

Sum up your week

In 1-100 photos

student examples and explanations

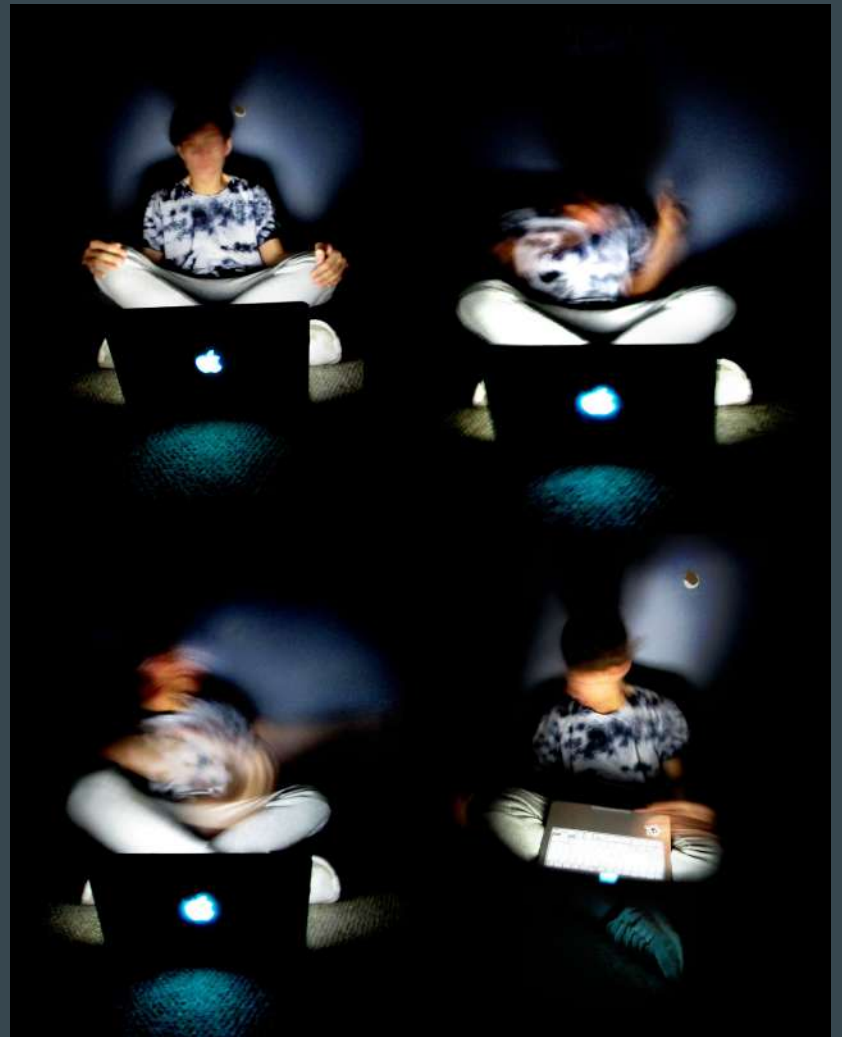

This student got a concussion that week, and this photo represents that experience.

This student felt overwhelmed by school.

This student realized that their screen time was out of control

This student wanted to represent hours of practicing and playing in one photo

This student traveled to California and documented their experiences

This student was very busy with school and sports and showed us that from her perspective

Shooting Assignment:

In this assignment, we will start using photos to convey meaning. You should still pay attention to the visual aspects (and active choices), but the main point is to sum up your week with 1-100 photos.

You can take any approach that you want to this assignment. It can be very concrete, or metaphorical, or conceptual.

You might just document the many things that you did. Or maybe you figure out a visual way to communicate something important about the way you felt or what happened to you this week.

If you can do this in just one photo, then that is fine. If you need several photos, that is ok too. Just please, no more than 100 photos!