NCMEC is Taking It Down:

Helping young victims of online exploitation move forward

Some of our biggest opportunities for growth are found in the less-than-stellar decisions we make. Learning from our mistakes and moving forward is essential to leading a full and productive life. But what happens when those mistakes have consequences that seem insurmountable, leading only to isolation and despair?

Today's youth are faced with the same growing pains as the generations before them. But, in a digital world, missteps can escalate quickly, and for those who fall victim to online enticement, the price can be detrimental.

The National Center for Missing & Exploited Children continues to fight for today's kids, offering resources and programs to help navigate the challenges and fears.

NCMEC recently launched a new tool for survivors of online child sexual abuse. Take It Down is a platform that will help remove nude, partially nude or sexually explicit photos and videos of minors. Since the initial launch in December 2022, more than 200 cases have been submitted.

For more information about this new service visit takeitdown.ncmec.org.

Get Involved: CyberTipline

The National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC) CyberTipline is the nation's centralized reporting system for the online exploitation of children. The public and electronic service providers can make reports of suspected online enticement of children for sexual acts, extra-familial child sexual molestation, child pornography, child sex tourism, child sex trafficking, unsolicited obscene materials sent to a child, misleading domain names, and misleading words or digital images on the internet.

NCMEC staff review each tip and work to find a potential location for the incident reported so that it may be made available to the appropriate law-enforcement agency for possible investigation. We also use the information from our CyberTipline reports to help shape our prevention and safety messages.

If you know of a child being sexually exploited online, report it at CyberTipline.org or 1-800-THE-LOST.
