. His art has been called the best of its kind and he now has quit his day job to make matchstick models full time. Most Ripley's Believe it or Not museums have at least one of his models.

