

Spread of the Renaissance

England

German
States

France

Spain

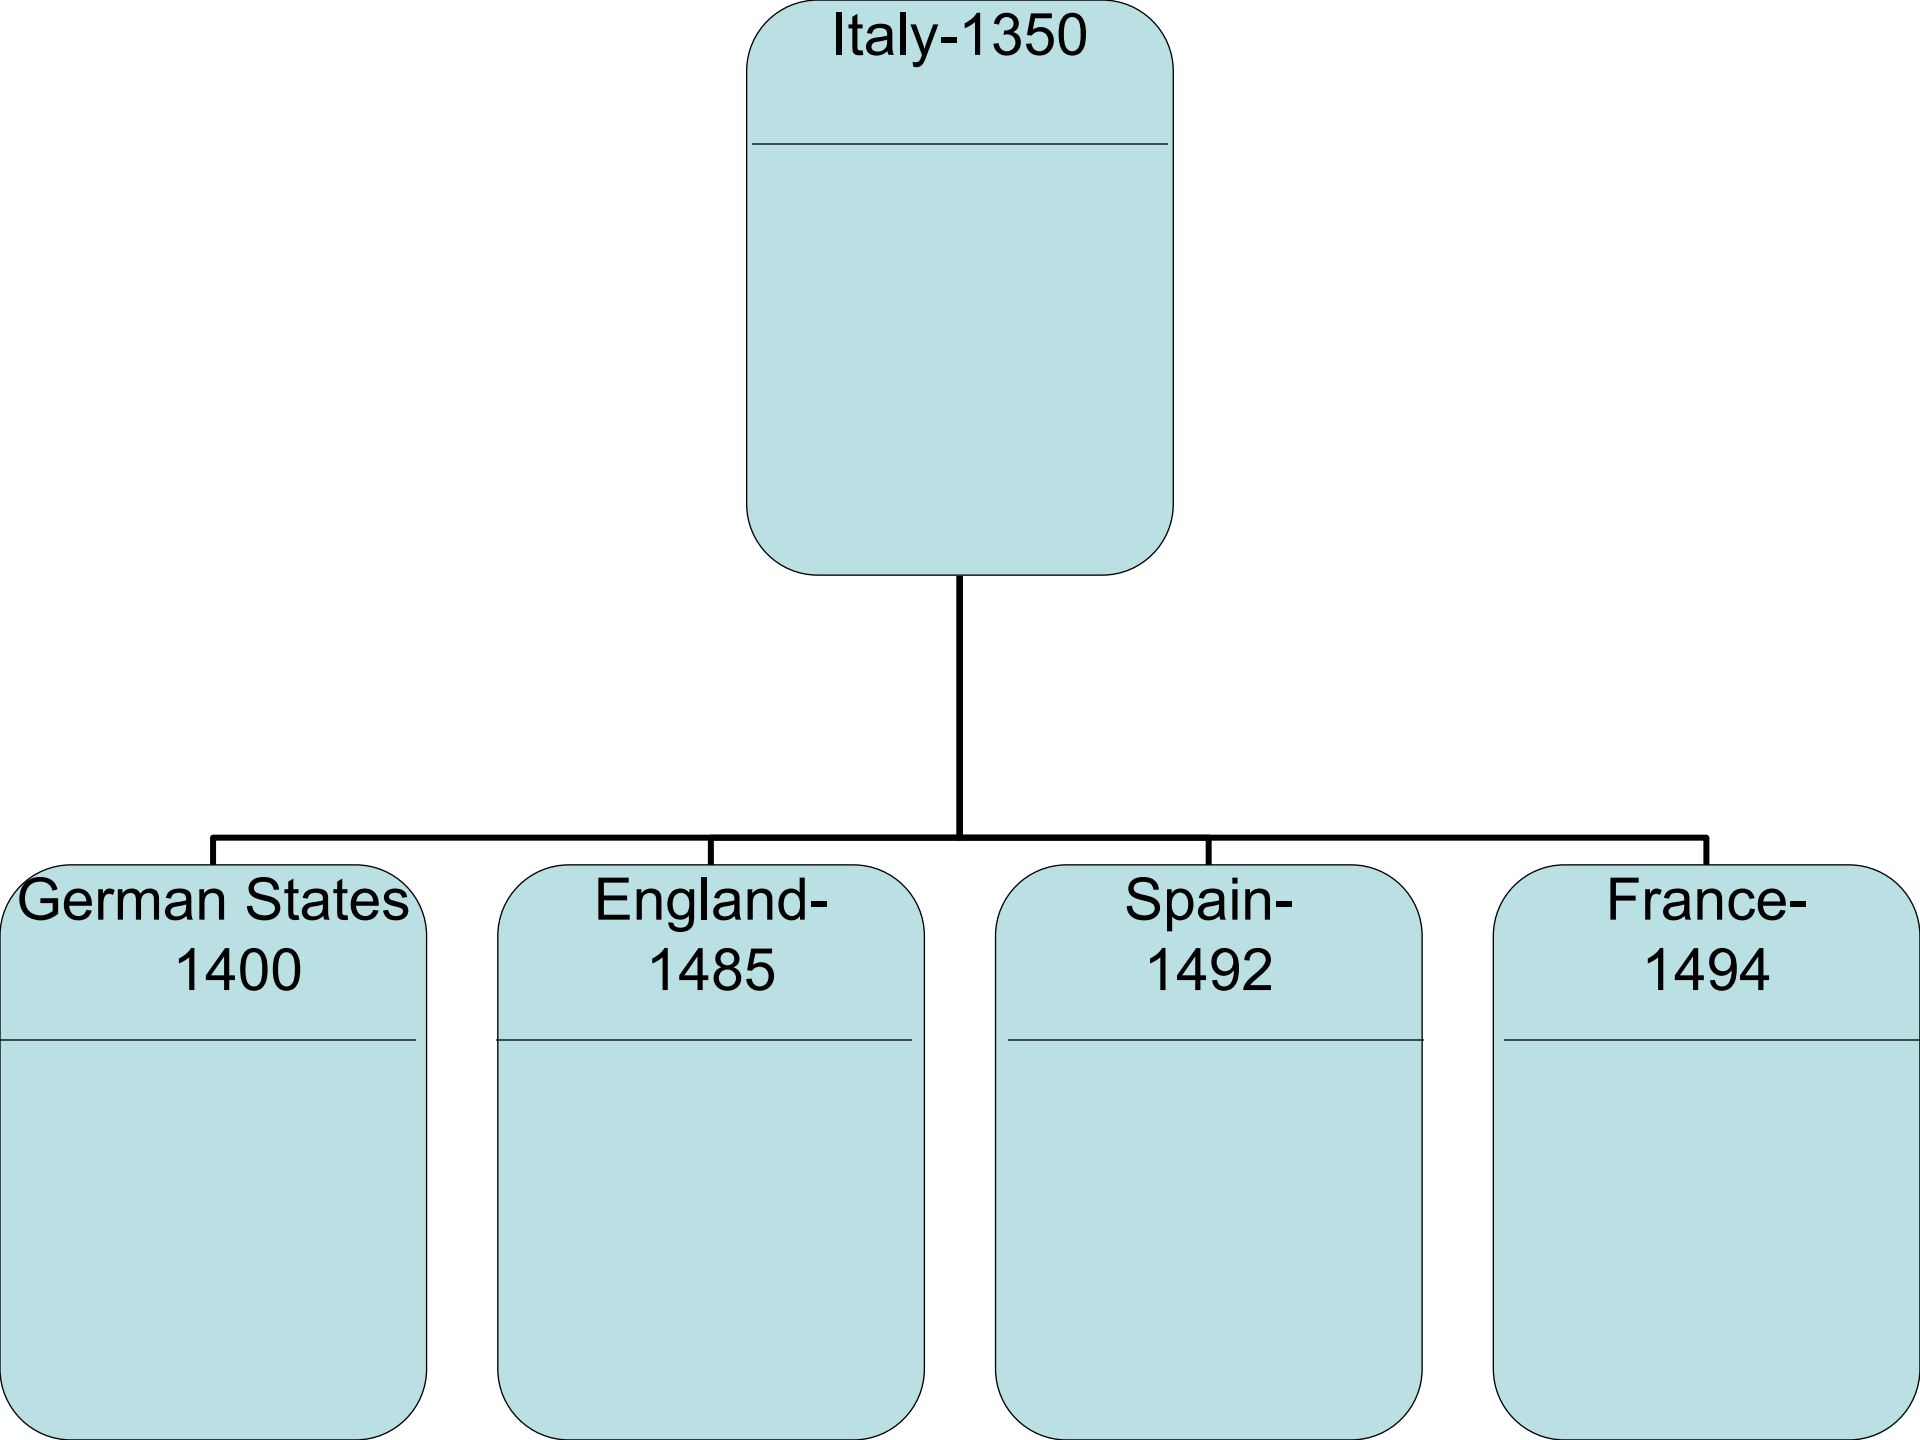

Italy- 1350

1400

1485

1494

1492

Italian Renaissance

- It all began in Italy.
 - Petrarch started to rediscover the Classics of Ancient Rome centered in Italy.
 - City-states competed with one another for the best artists and universities.
 - Italian merchants were wealthy and could spend their extra cash on art.

Italian Renaissance

- Italy's Renaissance has the most memorable art:
 - Michelangelo
 - Leonardo da Vinci
 - Sandro Botticelli
 - Raphael da Urbino
 - Donatello di Niccolo

German Renaissance

- German painting is combination of Renaissance realism and German religious feeling and the need to impress the German nobles.
- The Reformation plays the most central role in the German states.

English Renaissance

- The best evidence of the Renaissance in England are the works of William Shakespeare.
- England was also strong in portrait painting and architecture.

Spanish Renaissance

- The Spanish Renaissance mostly showed up in scholarship and architecture.
- The Escorial Palace was built by Philip II in the late 1500's showing the domes and various shapes used in ancient Italian architecture.

French Renaissance

- In France the Renaissance is most obvious in architecture and some of the paintings.
- The Chateau de Chambord was built during the French Renaissance, using columns, domes and varying shapes that were used in ancient times in Italy.