My Small Business Love Story

Attention Teacher: After making a copy of the student file below, go to “Share” in the upper right hand corner and allow everyone to edit. Tell your students that they must put their name in the margin of the slide that they select and to NOT edit or bother other slides. By students sharing this file, it will make it easy for you to print one time and have a copy of each student’s Small Business Love Story. I snail mailed these “Love Stories” to the business owners in our community. It was an AWESOME way to connect with business owners and show support for community entrepreneurs!

Dear Teacher...

This activity sparked some great, rich discussion about small businesses in our area, who owns them, and what we as consumers appreciate about them.

Take an opportunity before doing this lesson, to teach your students about small businesses and how important it is that we support them.

I also make sure that I discuss large businesses, franchises and corporations. We discuss many examples of large businesses so that they understand the difference between them.

This lesson is really more of an awareness lesson and if you choose to send these “love stories” to the local small businesses, it offers a great opportunity to connect with your local commerce.

I displayed these on a bulletin board in my classroom for Valentine’s Day. Enjoy!
