

Today's Artist: Sally Harless (Sadly Harmless)

Sadly Harmless is the work of Sally Harless, a full-time artist living and working in Bloomington, Indiana. Sally earned a BFA in printmaking from Indiana University in 2007, and has since been showing and selling her work in galleries, stores, and indie craft shows around the country. She is also a founder and co-organizer of the Bloomington Handmade Market. When she isn't drawing animals, she likes hanging out with her chocolate labrador, Ramsey, drinking root beer, going swimming, and playing board games with her friends.

Artist Statement:

My drawings are reminiscent of children's book illustrations and are a mixture of reverie and autobiography. I love simplicity, muted colors and inserting elements of subtle humor into my drawings. I like to think that all of my characters are having quiet moments of reflection.
